

Rocket Scientists Plan Low-Cost Desalting

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

A Van Nuys firm more famous for its work in sophisticated rocketry has developed a plan to convert salt water to fresh at less than a quarter of the cost of present methods.

County officials, at the order of the Board of Supervisors, are studying the plan, and Catalina Island has been suggested as the site for an experimental plant.

Despite the amazing cost "breakthrough" on water conversion, the cost of converted water still would be more than three times what the city of Long Beach pays for Colorado River water entering its mains.

The Marquardt Corporation, under leadership of David W. Bareis, systems development manager, believes it can make a radical reduction in the cost of salt-water conversion by use of diphenyl, a substance that would—for example—replace water and steam in a conventional power plant.

By heating diphenyl, just as water is heated in a steam generating plant, Marquardt would use the energy developed to produce electricity, and the heat waste to literally boil the salt out of ocean water.

By combining the two functions—making electricity and desalting water—Marquardt cost analysts come up with a figure of 23 cents per 1,000 gallons of pure water.

Long Beach reckons the cost of Colorado River water, ready to distribute locally, at 7.6 cents per 1,000 gallons.

Experimental conversion plants, such as those at Point Loma in San Diego and at Freeport, Tex., and financed by the government, convert salt water at a cost of $1 per 1,000 gallons. The converted water is sold to nearby municipal systems at 20 cents, the government charging the balance to the experiment.

In some cases, these government plants sell their converted water at 20 cents per 1,000 for industrial purposes.

Several factors, Bareis says, may prevent the Marquardt plan from becoming a reality in the near future.

Cost analysts have projected figures for the diphenyl generating-converting system, for various sized communities.

A plant which might serve Long Beach and its neighboring communities would require an investment of $64,181,000, and would produce 75,000,000 gallons of water a day and 205,099 kilowatts of electricity.

Long Beach itself consumes 48 million gallons of water daily.

Marquardt Corp. figures the cost of the water-conversion system at $36,315,000 and the generating section at $27,866,000. Under the proposal of Marquardt, private utilities would handle the generating portion and municipalities the water conversion.

Bareis says Catalina Island might be a suitable site for a diphenyl plant, since the island lacks enough water and power sources for development.

"Such a plant," he suggests, "might open the way for complete development of the island."

The plant cost for Catalina, Bareis notes, would be less than a system designed to serve Long Beach.

Bareis presented an outline of the Marquardt proposal to the Board of Supervisors a week ago. Since then, he says, several coastal cities have shown an interest in the proposal. Currently, Marquardt is keeping its fingers crossed.

"We want to build a plant with the cooperation of some community that needs water and power," Bareis says.

Bareis points out that the Office of Saline Water, in the Department of the Interior, will support projects of this type under certain conditions. These are: the community must provide a plant site; the proposal must in-

Shakeups Are Urged for School

Garden Grove
District Is Scene
of Dissension

Reassignment of the superintendent of Garden Grove Union High School District and resignation of two members of the school board has been recommended by a special panel made up of members from four educational organizations.

The report, issued by the California Teachers Assn., is the result of a three-day inquiry by a six-member panel. Representatives of the State Association of Secondary School Administrators, The State Association of School Administrators, the State School Boards Assn. and the CTA sat on the panel.

The 30-page report calls for "restoration of harmony in the operation of the board." This, the panel concluded, "is a compelling need if the district is to meet the educational needs of its expanding population."

"It is impossible to expect united school support while the two strong opposing personalities remain on the board. The panel, therefore, earnestly recommends that these two trustees submit their resignations from the board effective immediately."

"When these two trustees resign," the report said, "remaining board members

Russ Put Satellite in Orbit

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union Saturday put another unmanned satellite — Cosmos Six — into orbit as part of its current exploratory series. The Soviet News Agency Tass said the satellite was functioning normally.

TASS SAID Cosmos Six was circling the earth every 90.6 minutes. The highest point of its orbit is 250 miles above the earth with the lowest point given as 126 miles. The Russians announced earlier that the Cosmos series was designed to explore radiation and other hazards man will face in extended space travel.

CHIEFS PUSH DOPE CURBS

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Redoubled effort toward the eradication of the illegal drug traffic which exists along the U.S.-Mexico border was pledged Saturday by President Kennedy and Lopez Mateos.

In a joint communique issued by the presidents, they said they were "prattified by the manner in which their governments are collaborating in the eradication of illegal drug traffic and agreed to redouble their efforts and their cooperation to put an end to this criminal activity."

Algerian Leaders Fire Staff Chief

ALGHERS (UPI) — The Algerian nationalist government in Tunis Saturday dismissed the commander of its general staff and two other high officers on the eve of the Algerian independence referendum for "criminal activities."

The surprise announcement from the nationalists' exile headquarters in Tunis followed the resignation of nationalist minister Mohammed Ben Khider and the mysterious disappearance of Vice Premier Mohammed Ben Bella in what apparently was a serious government split on the issue of nationalization.

IT SAID that Col. Boumedienne, the chief of staff of the nationalist army, and the other two army officers were dismissed for "activities tending to undermine the government's authority."

The wording of the announcement indicated either violent opposition to the nationalist government or possibly even an attempt to overthrow it.

Nationalist Premier Youssef Ben Khedda was reported to be supporting a softer line toward nationalization than Ben Bella and Ben Khider. They also opposed his willingness to negotiate with right-wing Europeans in Algeria, and instead of going slowly on land reform as Ben Khedda plans, wanted immediate action.

Most Businesses to Close for 4th

Federal, state, county, and municipal offices and most businesses will be closed Wednesday in observance of the Fourth of July Independence Day holiday, citizens were reminded.

The post office will make no deliveries, but the usual holiday collections and dispatches of mail will be made.

NO-HITTER BY KOUFAX

Sandy Koufax, the Dodgers' whip-armed southpaw, pitched the third no-hit game of the major league season Saturday night.

Koufax won his 11th game against four losses by stifling the New York Mets, 5-0, at Dodger Stadium. He struck out 13 and walked five.

Bo Belinsky of the Angels and Earl Wilson of the Red Sox threw no-hitters earlier this season.

JFK, Lopez in Warning to Meddlers

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Kennedy and President Adolfo Lopez Mateos issued a warning to totalitarian nations Saturday against meddling in the affairs of the Western Hemisphere.

They said in a joint communique issued after the two chiefs of state wound up a series of talks that their nations are determined "to oppose totalitarian institutions and activities which are incompatible with the democratic principles they uphold."

This seemed a clear warning to the Soviet Union and the Communist world, now allied with Fidel Castro's Cuba, to beware of intervention in this hemisphere.

THE WARNING came in a passage dedicating the two nations to democratic ideals.

The presidents said: "In consonance with their dedication to these ideals, and acting always as sovereign and independent countries, which decide their own policies and their own courses of action, they propose to respect and maintain the principles of nonintervention—whether this intervention may come from a continental or extracontinental state—and of self-determination of peoples."

"Therefore, they are resolved to uphold these principles in the international organization to which they belong, to defend and strengthen the democratic institutions which their peoples in the exercise of their sovereign rights have constructed, and to oppose totalitarian institutions and activities which are incompatible with the democratic principles they uphold."

THE TWO leaders' agreement that a new era of relations between Mexico and the United States has begun was underscored by the enormous emotional welcome given the visiting chief executive by Mexico City in this weather-vane Latin-American nation. The day was another personal triumph for President Kennedy.

The U.S. and Mexican presidents also announced agreement on the nature of the Alliance for Progress effort to cure hemisphere economic and social ills.

"Mexico and the United States are determined, so far as they are concerned, to continue such effort until hunger, poverty and social injustice are eliminated from the hemisphere," they said.

That was the theme Kennedy stressed most heavily in his round of public speeches in this capital. Mexico is a likely prospect to become a showcase for the alliance.

BEFORE THEY sat down to talk, the two chief executives witnessed the signing of a previously announced agreement that the United States will lend this country $20 million for agricultural improvement under the Alliance for Progress program.

Mexico is rapidly becoming a top prospect as a demonstration showcase on how the Alliance for Progress can serve as an alternative to communism.

Lopez Mateos, in a statement, expressed pleasure with the private talks and the great friendliness shown by his people toward the visitor.

"I am very much satisfied by the way in which the conversations have taken place and also because of the high sense of hospitality of the people of Mexico," he said.

"I have spoken with President Kennedy about some historical episodes regarding matters of external policy, borders and waters, and generally on everything of importance for the two countries."

THE STATEMENT indicated the two presidents have discussed not only their different slants on how to treat Cuba's Fidel Castro, but also such questions as the salinity of Colorado River waters. Mexican farmers complain that come so salty that they are ruinous for Mexico's irrigated lands in the Mexican Valley.

With exuberant cheers still ringing in his ears from the 1½ million people that turned out to greet him on his arrival Friday, President Kennedy took up an event-packed schedule on the second day of his visit, with a ceremonial wreath-laying at Mexico's Monument to Independence.

It was clear immediately that his honeymoon with the DIANE OLSON, Miss Welcome, will be queen of Long Beach Firemen's Circus.

Fireworks, beauty contests, musical pageants, two circuses and a parade will provide Fourth of July entertainment fare Wednesday, and Southland beaches are expected to host their usual hundreds of thousands.

Eight aerial pyrotechnic displays are scheduled for the Long Beach-South Bay-Orange County area, and Huntington Beach will stage its annual Independence Day parade.

Fireworks shows are slated at the Long Beach Veterans' Memorial Stadium, the Huntington Beach pier, Newport Dunes, Buena Park, Fullerton, Anaheim, Cabrillo Beach, and Lawndale. In addition, the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum will stage its annual circus and fireworks show.

THE HUNTINGTON BEACH PARADE will have 22 bands, 25 floats, units from the Army, Navy, Marines, and Air Force, and a bevy of beauties including the recently selected Miss California, Marilyn Tindall.

The parade will get under way at 11 a.m. at Main and 14th Streets, head south on Main to Fifth Street, then to Orange Avenue, west to Ninth Street, south to Walnut Avenue, east to Main Street, north to Frankford Street, east to Lake Avenue, and north to the disbanding area at Lake Park.

After the parade, a stage show gets under way at the open-air beach amphitheater, followed by the Miss Firecracker contest.

SQUARE dancers, a concert by the Robin Hood Band, and fireworks off the pier at 9 p.m. conclude the program.

"MY HUSBAND and I are very glad to come back to Mexico," she said. "This is my third trip to Mexico. I like to remember that my last trip was my honeymoon."

She praised Mexico for "the underlying values of your culture, the profound faith in man's dignity—they have all been expressed in your art and literature over the centuries."

At the conclusion, persons attending the lunch burst into loud applause. Mrs. Kennedy sat down, but had to get up again to acknowledge another outburst.

THE PRESIDENT jokingly introduced her as the one who would speak in Spanish. His own Spanish is limited to such phrases as "Viva Mexico," he said. He drew a 1½ million people that turned out to greet him on his arrival Friday. President Kennedy took up an event-packed schedule on the second day of his visit, with a ceremonial wreath-laying at Mexico's Monument to Independence.

U.S. Calls 7,562 Europe GIs Home

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Defense Department Saturday ordered 7,562 U.S. Army support troops to return from Europe in a cautious step toward reducing American forces on the Continent to pre-Berlin-crisis levels. An announcement said the returning troops comprise 42 small units, and will reach the United States by Sept. 30.

U.S. military strength in Europe is now close to 350,000 men, more than 50,000 above the pre-Berlin level. The current force includes 272,000 Army troops, compared to 232,000 before the crisis flared up last fall.

"As a result of the receipt of new equipment, completion of pre-positionings of equipment in Europe and improved logistics techniques, units totaling 7,562 officers and men will be returned to the United States from Europe this year," the Pentagon announcement said.

Over a longer period, however, it was expected that troop strength in Europe will be reduced by at least 40,000 men, or even more if the withdrawals can be accomplished without undermining combat strength. At least one-third of the troops in Europe are in support outfits rather than combat units.

Ike Leads Attack on New Frontier

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower led some 100 Republican leaders Saturday in a free-swinging attack on the New Frontier with special emphasis on the Kennedy administration's policies toward business.

Declaring that he was proud to have the GOP labeled "the party of business," Eisenhower advised businessmen to "wake up... take a look at what's happening to you... and you better get in politics quick."

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and other Republicans also cut loose at the Democrats on both domestic and foreign issues. With sights trained mainly on the 1962 congressional and gubernatorial elections, their oratory brimmed with forecasts of Republican victories in November.

The "All Republican Conference," a new body set up to speak for the GOP, met at Eisenhower's farm here, beneath a green-and-white tent on a pasture about 50 yards from the former President's house.

The GOP leaders fired salvo after salvo at the Democrats, blaming them for business woes, accusing them of power grabs, and charging the administration with "me too" foreign policies.

Winnie Comfortable, Appetite Good

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill, immobilized by a fractured thigh, topped off his dinner in a hospital bed Saturday night with brandy and champagne. He dined on cream of chicken soup, an omelette, strawberries and ice cream, with champagne interspersed at reasonable intervals. Then he had coffee and a snifter of Cognac. He had a nip of brandy with lunch, too.

The 87-year-old warrior drowsed comfortably for most of the day after awaking from the long, deep slumber that followed his operation. Doctors pronounced themselves satisfied at the condition of the damaged thighbone, pegged together on the operating table Friday night.

Reds Guarded as They Stiffen Wall

BERLIN (UPI)—Fifty Communist riot-squad policemen strengthened the antirefugee wall Saturday in Berlin while eight border policemen armed with machine pistols stood by to see that they did not try to flee into the West.

The riot police built a low barbed-wire entanglement designed to snare refugees approaching the high barbed-wire fence along the border. The snare was built near the border of the American sector's Lichtenrade district and the Soviet zone of Germany. The fact the police had to be guarded as they worked on the border was seen as proof the Communists could not trust their own security forces.

U.S. Fires 24th Pacific A-Test

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States Saturday set off the 24th announced shot of its Pacific nuclear tests series and rescheduled a high-altitude blast for July 4 in an attempt to recoup from an earlier failure. An underground test shot also was fired in Nevada.

The high-altitude shot will be a rescheduling of the June 19 test which failed when test instruments "super-heated" the Thor launching rocket.

The 24th blast in the Pacific series Saturday was in the low megaton range. This meant it unleashed the force of at least one million tons of TNT, making it one of the bigger firings of the Pacific series. The Atomic Energy Commission said the July 4 explosion would be attempted at an altitude of "hundreds of kilometers." If it follows the June 19 schedule, the device will be detonated at an altitude of about 200 miles over Johnston Island.

House Quizzers Grill Ex-Ag Aide

WASHINGTON (UPI)—House investigators Saturday questioned an ousted Agriculture Department official behind closed doors for the second time about his connections with indicted Texas financier Billie Sol Estes.

Chairman L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., of a House government operations subcommittee, said testimony by the official, William F. Morris, would be made public later if he is not asked to appear at a public hearing. He revealed no details of the closed session.

Morris, who also appeared before the subcommittee Friday, was fired by Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman several weeks ago after he failed to appear for departmental questioning. He was an aide to former Assistant Secretary James T. Ralph, also fired in the Estes case. In a recent Texas inquiry, employees of a Dallas department store testified that Estes accompanied Ralph and Morris when the two selected more than $1,000 worth of clothing. Ralph has denied that Estes paid the bill.

Castro Sends 2 'U.S. Agents' to the Wall

HAVANA (AP)—The firing squad went to work in Oriente Province again Saturday, executing two alleged counter-revolutionaries accused of being agents for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Cuban authorities said Julio Jose Wright Simon and Ardeales Garcia Ayala were executed after they were caught carrying military maps and explosives and fuses, assertedly to blow up two sugar mills.

EDDIE SET TO DIVORCE LIZ TAYLOR

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Singer Eddie Fisher has returned to the site of his marriage three years ago to Elizabeth Taylor and says he'll start divorce proceedings against her next month.

The singer slipped quietly into town to attend the opening of the George Burns-Carol Channing show at the Dunes Hotel.

Asked if he intended to start divorce proceedings when he opens a two-week engagement at the Desert Inn July 24, Fisher said: "From the way things look right now the answer is yes. Louis Nizer is attorney for both Elizabeth and myself, and we will follow his advice."

Israel Set to Deport Dr. Soblen

TEL AVIV (UPI)—Bail-jumping Soviet spy Dr. Robert A. Soblen has requested political asylum in Israel, it was reported Saturday night. But reliable government sources said asylum would be denied, and he probably would be deported shortly.

Informed sources said Soblen's attorney, Ari Ankorian, sent a letter to the Israeli Interior Ministry asking for political asylum for the ailing Soblen and asking the ministry not to deport him until his defense has a chance to present its case.

GOVERNMENT sources said Soblen, a psychiatrist convicted by the United States of spying for Russia, Government officials met Saturday to discuss his fate and a decision was expected within the next 24 hours.

Representatives from the Interior, Foreign, and Justice Ministries conferred after sources close to the government said Israel has assured Soblen will be expelled today—but not back to the United States.

MD Crisis Pondered by Cabinet

REGINA, Sask. (UP)—The Saskatchewan cabinet met in emergency session Saturday to consider the crisis facing this western Canada province of 900,000 inhabitants by a threatened midnight "doctors' strike" against a socialized medical-care program.

All but a handful of Saskatchewan's 900 doctors served notice through the province's College of Physicians and Surgeons that they would supply only emergency service after the midnight deadline. But the government, only Socialist administration in Canada's 10 provinces, said it would put the medicare plan into effect anyway.

ALL BUT 29 of the province's 121 hospitals will be without doctors. The 29 announced they would provide emergency treatment only.

The doctors, who want to carry on as they always have without government intervention, say the medicare act would "conscript" them. They claim they are not violating their Hippocratic oaths because they will work in emergencies.

From every 4.8 gallons of salt water pumped from the ocean, the system would produce a gallon of fresh water, returning 3.8 gallons to the sea. The returned water, with a higher-than-average salt content, would blend with the ocean water until its salt content was normal.

Governor for Solon Pay Hike

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Gov. Brown invited Richard Nixon Saturday to join in bipartisan support for a $5,250-a-year pay raise for California legislators.

Brown, in Hershey, Pennsylvania for the national governor's conference, forwarded a statement here confirming that he has agreed to sign a ballot argument in favor of Prop. 1.

The measure would increase the lawmakers' pay to $11,250 a year—or half that of congressmen. The state salary is now $6,000. An alternative proposal, Prop. 17, would peg it at $10,000.

BROWN announced, his preference for Prop. 1, then said of his Republican opponent:

"If Mr. Nixon is, indeed, in favor of a pay raise for legislators as he says he is, I hope he will join me in endorsing the ballot argument in favor of this proposal."

The former vice president also happened to be in Pennsylvania — attending a Republican gathering at former President Eisenhower's Gettysburg farm — and there was no immediate reply.

Brown's statement came after some legislators proposed that the two candidates for governor team up to write the argument in behalf of the pay raise in the voters' November election pamphlet.

AMA Fights $6.5-Billion Tax Compromise Cut JFK's Aim, Health Bill If, When Needed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The American Medical Association served notice Saturday that it will oppose a bipartisan compromise to provide medical benefits for all the nation's aged as much as it did the original Kennedy administration version of the bill. The compromise bill unveiled late Friday would invite states and private insurance companies to participate and would cover about 2.5 million elderly persons, President Kennedy's original proposal left out.

In a statement released Saturday, the AMA said, "It is clear from news reports that this new last-minute proposal is only an expanded version" of the original administration bill.

It said "hastily improvised changes" were made "in an effort to attract votes in Congress."

THE AMA based its opposition on the fact that the new proposal still would be financed through an increase in Social Security taxes, a principle it has consistently opposed.

It also noted that the bill would not become effective until 1964 and said, "We can see no reason for Congress to abandon its customary rules and traditional procedures through hasty action."

If passed, the compromise bill would, for three years, provide basic health benefits for 17.5 million persons over 65, regardless whether they are covered by Social Security.

After 1967, persons reaching the age of 65 would have to be covered by general Social Security to be eligible for the health benefits.

Backers of the compromise said the necessary increase for a worker making $5,200 or more a year would be $13, with a similar annual cost for his employer. This would be the same as the cost of the original version, they said.

THE AMA disputed the figure. It said "a quick reading of the legislation shows the tax increase actually would be $27.50 a year for each worker and the same amount for his employer."

"This appears to be a strange time for the administration to recommend about a $2-billion payroll-tax increase when it, with the support of both business and labor, is committed to income-tax cuts because of the economic situation," AMA said.

Although most Republicans side with the AMA in its opposition to Social Security financing, five of them were among the supporters of the new compromise.

This apparently assured the fiercely contested proposal at least a vote in the Senate. The bill's backers planned to try to tack it to the welfare bill Monday.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration is thinking in terms of a $6.5-billion tax cut if it becomes convinced such action is needed to keep the economy from sliding downward.

Sources close to him said pressure from some of his President Kennedy's present supporters in Congress to feeling is that the time for translate the pledge for a tax reduction has not yet arrived.

But they stressed that the President feels real deterioration threatens the economy he will not hesitate to this effort.

But the President is sensitive to Republican charges in the form of a simplified reduction in maximum rates for corporations and an increase in personal exemptions for individuals.

AT THIS TIME, the Kennedy advisers are talking about the possibility of lowering the present top of 52 per cent on corporations to 50 per cent. This would involve a $5.6-billion reduction for business.

Under this plan the present $900 million exemption for individuals would be raised to $800. This would take millions of low-bracket income taxpayers off the rolls and would involve a revenue loss of about $900 million.

A tax reduction of this kind would fall within the $5.5 billion to $7.5 billion proposed by the United States Chamber of Commerce Friday. But the chamber proposed a much more complicated formula of rate cuts for individuals and a 47-per cent top on corporations.

THE FEELING within the administration is that revisions of this nature should await general tax revisions by the next Congress. In previously barring any emergency reductions, Kennedy announced he will recommend next year across-the-board revisions for individuals and corporations to be effective retroactively to Jan. 1.

Kennedy's advisers know very well that Congress, as well as the President, will have to be convinced of the immediate necessity before any tax reductions can be put into effect.

Republican leaders of both Houses have announced they will oppose any cuts that would blow a bigger hole in the new fiscal year's budget, which already is threatened with a deficit that may run beyond $4 billion. They said such reductions must be accompanied by spending cuts.

To get emergency action there also will have to be some newly found comity between the White House and Democrats like Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va.

BYRD, WHO HEADS the Senate Finance Committee, is against cutting taxes at this time. But Kennedy's men believe he might change his mind if he were convinced that the economy was heading for a tailspin.

JFK and Lopez Caution Meddlers

Mexican people was not over. A throng of about 1,000, shouting "Viva Kennedy," assembled around the tall marble shaft topped by a golden angel, in the Paseo de la Reforma.

FROM THERE he stepped into a bubble-top limousine and was whisked to the Independencia housing development where he scored a new hit with thousands of Mexico City's humble working class. The low-cost development was built two years ago by the Social Security Institute for 15,000 persons.

A 100-member mariachi band struck up tunes, and a whirlwind of multicolored confetti and balloons cascaded about him as in Friday's triumphal procession which American officials said was the greatest ovation of any of Kennedy's visits to Latin-American or European capitals.

The President toured the development, then walked for a block, going from person to person, shaking hands with men, women and children, and drawing smiles and laughs from the crowd of several thousand.

There, as in three previous speeches in the capital, he stressed the theme that economic progress goes hand in hand with political freedom. He said political freedom can lack significance to men and women, unless it also permits them "economic participation in the life of the country."

The crowd cheered as he wound up his talk with the cry: "Viva Mexico! Arriba (upward) Mexico!"

Polaris Subs to Go Into Mediterranean

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The port of the Western Alliance, United States expects to it was learned Saturday. deploy Polaris submarines in the Mediterranean Sea around the end of next year to bolster its nuclear-missile sup-

Assignment of several of the undersea missile-launching craft as a submarine striking force of the U.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean will be different from the action announced last month to "commit" Polaris subs of the Atlantic Fleet to NATO.

DEFENSE Secretary Robert S. McNamara informed North Atlantic Treaty foreign and defense ministers at their May meeting in Athens that the five Polaris subs then on station in the North Atlantic were forthwith "committed" to NATO. He said others would follow.

Military authorities have pointed out that the Athens gesture was of more immediate political and psychological significance than practical military importance. It came at a time when there was deep controversy over NATO's need for its own nuclear-missile force and over France's intention — which America opposes — to build its own independent atomic deterrent.

AS A PRACTICAL matter, authorities have said, no change was made in the real status of the Polaris subs "committed" to NATO. They already were operating beneath the seas at secret stations in the North Atlantic, as key elements of the U.S. Fleet.

They were under command of Adm. Robert L. Dennison, Atlantic Fleet commander, and were "committed" by the Athens announcement to the same admiral in his other capacity as supreme Allied commander for the Atlantic. The Soviet targets they would retaliate against if Europe were attacked already were assigned. It was learned that no change has been made in these targets.

Strike Vote Due at Two Air Firms

Strike votes will be taken today by Lockheed and North American aircraft company employees in the area.

About 35,000 North American employees will vote at 2 p.m. in Wrigley Field, Los Angeles. They are members of the United Auto Workers.

About 37,000 Lockheed workers will vote at 9:30 a.m. in Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles. They are members of the International Association of Machinists.

The two meetings will complete a series of strike authorization votes taken by workers in 41 bargaining units of both units. Included are workers at 21 missile bases who have already authorized strike action.

Fiancee Bails Out Ticket Collector

If Ronald Lee Stevens, 22, of Buena Park is subjected to a little backseat driving today—honeymoon or not—don't blame his bride.

Stevens, of 8335 Santa Fe Drive, was to be married Saturday.

But police here arrested him on three traffic warrants Friday night.

He was booked in city jail on his wedding eve and there his troubles snowballed. A state-wide check showed 18 traffic warrants outstanding in San Francisco and yet another in Downey.

The total bail for all the warrants was set at $437.50. Early Saturday morning Stevens' fiancee and her parents showed up at the police station and paid the $437.50. He was married later in the day.

Strawberry Festival Sets Record

This year's Garden Grove Strawberry Festival netted almost $8,500, a record high.

The festival's executive committee donated $7,000 of these earnings plus $3,000 from last year's fete for the city's children's zoo. The balance will be for operating the 1963 edition, set for May 16 to 19, retiring chairman Floyd Carman said.

Promotions in Fire Department

Eight top level promotions within the County Fire Department were announced Saturday by Chief Keith E. Klinger.

In the reorganization two men will move up from division assistant chief to division chief.

Lathon B. Brewer, 8449 San Juan Ave., South Gate, will be placed in charge of the research and planning division. George E. Brunton, 14423 S. Horst Ave., Norwalk, will be head of fire fighting services at the Los Angeles headquarters.

Poly Grad Wins Honor at UC

Susan M. Forgie, daughter of Mrs. Marion Forgie, 2213 Radnor Ave., was graduated from the University of California at Berkeley, as the top award winner in her class in the school of business administration.

According to reports received from the Berkeley campus, Miss Forgie, who graduated from Poly High in 1958, and later attended State College, was given the Student Achievement Award of the Wall Street Journal.

Harbor Area Tennis Classes Set

Initial sessions of the 13th annual tennis school for boys and girls will begin Tuesday in harbor area playgrounds of the Los Angeles Recreation and Park Department.

Instructor Al Fierman will conduct classes at 11 a.m. at Peck Park Playground and at 1 p.m. at Daniels Field in San Pedro and at 3 p.m. at Banning Playground in Wilmington. Five weekly 90-minute sessions will be conducted.

Orange County Worth up $400 Million

Orange County's taxable worth for the new fiscal year starting today will reach an all-time high of at least $1.8 billion, up about $400 million over the fiscal year ended Saturday.

In most cases, that means cities, the county and special districts can raise more money without increasing tax levies. That's the procedure in most cases, too; budgets generally are up but tax levies are either static or down slightly.

Supervisors expect to get the assessment roll from Assessor Hugh J. Plumb on Monday, and then begin sitting as a board of equalization to hear complaints about assessments.

Plumb's office revalued properties in Santa Ana and Costa Mesa for this fiscal year's levies; they increased slightly. It was part of his routine reassessment practice of revaluing properties every four years. His office "works" specific areas, not the whole county at one time, and so each district is revalued each four years.

Oxley Decision Appeal Studied

Orange County Dist. Atty. Kenneth Williams said Saturday he will ask the District Court of Appeals to reconsider its decision setting aside a lewd vagrancy conviction of Esker O. (Larry) Oxley, the county's former finance director.

He decided, he said, after the Superior Court's appellate division refused to intervene in the case.

Williams had petitioned the appellate division's Superior Court judges Franklin G. West, Raymond Thompson and John Shea to challenge the District Court of Appeals ruling freeing Oxley.

The high court reversed Oxley's conviction last fall on a lewd vagrancy charge involving alleged improper advances to a Santa Ana police vice squad officer.

The high court held that Oxley was improperly convicted of lewd vagrancy since there was no showing that he himself was a lewd person, although the act on which the state based its prosecution was described as "offensive."

Nixon Goes to July 4th Danish Fete

REBILD, Denmark (UPI)—Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon will attend the golden anniversary of a unique American Independence Day celebration here July 4.

The former Republican presidential candidate said he will speak simply as an American and stress the joint heritage of Denmark and the United States, U.S. Embassy and Danish sources said.

This is in the spirit of this celebration, which has been held by Danes and Americans since 1912.

Nixon will be accompanied to Copenhagen Monday by his wife Pat and two daughters, Tricia, 16, and Julie, 14. He makes the first of two speeches after a reception and lunch.

THAT SAME night, Nixon will address a dinner at nearby Aalborg.

Nixon has a strenuous schedule ahead of him on his four-day visit.

On the afternoon of his arrival Monday he will be guest of honor at a U.S. Embassy reception in the embassy residence at Rydhave, north of Copenhagen.

The next day, Nixon and his party will drive through North Zealand, visiting ancient castles, among them, probably Kronborg at Elsinore. Then the party goes to Jutland by ferry and on to Rold Skov, an inn close to the Rebild National Park.

THE VILLAGE of Rebild is on the outskirts of Denmark's biggest woodland, the Rold Forest.

The 50th anniversary celebrations July stem from the homesickness of a group of Danes who met in Racine, Wis., in 1905.

From this grew the Danish-American Association, and then a Chicago brewer, Dr. Max Henius, had the idea of buying a plot of land for the independence celebrations near his childhood home.

THE MONEY was raised, the land turned into a national park and presented to King Christian X in 1912. He, in turn, decreed that on July 4 in perpetuity the land should be considered "a piece of America."

At least six charter flights from the States are expected and ships crowded with Americans have been arriving during the past few weeks.

Show Will Feature Actors' Children

Stars will be Mickey Rooney Jr., Carole Costello, daughter of Lou, and Beverly Hills, daughter of Joan Davis. Other kin of show business greats are under consideration.

Veteran Bill Popular With Lawmakers

By GEORGE J. MARDER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A sleeper bill is coming awake in the election-conscious 87th Congress.

It is a measure to give veterans of World War I government pensions of $102 a month.

Total cost over the years is estimated at $11.5 billion, with an initial outlay of $1 billion the first year.

Chairman Olin E. Teague, D-Texas, of the House Veterans Committee, has labeled it a give-away and says the bulk of the money would go to the better-off and well-to-do veterans, with only a little being shared by those in real need.

The measure long has been kicking around the committee which turned it down after a series of hearings. Teague, a veteran of World War I and wounded several times, was very much against it and a majority of the committee backed him.

THAT PUT IT—so far as the legislative picture is concerned—somewhat in the class of President Kennedy's medical care for the aged bill which also is bottled up in committee.

But the veterans bill has tremendous political appeal. So far members of the House have been voting on such weighty subjects as tax revisions, with a withholding plan on interest and dividends. This isn't calculated to win any congressman votes.

Next to come up was the President's trade bill which has even less appeal. No congressman can expect to attract votes in his locality because he went for the tariff-cutting legislation. Fact is, an "against" vote in some instances might be the most politically than the other way around.

BUT THE veterans mean the boys back home. Its backers! There is something for them to take advantage of that feeling to bypass the Teague committee. They wrote to each member of Congress urging support for a petition which would discharge the committee from further consideration of the bill and bring it directly to the floor for a vote.

They also had veterans and their families write to the law-makers. Result: there has been a rush to get names on the petition, with the number approaching the 219 needed for it to work.

Even those wary of the measure concede that it looks like the petition will go over the top. If it does, the bill is almost a cinch to pass, for it will mean a House majority has signed on the dotted line.

And it is bound to pick up more support, once it is on the floor and in the open. The names on the discharge petition are supposed to be confidential while the signing campaign is on. But there would be nothing secret about the vote on the floor.

LEADERS wonder how many legislators would want to stand up and be counted against a veterans pension bill.

The veterans of World War I organization insists their group warrants special treatment because they didn't get the 11th bill advantages given veterans of World War II. They argue that their members are now elderly and in need of greater government help.

France Sends Legionnaires to New Posts

By ALAIN RAYMOND

ALGERS (UPI)—Independence for Algeria will disperse the French Foreign Legion to posts from Madagascar to Corsica. Some of the tough Legionnaires already have complained about their new surroundings.

The hot and dusty town of Sidi-Bel-Abbes, 46 miles south of Oran in Western Algeria, has been the Legion headquarters for 78 years. The Legion itself, made famous in battle dispatches and in novels like "Beau Geste," is 132 years old.

With Algeria about to be turned over to the Algerian Nationalist Government—men the Legion fought for more than seven years—almost all the 17,000 troops of the Foreign Legion will be withdrawn from Sidi-Bel-Abbes and sent to the outposts of the dwindling French colonial empire.

THE FIRST Infantry Regiment will go to the new Legion base near Marseilles, France. Its Training Regiment will be stationed in a medieval fortress on a hilltop on the French Mediterranean island of Corsica. The First and Second Cavalry Regiments will guard French oil territory in the Sahara.

Other regiments will be sent to Diego Suarez, on the island of Madagascar, and to Djibouti, French Somaliland. It is considered possible a small detachment will remain in Algeria at the Mers-El-Kebir naval base near Oran. The base will remain under French control for 15 years under the Algerian peace settlement.

About 300 Legionnaires already are in Corsica. Eventually, 700 Legion families will be stationed there. Reports from Corsica said the Legionnaires are downcast in the abrupt change from Algeria's dust and violence to Corsica's lushness and peace.

"LOOK AT that smooth water, those black-eyed girls in blue jeans, the aroma of thyme and eucalyptus," one veteran said. "It's going to kill us here. The Legion needs the hard time, the desert, the battle."

For Sidi-Bel-Abbes, the departure plans of the Legion came as a shock. Many have said they will leave when the Legion does.

Troopers already are dismantling their famous Battle Museum for shipment to their new headquarters in France. It contains relics such as the gloved artificial left hand of Legion Capt. Danjou, who fought 2,000 Mexicans with a force of 62 Legionnaires in a battle near Vera Cruz in 1863.

DANJOU'S men held off the Mexicans for nine hours. The hand was displayed to modern Legionnaires at their last parade in Sidi-Bel-Abbes in April.

Another well known feature of the Museum is the Bronze Memorial to the Legion Dead—a globe supported by four troopers wearing the old-style uniforms of the "Beau Geste" era.

Moving Legion headquarters to France for the first time will not mean that Legion troops will operate from there. Under the 1831 ordinance of King Louis-Philippe establishing the service, it must "serve outside the continental limits of the kingdom" in the operational sense.

But the Legion has had men in France for many years, mostly for recruiting purposes. Thousands of young Germans, Italians, Russians, Englishmen, and Americans have passed through the grim Fort Des Vincennes in the eastern suburbs of Paris to sign up for the minimum term of five years and a future of danger, adventure and often death.

JOHN McNAMARA
Directorial Hit

McNamara Show Has Record Run

The play that has broken all records for paid admissions and attendance in Pasadena Playhouse's 45-year-history, "Everybody Loves Opal" starring Zazu Pitts, was directed by Belmont Shore actor-director John McNamara.

"This was my fourth directorial chore for Miss Pitts," said McNamara, "and I hope I do many more. I only wish the world was familiar with her stage talent, rather than the one-dimensional character she has always played on the screen and on TV."

McNamara said he was now making a pilot film for a projected TV series of mystery comedies in which Miss Pitts plays a bungling amateur detective. "It's called, 'Murder, So Help Me!'"

McNamara has been under contract to CBS for the past year. He has appeared in "Portrait in Black" and "Imitation of Life" with Lana Turner, "The Absent Minded Professor" with Fred McMur-ray, "Pork Chop Hill" with Gregory Peck, nearly all the major series shows on TV and has directed shows in Long Beach.

127 Japanese Upper House Seats at Stake

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese voters choose 127 new members of the Upper House Sunday. The election represents a test of support for Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda's economic policies.

No one doubts that Ikeda's Liberal Democrats, together with minor conservative groups and independents, will retain their majority. The chief point of interest is how much the Socialists can gain.

Half the upper house is elected every three years. It lacks the law-making powers of the lower house, so there is little public interest.

Nevertheless, for Ikeda the election comes while his program to double the national income by 1971 appears to be bogged down.

The Socialists point to a recent rise in prices, a stock market slump, and the trend in many key industries toward overproduction.

Ikeda, admitting certain dis-locations, says they are temporary situations.

Ask End to Greek Emergency Measures

ATHENS (AP)—The Greek government has asked Parliament to abolish some of the emergency measures taken to combat communism in the years following World War II.

A communique said the state is strong enough now to deal with "the dangers of unrest" without the need of emergency measures.

Famed Atom Smasher Closed at Berkeley

BERKELEY (AP)—Scientists, Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, threw a master switch and now chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, took the famous and productive atom smasher in history. The 60-inch cyclotron at the University of California's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory cranked out much of the foundation of the atomic age. Weighing in at 220 tons, the smasher was the world's biggest and most powerful when it went into operation 23 years ago today. Within its first year of operation, scientists used the cyclotron to create element 93, neptunium. They came up soon after with plutonium, the major fuel of atomic bombs. Five more elements followed — astatine, curium, berkelium, californium and mendelevium. The cyclotron worked night and day for months producing plutonium in minute quantities.

NEW FRONTIER BAPTISM

Dressed Pool Plunge New Washington Status Symbol

By MERRIMAN SMITH
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Backstairs at the White House: The time has come to examine the New Frontier swimming pool syndrome—in depth. The shallow end of the pool, please. Nothing since Caroline Kennedy first used her father's telephone has captured the imagination of columnists, comics and critics as the practice of leaping, falling or being shoved fully clothed into Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy's home swimming pool.

The Robert Kennedys entertain frequently and somewhat informally at their graceful country place in nearby McLean, Va. Dinner sometimes is served near the pool and on occasion a man or woman takes the plunge.

INFECTIOUS hilarity has been known to follow with fully clothed guest after guest plummeting into the pool. There is no current status symbol in Washington to match it—an evening dress or dinner jacket utterly limp and smelling faintly of chlorine from Bobby Kennedy's pool.

In fact, there are some rather sport reports around town that both Perle Mesta and Gwen Calfritz have bought special pool dresses, but no one has asked them to jump.

Without an iota of exaggeration, the following conversation took place at a Washington party only a few days ago:

FIRST lady: "I hear you were at Bobby and Ethel's the other night."

Second lady: "Yes, it was a wonderful party."

First lady: "Did you go in?"

Second lady: "No, darn it, I stood by the pool for an hour and not a soul noticed me."

First lady: "How sad."

THE TOWERING Washington social status of having been dumped fully clothed into the Robert Kennedy pool may, however, be quite perishable. It will be good for effective upmanship only until word gets around that an entirely new upper crust exists—the IIP (incredibly important people).

The IIP is a man or woman who has been pushed into the Presidential pool at Glen Ora.

The Bobby Kennedy dunkers tend to be a rather talkative lot and the society writers seem to find out about the immersion before the subject has dried out. The IIPs, on the other hand, keep frightfully quiet about their glorious experience because to widen their circle would be to cheapen the honor.

A TRUE IIP is no swim-and-tell. No dashing over to the Red Fox Tavern in Middleburg and telephoning the nearest society editor. The true IIP, Glen Ora division, soaks and suffers silence, warmed by the deep social assurance of knowing one has treaded (water) where JFK dwells.

Nehru Attack on U.S. Brings Aid Cut Demand

By MARIE RIDDER
1 P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Prime Minister Nehru's recent speech denouncing the U.S. and Great Britain for what can best be described as our neutral attitude towards Kashmir has added fuel to an already well started fire on Capitol Hill.

MARIE RIDDER

"Intransigent India" began one Senate speech this week. Indeed a look at India's posture in the last 12 months justifies the description. While decrying the fact the United States would begin nuclear testing the peaceful government of Mr. Nehru invaded Portuguese Goa; while deploring Communist China's aggression on India's northern borders, the Indian government has negotiated for arms — MIG jets from the communist Russians; while welcoming America's First Lady's visit as a gesture of eternal friendship Nehru has deliberately given increased power to Krishna Menon a man whose every utterance is anti-American.

SO AS THE Foreign Aid Bill comes up in Congress this week sentiment runs strong to heavily reducing our appropriation to India. Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri, chairman of the Middle East-South Asia subcommittee says, "There's just a point where you want to say, 'look here if we're going to finance your economy you too might make a little effort.' Mr. Symington had originally suggested a 25 per cent cut in aid to India, a compromise of 10 per cent is now in committee.

"We will, however, still be spending a good deal of money in India—some $775 million," says the senator.

Why, ask many legislators are we giving any money to an India which makes increasingly nasty statements about its benefactors?

"The answer," says Symington, "goes back to our philosophy of aid. The theory is that communism flourishes only in year the West German govt. lands where there is extreme poverty. Certainly the theory after training Indian engineers for Europe. The Mar- neers in Germany they turned shall plan, by making Europe the mill over to the Indians. prosperous. has demolished Not six weeks after the complicated mechanism of gears had been stripped. This reporter met the chief German engineer on his way back to India to start over. Incredible as it may seem, the frustrated man was having difficulty re-entering India. He had stopped off in Pakistan and was thus suspect.

Currently our own technicians are trying to benefit from the German experience. We say we will build a desperately needed steel mill only if American engineers run it until the moment they are confident that the Indians are fully trained. The Indians want to specify a time—two or three years—which we refuse to do. They then say—"you want to colonize us, you are treating us as inferiors." We answer, "No we just want to be sure our expensive equipment isn't ruined." At the moment no agreement has been reached.

BUT IT IS interesting that the Russians are quietly running the mill they built for the Indians. The Soviets send engineers that speak Urdu or Hindi. They settle them into Indian villages. They adopt the standard of living of the region and are thus unobtrusive.

We can't do this. Americans are accustomed to such a vastly higher standard of living we can't expect our engineers to melt into the Indian way of life.

COOKBOOK

Lost Art in Ice Cream?

Maybe the average housewife is so accustomed to buying ice cream and sherbets at the market that she doesn't know how to make them, says Mildred Flanary, in charge of the annual Independent Press-Telegram Cook Book Contest.

"For some reason we have received very few recipes in the classification of ice creams, ices and sherbets," the food editor declared. "But surely there are many recipes for delicious ice treats that housewives would be willing to share with others." There are 40 different classifications in the contest and while entries are heavy in some, there are nine lacking enough to make good competition. Besides the ices, the ones in which few entries have been received include: flaming foods, beverages, egg dishes, dishes made with wine or beer, game cookery, leftovers, potato dishes and quantity cooking.

Three cash prizes will be awarded in each classification and the grand prize recipe will win for some person either a Gaffer & Sattler range or a dishwasher-dryer. Deadline for submitting entries is midnight July 22. The prize-winning recipes and many others will be published in the eighth annual edition of the Cook Book published early in September.

Recipes should be mailed to Mildred Flanary, Cook Book Contest, Independent Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif.

Astronaut Sees 7-Orbit Flight

PORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — "Mercury capsule," he explained, space venture in about a year. Col. John A. (Shorty) Powers, spokesman for the seven if all systems work perfectly. Project Mercury manned flight. The next flight has been set for "late summer," believed to be late September or October 1. Powers showed first film of Astronaut Scott Carpenter's three orbital ride of May 24 to the news executives and guests, attending their state convention. Powers said NASA was currently modifying the Mercury spacecraft for the 18-orbital missions which will wind up the Mercury part of the U.S. space program. "You just don't operate a program as vast and technical as this without having some malfunctions," he said. The "Voice of the Astronauts" said one of the biggest needs NASA had for training currently was a simulator that gave complete space conditions such as pressure, noise, heat G (gravity) conditions and the like on the ground. "We've seen, quite a few of them," he said, "but we're having spurned the tools offered by the administration for forcing prices up."

Turkey Raisers Reject Controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first group of farmers to vote on the issue has rejected the Kennedy administration's cure for depressed farm prices. As a result, the power of the federal government will not be used to limit the production of turkey meat. Government controls were ready for imposition had the ballot gone the other way. Although turkey growers have been suffering from the lowest prices in two decades, the Agriculture Department announced that the growers have spurned the tools offered by the administration for forcing prices up.

Pacifists Landed in Honolulu

HONOLULU (UPI) — Three pacifists who sailed the ketch Everyman II to the U.S. nuclear test-ban zone around Johnston Island were brought back to Honolulu Saturday aboard the Coast Guard cutter Matagorda.

Dr. Monte Steadman, San Francisco, skipper and spokesman for the group, said he brought them back "accomplished part of our objective" by being forcibly evacuated from the nuclear test area. Their 28-foot boat is being towed back to Honolulu by the Coast Guard tender Inwood. It was expected to arrive Monday.

U.S. MARSHAL Charles Gerlach said the boat has been placed under "technical arrest" but its three crewmen were free to come and go as they pleased.

However, they will have to answer a contempt charge in federal court July 9 for violating an order forbidding them to sail inside the 500-mile extended test zone.

They were not inside the zone Friday when Gerlach aboard the Matagorda, served them with the order. But Steadman said he then sailed the boat into the forbidden area and at that point was stopped.

"That was where we were told the Everyman II was under technical arrest," said Steadman. "We asked if we were arrested and were told, 'No, but your boat is.'"

TO AVOID BEING dragged aboard the Matagorda, Steadman and crewmen C. George Bionello, Berkeley, Calif., and Franklin Zahn of Pomona, Calif., left the Everyman voluntarily and moved into the cutter's sick bay where they were confined.

All three men said the Coast Guard was "extremely courteous, and the accommodations quite pleasant."

U.S. Atty. Herman Lum said the Everyman II would be impounded when it arrives Monday, though its crewmen will be permitted to collect their personal belongings.

City Council to Hear Pay Hike Requests

By GEORGE WEEKS
Long Beach budget-making will reach the critical stage this week, beginning Monday with appeals by eight employee groups for substantial salary increases. Largest of the eight, the 2,700-member City Employees Association, will appear first at a special City Council session scheduled for 9 a.m. CEA is seeking an 11 per cent raise plus extra wages for night work and the payment of one-half of accumulated sick leave at the end of each year. Most of the others have made comparable requests. In addition, City Employees Local 112 has proposed a flat $35 monthly boost for "blue-collar" job classifications. OTHER GROUPS scheduled to be heard are the Police Officers Association, Fire Fighters Association, Municipal Engineering Association, lifeguard division, traffic guards and employees in the automotive division. Councilmen indicated they expect to give most of the morning to listening. Whether they will reach a decision Monday was uncertain.

In general, the employee requests are more than three times greater than City Manager John R. Mansell's recommendation. His budget includes $625,695 reserve for a 3.5 per cent general increase effective Sept. 1. Employees in a few classes well below the average in comparable public agencies and private employment would get an extra 5½ per cent. BUT THE city manager's proposals depend in part on the adoption of new revenue measures. Nearly all of these are disputed. Council members have not set a date for considering them. The new tax proposals are the only other key element remaining to be settled in the proposed $30,923,701 operating budget for tax-supported functions. The biggest revenue item is a license levy of 3 cents per barrel on oil production. According to the latest estimate, it would yield $513,696 in nine months of the new fiscal year—a calculation based on an Oct. 1 effective date for the tax ordinance. Although it hasn't been publicly debated, the oil levy is reported under heavy attack from some segments of the industry. It would be the first production fee of its kind for Long Beach. THE ONLY other special revenue measures recommended in Mansell's budget are an increase in business and professional licenses to yield $125,000, a $90,000 license fee against apartment house owners and a 4 per cent tax estimated at $160,000 for transient room occupancies. The room tax would be reserved for a special advertising and promotion fund. Although the new fiscal year began today, the city charter allows the council to deliberate an additional three weeks before adopting a final budget.

U.S. Wages Said No Bar to Trade

By GEORGE ERES
The United States can successfully compete against low-wage countries and is doing so, according to Dr. Paul Sultan, professor of economics at Claremont Graduate School, Claremont. Dr. Sultan said there is considerable evidence to support the view that high wages in the United States are not pricing the U.S. out of the world market. But, he pointed out in an interview with the Independent Press-Telegram, there is the possibility that we could be hurt "if wage increases exceed productivity gain." DR. SULTAN cited the case of Japanese transistor radios as an example of the ability of the U.S. to compete. He reported that Harry Gough, of San Francisco, regional vice president of General Electric, stated GE was not going to build a plant in Japan to take advantage of low wages there to build transistor radios. The company, noting an $8 cost differential in their product and the Japanese product, called in engineers and developed a radio that can compete in the price market. "We are exporting more goods than we are importing," said Sultan, and "we United States."

are not in a desperate situation in cost-price structure because of our remarkable productivity. Statistics, based on the congressional hearings of last December, show we have been competing successfully. SULTAN warned, however, that labor should be very cautious about guarding against a wage-price spiral. "As of the moment we are successfully competing and as long as wage increases do not exceed productivity gain, the argument against high wages in America as pricing us out of the world market is not accurate." He said that many industries are building plants in Japan to take advantage of low wages there to build transistor radios. The company, noting an $8 cost differential in their product and the Japanese product, called in engineers and developed a radio that can compete in the price market. "We are exporting more goods than we are importing," said Sultan, and "we United States."

COED STUDIES IN FIVE LANDS

State College Sophomore Returns to Complete Foreign Service Course

With a host of U.S. students going abroad for study, a pretty Long Beach State College sophomore has reversed the process.

Brown-haired Barbara Pierce, 19, has had the major share of her education far from her native land. The daughter of Mr. and

Mrs. H. M. Pierce of 255 Nieto Ave. has studied in five foreign countries and speaks four foreign languages. IN SWITZERLAND she did her lessons in French. In Peru it was Spanish; in Holland it was Dutch. During 2½ years in Turkey, she was taught in English by her parents. She studied in a South American adobe hut, a Dutch castle and a Swiss chalet. The 5-foot-3, brown-haired coed who was born in Long Beach traveled with her family while her father worked at many of the world's famous oil fields as a petroleum engineer. Her sister, Leslie, a Rogers Junior High School student, was born in Peru.

THE FAMILY returned to Long Beach last year when Pierce went into semi-retirement.

Barbara's grade school education included schooling in Peru, Turkey and Iran. She spent her junior year in high school studying in Switzerland and completed the 12th grade in a Dutch boarding school while her parents were living in Enden, Germany.

Due to her itinerant education, Barbara still doesn't have a high school diploma although she will start her second year of college in September. She had to pass the tough Oxford tests for college entrance.

THE STUDENT who believes that every American abroad is "a small diplomat on his own" is worried about losing her command of languages. She has taken French and German at LBSC where she is employed during the summer as a secretary. The coed is studying for a post in the U.S. foreign service and hopes to be sent to the Far East. "Travel is in my blood," she says.

LOOKING OVER trinkets she has collected in her travels, Barbara Pierce has no yen to stay long in one place.

4-Day Key Club Sessions Open

More than 2,000 young and adult men dedicated to community service will convene in Long Beach today for the 19th annual convention of Key Club International.

Sen. Barry Goldwater will be the featured speaker at the four-day convention, to be held in Municipal Auditorium. He will speak at 8 p.m. Monday.

Key Club International is a high school boys' service organization sponsored by Kiwanis International. The Key Clubs perform the same service work in the high school and teen age community that their Kiwanis sponsors do in the adult community.

Co-chairman for the convention are Spencer Covert of Dominguez High School and Terry Smiley of Long Beach Polytechnic High School.

Clyde Walker of Inglewood represents Kiwanis International on the host committee.

SEN. GOLDWATER Key Club Speaker

OTHER SCHEDULED speakers in addition to Goldwater are H. Andru Turk of Gainesville, Ga., president of Key Club International; I. R. Witthuhn, Milwaukee, Wis., president of Kiwanis International; Rev. Bob Richards, two-time Olympic champion pole vaulter; Karl Knecht, trustee of Key Club International, and motion picture and recording star Pat Boone.

Other Key Clubs assisting in the program, to which representatives from the 57,000 members in 2,400 clubs in the United States and Canada, will come, are Gardena, Jordan, Lakewood, Millikan, Warren, and Wilson, in addition to Dominguez and Polytechnic.

ELECTION of international officers and trustees for the 1962-63 school term will be held Wednesday.

Special posthumous recognition of two of the early leaders of Key Club International will be made during the convocation. To be honored are Frank C. Vincent, who originated the Key Club idea in the Sacramento Kiwanis Club in May, 1925, and Theodore M. de Polo, one of the first presidents of the Sacramento Key Club, who is credited with setting the pattern of youthful service to the community.

The committee said it plans to stage the festival of national arts and cultures in the Los Angeles Sports Arena if arrangements can be worked out. Mrs. Jacobowsky was named fourth vice president for ethnic affairs. Di Carlo was elected treasurer. Andrew was named to the executive committee.

L.B. Vessels on July 4 Gala Visit

The Long Beach-based inshore minesweepers USS Cove and USS Cape will visit Redwood City Monday through Thursday to participate in the Independence Day celebration there.

The only two of their kind in the Navy, these vessels are experimental, designed to be built in almost any boatyard with "off-the-shelf" components. Each of the 112-foot minesweepers carries a crew of three officers and 18 enlisted men. They are constructed of wood and non-magnetic metals to protect them from magnetic mines.

Finnish Teacher Visits L.B. Friend

A leader in training handicapped children in Finland is in Long Beach this week to renew friendships made here eight years ago. Salme Kotkatahti of Helsinki, Finland, is the guest of Municipal Court clerk Ruth M. Baugh, 289 Gaviota Ave., as she was in 1954 when she attended a two-week international conference of teachers of the handicapped here.

Ballet Auditions

Auditions for dancers for the Lakewood Philharmonic Association's ballet, "Through the Looking Glass," will be held at 1 p.m. today and next Sunday in the Mayfair Park Recreation Building, Clark Avenue and South Street.

3 Women Fliers of L.B. Enter Powder Puff Race

Three Long Beach Women 551 Margo Ave. and Mrs. Selva, Palos Verdes Estates, will be among 54 distaff fliers who will take off from Oakland International Airport Saturday to start the 16th annual All-Woman Transcontinental Air Race. Leading the local contingent will be Fran Bera, of 4284 Pepperwood Ave., last year's winner. Others are Mrs. Ruth Gay, 440 Orange Ave.; Mrs. Barbara London, 2516 Via La Merced, Del., 2,547 miles from Oakland.

RULES call for entrants to fly stock aircraft, single or multiengine, 85 to 400 horsepower. Only daylight flying is allowed and winners are determined on a handicap basis computed from established "par speeds" for each make and model of airplane. A purse of $2,500 will be divided among the top five finishers. Trophies will be given as well as additional prize money for the best scores between stops, best in each class of aircraft and other categories.

THE BEIGE and buff color scheme of the new Long Beach Arena — the mighty oval building on the beach now nearing completion — leaves me with a mixed reaction.

Usually my tastes are conservative, and on that basis, I certainly can't kick about the arena colors.

But I find I expected something a little bolder.

Perhaps, when the job is done and the surrounding area cleared of debris and equipment, the structure will make more of the impression I anticipated.

I can see that too much color could make the huge building undesirably garish, and no doubt Architect Kenny Wing knows his color business well. So I'm reserving judgment.

LIKE THE COLORS or not, you'll have to admit the great structure, even though yet uncompleted, is already doing big things for Long Beach's convention business. Howard Jones, the convention bureau mgr., has found it a great asset in landing some important events for the future.

For example, last week Jones went to Miami, Fla., and on the basis of the availability of the arena, landed the 1963 National Square Dance convention.

He succeeded in the face of stiff competition from Dallas, Tex. When you lick the Texans, brother, you've accomplished something.

Jones says the Square Dance affair will be one of the largest conventions ever held in Long Beach and certainly one of the most colorful.

HARBOR DEPT. officials recently came to the aid of the local convention people by making available a big transit shed for the huge California Drycleaners Convention and Trade Show when it appeared the huge arena would not be finished in time.

Other activities booked into the bldg, which reflect the broad cross-section use for which it is designed, include the U.S. National Figure Skating Championships next February, the huge Pacific Hardware Association Trade Show booked for L.B. after an absence of two years, major automobile shows, and an important collegiate level basketball tournament.

It's safe to predict that the arena, which we're finally about to open after years of struggle and pain, will perform marvels in keeping Long Beach in the forefront as a locale for big events of coastwide, national and international importance.

THE TOP of the big oval is flat as a pancake and makes quite a sight from the air, according to people who have flown over it recently.

No particular plan is considered for this immense top area, but here's one idea:

In huge letters of luminous paint, place on it the words: LONG BEACH, the INTERNATIONAL CITY.

This would make an outstanding impression on sky travelers.

ANOTHER suggestion, offered by a wag who knows it will never happen, is to put a race track around the perimeter.

Frank Vessels' quarter horses would make quite a picture racing around the edge, but where would the spectators and the tote boards be located?

Engle, Richards Display Courage in Customs Fight

U. S. SEN. CLAIR ENGLE and State Sen. Richard Richards have earned a public vote of confidence for their courage as well as their good sense in supporting a decision to locate the new U. S. customhouse in the harbor area.

Their view is courageous because it goes against interests in downtown Los Angeles. To illustrate the hazard of such incivility, the Los Angeles newspaper which serves as mouthpiece for those interests printed a bitter editorial attack this week on the two senators. This attack was, of course, merely the L. A. newspaper's way of acknowledging its critical setback in the Senate hearings in Washington last Wednesday. At those hearings, powerful testimony was given once again in behalf of the harbor-area location of the customhouse.

SEN. ENGLE SAID MORE than a year ago that the Los Angeles civic center is no place for a customhouse. His view was vindicated by U. S. Customs Commissioner Philip M. Nichols Jr., who decided in favor of the harbor area after fair, impartial, and exhaustive investigation. Sen. Engle's view was also supported by pro-downtown witnesses, themselves, at last Wednesday's hearing.

Miss Margery Shostack, appearing on behalf of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, said: "Perhaps there are problems in putting the customhouse in the civic center which we didn't foresee when we first backed that site." She added: "But the customs should be kept downtown."

Leonard Webster, president of a customs broker firm, also opposing the harbor area site, stated: "I think everyone now agrees that the civic center site is not suitable."

What makes the civic center site unsuitable? It is too far from the harbor, there is terrific traffic congestion, and land costs are too high. However, these things are true, not merely of a civic center site, but of any downtown Los Angeles site. They are factors which have weighed heavily in the selection of the harbor area site.

SEN. RICHARDS COULD EASILY have remained out of the customhouse fight on the ground that it is a question to be settled by the federal government. But he stepped forward in behalf of good public policy to praise the choice of the harbor area site as "excellent, and the only logical choice that could be made."

For expressing this opinion he is described by the Los Angeles mouthpiece as Tweedledum echoing Tweedledee. This frail, trite sarcasm does not invalidate the truth of what is being echoed. This particular echo has been heard so often that it seems to have driven the Los Angeles mouthpiece into a state of hysteria.

De Gaulle Hails Der Alte Royally

WASHINGTON—Gen. Charles de Gaulle is pulling out all stops in his entertainment this week of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. He is determined to make the show bigger and better than those accorded either Queen Elizabeth II of Great Britain and President John F. Kennedy. He wants to prove that the dominant powers of Western Europe are France and Germany and to stress that point for the benefit of American and British observers. The program includes the flashiest of French parades, a solemn "Te Deum" Mass at the magnificent cathedral of Rheims, and a festive evening at the French Opera. Only one item on the proposed ceremonial agenda was vetoed by the Germans. De Gaulle had wanted to take Adenauer to view the beaches of Dunkirk. The Germans balked at that and vigorously said: "Nein."

IF HUSBANDS AND WIVES followed the Navy's logic, they'd quit having babies. Adm. Hyman Rickover told a bemused House Appropriations committee recently. He had been asked to comment on the Navy's nuclear shipbuilding program.

"The Navy claims that nuclear surface ships are too expensive," Rickover said. "They cost about one and one-half times as much as a conventional ship. This is given as the main reason for not going sooner to nuclear surface ships."

"While an increase of 50 per cent is considered a reason for not going to such naval ships, I have not heard any naval aviators advocating that we should not use naval aircraft even though their cost has gone up about 2500 per cent. Actually, most everything has gone up in cost. Even the cost of having babies has gone up. I believe it is now about 1.7 times what it was in 1950. On that basis, we should stop having babies, but I see no visible evidence of this. I believe that ultimately the Navy will come around to nuclear surface ships."

BILL SUMNER

JFK Farm Bill Blitz Exerted Too Much Political Pressure

WASHINGTON — The administration's campaign for its farm bill was smoothly plotted and generally seemed to be moving along with the relentless efficiency one has learned to expect from it.

Yet it lost, as have a few other administration projects which followed the same campaign style. And while attempting to analyze the surprise defeat of the bill is probably futile and time wasting, possibly it would be a valuable exercise for the President.

The farm bill blitz seemed to have everything. There were arm twistings performed. Deals were offered. Promises made. The outcome was expected to be close, but there was an air of confidence on the House floor. Republican strategists such as Minnesota's Albert Quie quite frankly stated they were on the losing side. So how really can you explain the desertion from the ranks of 48 Democrats? And the solid (all but one) Republican vote? It seems to me that Minority Leader Halleck is given far too much credit for staging this upset. Much of the defeat was built right in the bill and the elements of defeat increased as debate continued.

IT IS THIS last that seems, to expose the administration's greatest flaw in such matters. Apparently, in its high powered planning, there is little thought given to men's honest convictions. There has to be pressure, but it is difficult to believe that there are not men sitting in the House who do, in fact, vote for conviction. This has either escaped the Kennedys or is regarded as of little importance by them.

The basic issue presented in the farm bill was whether farms could continue under subsidies without more rigid controls to cut down on the cost to the taxpayer of the tremendous over-production. Honest men could argue for weeks over such an issue, but, unfortunately, it became clouded. Amendments were included in the bill as it was marked up in committee. Some 20 to 30 amendments were accepted (by the committee) on the floor during debate. All of them were designed to free one section or another from the rigid production quotas of the original bill.

The man who might say to himself that there must be some brake on production would have to reach the conclusion that a gigantic snow job was in operation. Why, for example, should the south be exempt from feed grain quotas? Why should this area be allowed to turn over acreages idled by cotton or tobacco quotas to contribute to a feed grain surplus while the midwest was held under rigid control?

Unfortunately for the administration, that was a good question. The answer was plain. It was a deal with the South which seems to be so important in any piece of legislation. But this bit of political horse trading, along with several others, enabled men to vote against the bill without troubling their minds about the basic issue.

And the political arm twistings the administration seems so adept at apparently backfired in some respects. Rep. Otis Pike, a New York Democrat, wrote to his constituents "my arm aches from the twisting it has taken lately."

PIKE'S newsletter was placed in the Record by Halleck. In it, he complained about the pressure exerted in regard to raising the debt ceiling. He stated, in regard to the farm bill, that he had received "both phone calls and a visit from a friendly representative of the Post Office Department. He didn't want to talk about the eight new applications for post offices which are pending in the district; he wanted to talk about the farm bill."

Pike thought it odd that the man who came to talk about the farm bill came from the Post Office Department and not the Department of Agriculture. "Do you suppose," he wrote, "it has anything to do with these pending post offices?"

More than likely it did, but Pike voted against the bill.

Prayer Decision a Reminder of Historic Oak Grove Pact

WASHINGTON — Near Orange, Va., just south of Washington, there is a grove of ancient oak trees under which was held a meeting 174 years ago which led in last week's Supreme Court decision banning state prayers in public schools.

It is quite a beautiful grove of oak trees, now made into a park by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and the American public has almost completely forgotten what went on there. The Supreme Court justices who wrote the opinion banning state prayer, however, had not.

It was near Orange, Va., that John Leland, a crusading Baptist minister, sat down with James Madison, later president of the United States, and worked out the First Amendment to the Constitution which reads in part:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

who helped pioneer the First Amendment, had migrated to Virginia from Grafton, Mass., not far from Salem Hill where he saw witches hanged. It was a time when Baptist Roger Williams was banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony, and when Quakers were hanged on Boston Common because they sought to worship in their own way. They were hanged and banished by the Puritans who had come to New England to seek religious freedom but failed to grant it to others.

In Massachusetts, Leland's marriage to Sally Devine was not officially recognized because it was performed by a Baptist preacher, and, if he had moved to Connecticut, he could not have been sure of owning property because the controlling Congregationalist church sometimes seized the property of non-Congregationalists.

Before Leland arrived in Virginia, another Baptist, James Ireland, had been horsewhipped, jailed, threatened, pulled from pulpits, ducked in ponds, and driven out of town. Leland was a huge, hulking man and fared better. He preached 3,000 sermons throughout most of

Drown Bid for GOP Office Tests Nixon's Inside Power

THE MOST fascinating political set-to on July's calendar is the head-on clash for the chairmanship of the Los Angeles County Republican Central Committee between incumbent J. A. (Jud) Leatham and Jack Drown, Long Beach magazine distribution agency executive and present secretary of the committee.

Chief fascination lies in the fact that the election poses yet another and major test of the gubernatorial nominee Richard M. Nixon's control over working party organizations. Both Leatham and Drown have pledged unconditional effort toward electing Nixon and the whole GOP ticket but Drown's pledge has the power of more than two decades of personal devotion to Nixon whereas Leatham bids from a pre-primary yesterday of neutrality.

Because the man is Drown, it is obvious that Nixon wants Leatham dumped. It follows, as obviously, that the real issue in the July election is whether Nixon is going to be able to name his own team. It may be unfortunate for Drown that this issue has not been broached in his candidacy.

The issue which Drown and advisors chose to float his candidacy on was his charge that "for the first time in more than 20 years, the Los Angeles County Republican organization emerged from the primary election with a serious deficit."

No sooner was this Drown balloon floated that Leatham shot it down. Leatham said that not only is there no deficit, but it appears that an audit will show a surplus of about $50,000, and that the figures will look very good when compared with 1958, and 1960.

Charles Soderstrom, treasurer of the county committee, called Drown's accusation "completely false" and described Leatham as "perhaps the ablest, most dedicated, hardest working leader we have known."

JACK DROWN Charges Deficit

GOP COMMITTEE members from Long Beach area Assembly districts also checked on the financial status. One reported contact with the county controller who also reported a surplus condition.

If Drown has no defense to this rebuttal (he was unavailable for comment at week's end) he must come up with other issues. His announcement of candidacy intimidated others—for example, that his election would build "a strong, vigorous and unified county committee built on the sound financial basis necessary to insure the confidence of those who contribute to our efforts." In short, the fat cats are more likely to come through for Nixon through Drown, and they may lack confidence in Leatham.

LEATHAM DEFENDS his neutrality not only as a proper position during a party primary but also as the girding for unification of dissident elements after the primary.

He says he has enough promises of support from Assembly district leaders to make him feel assured of reelection. When he announced he would seek the post again he advised that he would arrange a meeting with Nixon "next week" to aim for effective committee cooperation.

The only "next week" development was Drown's candidacy. Leatham said he conferred with "some Nixon officials" and has been waiting for reply. Although he grants his neutrality may have been "abrasive" to both Nixon and Shell people in the primary, he made this unstinting pledge after the vote: "I worked hard and long in Dick Nixon's presidential campaign in 1960 and intend to work even harder and longer for his election this year. I will do this whether or not I am reelected."

Well-Treated at Seattle Fair

EDITOR: There has been so much written adversely about conditions at the Seattle World Fair, that we wanted to tell about how much we enjoyed it and how well we were treated. We have been to the Chicago Worlds Fair, the one in San Diego and also the one on Treasure Island in San Francisco.

WE LEFT Long Beach June 2 without reservations of any kind, stopped along the way to visit friends and relatives, all telling of the dire consequences of arriving in Seattle without advance reservations. We stopped in Portland, went to the information bureau there in which they have the Expo Lodging set-up, told them what we wanted and within 10 minutes had our reservations made. We got accommodations on Queen Anne Hill, a very lovely section of Seattle, brand new with all cooking facilities, a double bed plus a let-down double bed in living room, all for $16.00 per night. We saved from $1.50 to $2.00 per day on parking our car, as we could leave it there and walk to the fair. However, after walking as much as one does at a fair we were very happy to ride home on the bus which was only 20 cents. We had signed up for four nights but extended it to five.

AS TO THE FAIR, of course one has to stand in lines for anything that is popular. We stood in line three hours to get to have lunch in the restaurant up in the Needle, but it was well worth it. We stood in line one hour to get into the Science Bldg., and it too was well worth it. People stand in many lines at Disneyland and one never hears a word about that. We feel that it is a very wonderful fair and if people would just make the effort to see it all as we did, they would not be complaining. Also, we feel that we were not gouged by prices at any time.

Agrees With High Court Ruling

EDITOR: Why so much dismay over the Supreme Court ruling that it is unconstitutional for an official prayer in public schools?

I am a great believer in prayer. But we can pray in our private homes. And we have our church schools. I believe in teaching of religion but not in public schools.

Religion should not be forced on any one. I am against the whole concept that so many parents have today, that the school teacher should act as the religious adviser substitute for parents, thereby relieving them of their duties.

The home and the church are where the children should be taught their prayers, or in parochial schools.

Never should any type of religious ceremony be allowed in public schools. Religious freedom is too precious a heritage to allow even the minute infringement upon it.

Answers Johovich Attack on Hosmer

EDITOR: Mr. Johovich's criticism of Congressman Craig Hosmer's vote against the administration Farm bill shows only one thing. Mr. Johovich shares Secretary Freeman's belief in dictatorship over farmers. The administration wants a law which says, "We will tell you farmers what to do and see that you do it."

It's very simple. Brbe if you obey, bankruptcy if you don't.

Obviously Congressman Hosmer doesn't believe in dictatorships. Mr. Johovich apparently does.

Languages in the News

By Charles F. Becker and Robert Shropshire-Davis

The recent world soccer championship played in Chile has helped focus attention on the increasing popularity of soccer as an international sport. Soccer is called "Association Football" in England and also soccer, an abbreviation of Association. Most countries, along with England and France, refer to soccer as "football," with some spelling variations:

Spanish (and Russian)—futbol, German — Fussball,

Portuguese — futebol, Swahili — futboli, Czech — fotbal, Swedish — fotboll, Norwegian and Danish — fodbold.

Other languages eschew the English word for their own: Italian — calcio (kick), Polish — pilka (ball), Indonesian — sepak bola (kick ball), Hawaiian — popopeku (ball kick), Greek — poposphairon (foot sphere), Hebrew — kadurei regel (ball foot), Arabic — kuratalqadam (ball the foot).

The American variety of football is considered too violent by most other nations. But even this is surpassed in roughness by Gaelic football, referred to in its own land as cloiche (game ball), and, to say the least, it is quite briomar (lively).

Thoughtful Planning Many Years Ago Gives Long Beach Ample Water Today

That refreshing drink of pure water which you may have just taken was available because, thankfully, Long Beach had farsighted men at the helm years ago.

Nature has brought this area of Southern California the finest in climate and living conditions but apparently she overlooked the fact that an immense population center was to develop between the foothills of the mountains and the ocean.

The area is blessed with pleasant weather the year around. Too pleasant, in fact, to provide the water necessary to meet the needs.

But Long Beach residents face no problems of water. They may sprinkle their lawns or gardens day in and out; may shower or bathe, do the laundry and housework using all the water they desire without reservations.

Farsighted Leaders

Some areas of the nation under go hardships each summer due to water shortages—and some of those places aren't too far from Long Beach.

This city might well feel the pinch of water shortage today had not those farsighted city leaders made plans years ago to meet the needs of tomorrow. And, we today enjoy this water at a cost far lower than many other cities must pay.

The oldest city utility, the Water Department was started as a function of the city July 1, 1911 when the city of Long Beach had 18,000 residents.

The city at that time purchased two private firms that had been supplying well wa-

BRENNAN S. THOMAS
General Mgr., Chief Engineer

Water rates are set by the commissioners and approved by the City Council.

Rates Remain Low

From the start, the Water Department has tried to provide Long Beach residents with the lowest water rates possible. It was never in business to create a big profit. That is why the rates remain low in comparison to other cities.

Water is costly, it can't be denied. The city uses 32 wells to provide 70 per cent of the water needed. The rest is purchased from the Metropolitan District and it comes from the Colorado River.

The well water is far from free. Pumping from great depths is costly. Then in addition, there is a tax charged by the Water Replenishment District for pumping from the wells in the district. Last year the tax was $5.75 per acre foot, and the Water Department paid a tax of $220,000. This year the rate will be $6.63 per acre foot, and the Water Department is budgeting $260,000 for its tax. The money is used to purchase water from the Metropolitan Water District and spread it underground at Whittier Narrows.

Proud of Record

The water board members are proud of the record of service provided this city in furnishing a vast water supply at an extremely low cost. Predecessors paved the way for this huge utility to meet the needs and the current board is looking well into the future in their thoughts and planning.

The fine new building visitors will tour is another source of pride of the department. It was built without taxing the department budget or city funds. The money came from land sold for the new San Diego Freeway, thanks to the thoughtfulness years ago in obtaining the land for water rights.

While desalinization of sea water and reclamation of waste water undoubtedly will help solve the water shortage in years to come, there is no indication that such progress will be reached in the near future.

Must Look Ahead

Therefore, the Long Beach Board of Water Commissioners must plan for tomorrow, next year and years to come. The growth of Long Beach is certain to continue and the demand for water will grow accordingly.

The current Water Commission is composed of five businessmen who are cognizant of the water needs in Long Beach.

Glen A. Gerken, the president, has been a member of the board four years. He is a prominent Long Beach Realtor.

Ross E. Hall, the vice president, has been a board member six years. He is the former owner of Century Lumber Co.

Fred S. Dean is the senior member in point of service, having been on the board 11 years. He is president of Dean's Electronics and a director of the Metropolitan Transit Authority.

Oliver W. Speraw, a member eight years, is district manager of Walker & Lee, Inc., Realtors.

Everett Houser, now on his second year, is a well known Long Beach attorney.

Thomas Guiding Hand

The board, like previous boards for many years, depends largely upon the guidance of Brennan Thomas whose life for 38 years has been dedicated to the water problems of Long Beach. The past 17 years he has been the general manager, directing the department through the historic growth of Long Beach.

Water Dept. to Observe Open House

To help you get better acquainted with the Long Beach Municipal Water Dept., and help celebrate its 51st year of service, open house will be observed by the department at its fine new office building.

The open house will be at the administration building at 1800 E. Wardlow Road, Friday, July 6, from 6:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday, July 7 and 8, from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The Board of Water Commissioners, headed by President Glen A. Gerken, and the Water Department staff headed by Brennan S. Thomas, general manager and chief engineer, will be the hosts.

With no cash on hand, the department made its way.

Water Levels Fall

As the city grew, the water levels in the wells dropped. Between 1924 and 1929 there was a drop of 53 feet.

City and civic leaders, recognizing the need of bolstering the water supply of the future, recommended buying land for more wells and joining in Metropolitan Water District of Southern California.

The election Feb. 17, 1931 gave full approval to these suggestions and created the Board of Water Commissioners.

The decision at that election really determined the future of Long Beach for without the present water setup, Long Beach could never have realized its great growth, city officials now stress.

The department purchased 355 acres of land for well development which is known today as Heartwell Park. It is just south of Carson Street and extends from Lakewood Boulevard to Pioneer Boulevard.

Thomas Is Manager

The Water Commission was given, by the voters, complete and exclusive power to supervise, control and regulate and manage the department. It appoints the general manager, who is chief administrative officer and he serves at the pleasure of the board.

Brennan S. Thomas, who has been with the department 38 years, has been the general manager and chief engineer the past 17 years.

Many of today's fine improvements which permit delivery of water to more than 82,000 customers yet with 35 fewer employees than in 1950 when there were 55,000 customers, have been conceived and worked out by Thomas and his staff.

Magoo Takes on New York Show

By EARL WILSON

New York—"What kills me about people in Hollywood," says Jim Backus, "is that when they say 'You're going to spend three months in New York' it's like I was going to Rangoon..."

Jim, the "Mr. Magoo" of TV, and his wife Henny, have settled down in Manhattan for Jim to take over "Talent Scouts."

"We all went out there from New York," Jim heatedly points out. "They are the people who sit in the Brown Derby and say 'I miss the concerts, I miss the good conversation.' After all, New York may be sticky in August—but Burbank—that's a charming place in August, too!"

Jim's able to go away back to the early radio days in New York—back before there was an AFRA union—"You had no idea what your check would be"—and that's what amuses him about some of the big-salaried Hollywood stars now.

"THE BEL AIR fire, you know, was really a funny fire..."

"Because it was a chile fire and nobody was hurt. The Red Cross set up a field kitchen but nobody showed up because they didn't serve vichyssoise."

"Our house was saved because we were practically on the golf course. There were people who fled and got blankets and sat there on the edge of the golf course watching their homes burn down. Well, two guys played right through on the golf course in spite of the fire."

"And their only comment was, 'Would you mind not sobbing, Lady?'"

JIM SAYS HENNY had the right idea about saving valuables. "Throw them in the pool! Then they can't burn. I threw in a drip-dry suit."

When Jim finally got going in New York radio after coming here as a kid from Cleveland, he found he could do a whole show—including rehearsal—in an hour and 15 minutes, and earn a fast $21.

Sandra Church Plans Night College Course, Days on Brando Movie Set

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress Sandra Church, one of this year's more glamorous high school graduates, isn't through with education yet.

"I expect to enroll at Columbia University in the fall," says she, after finishing a year of high school work in three months.

Lots of bright stu-

YOUNG STAR AT STUDIES

Sandra Church, studying her textbooks in Hollywood, plans to go on to college while she continues her acting career. In her early 20s, she has just graduated from high school which she left a few years ago for a role on Broadway.

dents have done that—but none while playing Marlon Brando's wife in a movie.

A few years ago, Sandra was a junior at Immaculate Heart High School in Hollywood. A friend sent her photo to the Theater Guild which was looking for a replacement for Janice Rule in the Broadway company of "Picnic."

SHE GOT the role, and didn't return to Hollywood until she was called to play Brando's wife in "The Ugly American."

In the meantime, she scored on Broadway as the young Gypsy Rose Lee in "Gypsy."

"I love New York. But like most child actresses—I've been in the business since I was 5—I resented having my education interrupted, even for stardom," Sandra says.

"It really bothered me. So I went to the Immaculate Heart and arranged to study nights and weekends so I could get my diploma. It was hard work but I enjoyed every minute of it."

"I EXPECT to be in New York this fall, so I plan to take courses at Columbia. It may take some years but I eventually hope to get a degree."

"I give myself projects to complete—and I always do," she adds.

After "Gypsy," her project was a three-month trip to the Orient.

"My mother and my agents were horrified," recalls Sandra.

"But I couldn't think of any movie or stage role that would compensate for my trip to the Orient—so I went."

SHE TRAVELED alone, visiting such places as Nepal and Kyoto, Japan, where her great aunt, Mary Florence Denton, was a Presbyterian missionary for most of her 90 years.

Sandra says her next project is Europe.

She alienates herself from show business when she travels.

"It's very easy to do because I'm mostly alienated even when I'm in it," she explains. "I go to parties and people want me to sing. I just won't sing unless I'm on stage. I never read the movie columns, or gossip columns of any kind. I do read the notices for the Broadway openings."

"There's too much happening of real importance in the world to bother with trivia."

SHE ATTRIBUTES her attitude about show business to the fact that she grew up in it.

Sandra was born in San Francisco but moved to Los Angeles as a child after her father's death.

Good U.S. Image Hard Sell Job

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Hardest thing to sell in Hollywood, says producer Joe Pasternak, is something that will give America a good image overseas.

Pasternak is a Hungarian immigrant who is rated one of the top all time movie producers in Hollywood. His name on a movie from Deanna Durbin days to his current "Jumbo" means entertainment and showmanship.

But he's up against a roadblock with a proposed television series called "The Fairest Lady Of Them All."

"I WANT to do a series with the Statue of Liberty as the hostess and tell the stories of immigrants who have come to America and made good—a Knute Rockne, an Albert Einstein, an Andrew Carnegie or a Helena Rubinstein."

"And there will be stories about some who goofed—Al Capone, for instance. I don't want to be maudlin, just entertaining, but I do want the world to know what America means to us who came through Ellis Island," says,

Pasternak. But his opposition comes from networks and advertising agencies which tell him: "Flag waving is not commercial."

Two Plan Trip to Straits of Magellan

By VERA WILLIAMS
The only trouble with planning a trip to the Straits of Magellan is that everyone wants to go along. So say Rod Henselman and Robert Ferris as they brush up on their Spanish, discard unnecessary articles and take occasional "dry runs" for the 30,000 mile, nine-month trip they will undertake in September. Henselman, 5781 Campo Walk, social studies and English teacher at Wilson High School, on his sabbatical leave, plans the trip so he can teach Latin American history, geography and current conditions upon his return.

Ferris, 626 N. Pacific Ave., Seal Beach, former photography instructor at Wilson, just back from a year's trip to Tahiti on the 48-foot schooner Duchess, hopes to get first-rate pictures. He is taking along still and movie cameras and a tape recorder for the purpose.

THEY'LL MAKE the trip in Henselman's 10-foot, three-quarter ton Ford pickup camper, which has shown its prowess in a lot of camping trips, principally to the Henselman cabin on the Rogue River in Oregon.

established by U.S. aid, but also those established by China, Germany and other countries. They'll travel the Pan-American Highway to the Strait of Magellan at the southern tip of South America—but they realize the highway looks a good deal better on the map than it does on the terrain. Part of the time they'll have to beat their way through the jungle. Part of the way they'll have to travel by boat.

"WE EXPECT to live on the land, as much as we can," says Ferris. "We'll have fruit and vegetables. We'll fish. A lot of the lizards are pretty good eating."

"—So are rattlesnakes," adds Henselman. "Rattlesnake meat tastes like chicken." Ferris isn't married. What will Henselman's wife, Frances, assistant public librarian in charge of the Administration Division, do while he is gone? "I'll work for a new main library building," she says.

THERE DEFINITELY isn't room for you to go along—even if you promise to catch lizards and the rattlesnakes—but to make you envious this is the itinerary thus far worked out: Long Beach to Mexico City via Monterrey. Through Tehuantepec Peninsula to Yucatan, visiting Mayan ruins, Guatemala City and environs, including Lake Atitlan, Antigua, Chichicastenango. All Central American countries and their capitals. From Panama portage by boat to Buenaventura, Colombia.

Up the Cauca Valley visiting the industrial cities of Medellin and Cali and the village of Cachanipa. Santa Fe de Bogota to Ecuador, including Quito. Side trip to the Galapagos Islands.

Peru, exploring Lima, Arequipa and Iquitos on the headwaters of the Amazon. Down the Atacama desert and the central valley of Chile. Cross Andes by the Uspallata Pass to Argentina, visiting Tucuman, Mendoza and Cordoba.

Buenos Aires, south through the pampa regions visiting Bahia Blanca and Comodoro Rivadavia. South with side visits to the lake regions west of Patagonia in the foothills of the Andes.

Punta Arenas, most southerly city of the world.

PUC DELAYS ACTION ON SALE PERMIT

City May Bid for Water Firm

Public Utilities Commission action on an application for approval of sale of Fairacres Water Co.—last privately owned water company in the city—has been postponed at the request of the city of Long Beach.

PUC put over to Aug. 2 action on the application of W. R. Quinney and Joe Quinney, his wife, owners of Fairacres, 5602 Atlantic Ave., to sell to Earl P. Kent Jr. for $60,000.

The PUC put off the decision after Henry Jordan, of the Franchise Bureau, sought the delay at the request of the Water Department. Jordan said since Fairacres was up for sale, the city wanted an opportunity to survey the concern with an eye to purchase.

request by Jordan was the first official pronouncement that the city was interested in the property. Fairacres serves approximately 725 customers in the area bounded roughly by South Street, California Avenue, Locust Avenue and Market Street.

The concern has three water wells, one of which is inactive at the moment.

WHILE FAIRACRES is the last remaining privately owned water company in the city, there are three small mutual water companies which continue to operate their own wells.

These mutuals—operated by the member-users of the water—are:

Northgate Garden Water Co., serving 150 customers in the area north and east of Long Beach Boulevard and Artesia Street at a flat monthly fee of $2; Orchard Park Water Club with 116 customers paying $1.50 a month each in the area roughly between Louise Street, 52nd Street, Long Beach Boulevard and the west city boundary and Cherryvale Water Users Association with 27 members who pay a flat $2 a month and are in the area north of Curry Street between John and Cherry Avenues.

FAIRACRES and the mutual users have one distinct advantage on city Water Department users — the rate. City water users pay a 60-cent-a-month minimum fee even if they don't use any water and average a $4-a-month metered bill.

There are no meters on the mutual or Fairacres water users homes. They can run water all month at the flat fees of $1.50 and $2.

These concerns operate under what Jordan calls "grandfather rights." They were in existence before the territories came into the city.

Boating in Safety Stressed

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Today marks the kickoff of National Safe Boating Week. Just why we must emphasize this week any more than another is a matter of conjecture, because boat safety for cities along the Southern California coast should be the mainmast for all boaters every week—and every day.

There is no time for relaxing in our drive for boating safety. Yet, the practice of boating safety in itself is not hard work. Once a person swings into habits, those chores become routine and soon we find it fun, particularly in view of the fact that the lives we are saving may be those of ourselves and our friends.

MILLIONS of Americans are finding a new world of fun on the nation's waterways. Here in California we rank second in numbers of boats registered. Only Michigan surpasses us. And if the hours spent in boating were added, no doubt California would rank ahead of all states, namely because boating here is possible almost sure is higher, but as Mrs. Sybella Coughnour, secretary of the Orchard Park Water Club, states: "The lower pressure is more than made up for by the lower cost of water." She also believes her well water is cooler and "tastes better."

While rates in the mutuals and Fairacres are low compared to municipal rates, there is the question of upkeep. Whenever something goes wrong, the association members must assess themselves for costs or take the cost from the treasury, if it is available. Such was the case in the Cherryvale Water Users Association recently. A pump went out and members assessed themselves $25 each. There was a break in a line in the street. Money in the treasury paid for that.

CITY spokesmen, while looking on the mutuals as "horse-and-buggy-days" operations, state there is no attempt to take over the areas, but some mutual members feel the city "would like to take over."

THE CITY now serves some of the residents in the areas served by the mutuals and the private concern, but there is no campaign on to attract customers, a spokesman said.

The Mutuals and the private concern cannot extend their territories. As one city spokesman said, "the only way they can go is up. If multiple-story structures are built in these areas they will increase users, otherwise they are limited."

While the Water Department said a spokesman does not push for expansion to these areas, it does look askance at the fact that the "grandfather-rights" districts all are served by Water Department hydrants for fire service.

"They pay nothing for this water service."

The usual reply is: "We pay taxes for fire protection, don't we?"

Sailor Guilty in Car Death

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—A submarine sailor was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $400 Friday after pleading guilty to a charge of misdemeanor manslaughter in the traffic death of a Long Beach man. He is Michael G. Boney, 21, of the Submarine Blue-back. He was charged in the Dec. 7 death of Paul F. Wandrey, 51, on U. S. Highway 80. The jail term and $225 of the fine were suspended by Municipal Court Judge Donald Smith.

BOATERS EVERYWHERE may regard this as a most incredible picture. Yet it is an official U. S. Coast Guard photograph, taken in San Francisco Bay not too long ago. The boat, if it can be called that, was a 12-foot, flat-bottomed craft with a well in the middle for an outboard motor. There were 12 men aboard and only two were wearing life jackets. They were construction workers and made such a trip — nine miles — through some fairly nasty water twice daily. This picture is printed as a reminder that Safe Boating Week starts today.

Boating is fun if the skipper knows what he is doing and if his boat is properly equipped. Chances are that he doesn't know what he is doing unless he has taken some form of training since he bought a boat and donned a captain's hat.

Building, Car Industries Economic Bright Spots

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Despite uncertain stock market and talk of recession possibilities, some bright lights gleamed on the economic scene in this last week of the first half of 1962.

Two of the shiniest spots were the construction and automobile industries.

Even so, the economy was not moving at as fast a pace as when it began the year.

President Kennedy, commenting on the question of an income tax cut this year to spur business, said at his news conference:

We will continue to watch the economy. There are good signs in the economy and signs which are not so good."

CONSTRUCTION activity bounded to a record high in June, the Commerce Department reported. Total spending for new construction put in place reached an annual rate of almost $63 billion, up $2.2 billion over the May rate.

The annual rate for private projects was $45.1 billion against $43.5 billion in May. Public construction's rate totaled $17.9 billion, compared with $17.3 billion a month earlier.

For the first six months new construction totaled $27.7 billion, a gain of six per cent over the $26.1 billion outlay in the 1961 period.

As an indication of the future, contract awards in May totaled $4,008,718,000, a gain of 14 per cent over a year earlier. Automobile sales in the middle 10 days of June were the best for the period in seven years. Dealers delivered 205,541 American-built new passenger cars, a rate 17 per cent above a year ago. However, this was 4 per cent below the mid-May pace.

CAR PRODUCTION for the year passed the 35 million mark this week. Output for the week recovered to an estimated 127,000 cars after settlement of a strike against a Ford Motor Co. stamping plant which put assembly lines out of action. Production last week was down to 107,573.

New statistics from the Commerce Department—covering the month of May—showed small climbs for employment, personal income and industrial output.

On the other hand, new orders received by durable goods factories were unchanged from April, and retail sales were off a little from record-breaking April.

Machine tool orders, a central Congo government, another $10 million to help given during this fiscal year the African nation pay for its to bolster the Congo's import program.

U. S. Giving Congo Another $10 Million

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States is giving the Congo government another $10 million to help given during this fiscal year the African nation pay for its to bolster the Congo's import program.

STEEL PRODUCTION last week dipped to its lowest level in more than 16 months with output of 1,563,000 tons off 1.5 per cent from the previous week.

Most steel executives expect demand to continue its decline in July. As a result, some steel plants will extend the time of vacation close downs.

Sensitive since the Kennedy administration forced it to roll back a price increase, the steel industry winced under two new developments. The Justice Department subpoenaed the expense account records and private telephone numbers of executives of major companies. This was a part of a New York grand jury investigation of alleged price fixing. And Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., said industry leaders will be summoned before the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee for questioning about prices, profits, costs and productivity.

THE UNITED Steel Workers of America signed a new labor contract with major aluminum producers which was similar to that reached with the steel industry last spring. It provides for improved fringe benefits but no wage increase.

Elsewhere on the labor front, Eastern Air Lines remained grounded by a strike of flight engineers in a dispute over the number of men required in the cockpit of a jet airliner. Pan American World Airways obtained a court injunction which prevented the engineers from striking for 10 days.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Edict on Prayers Appears to Be an All-Exclusive Ban

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American parents learned last week that it is against the law for their kids to recite official state prayers in public schools.

This is so, the U.S. Supreme Court said, because no governmental body can legally establish or sanction an "official religion." To do otherwise, it said, abridges the First Amendment of the Constitution which governs traditional separation of church and state, even though the prayers are non-compulsory and non-sectarian.

The historic 6 to 1 edict appeared broad enough, if enforced, to ban all religious observances in the schools, even Easter pageants and the singing of Christmas carols.

IN THE EXPLOSIVE debate that followed, President Kennedy offered parents what he called an easy remedy: "We can pray at home and attend our churches with more fidelity and thus make true religion and prayer much more real to our children."

He declined to say in a nationally televised press conference whether he thought the court was wrong. Instead, he cautioned that if America is to maintain its constitutional system, the people must support the court, "even if they disagree with it."

Many congressmen and churchmen fulminated. Many legislators introduced constitutional amendments to overturn the ruling, but there was no hope for final action in this crowded session.

The test case arose in New York state where Jews, non-believers, Unitarians and the Ethical Culture Society challenged a state board of regents prayer. The court's guiding opinion was written by Justice Hugo L. Black. He said that while the prayer was non-compulsory, there was nevertheless "an indirect coercive pressure when the power, prestige and financial support of government is behind a particular religious belief."

NEW TROUBLE FOR Kennedy loomed in the Orient. He warned Red China it would court war if it attacked Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist Chinese bastion on Formosa. He took his position—a reaffirmation of that taken by President Eisenhower seven years ago—after the mainland Communists began massing major divisions and guns opposite the Nationalist-held offshore island of Quemoy and Matsu.

The President said the purpose of the buildup was not clear—whether it was offensive or defensive—but that the U.S. position "must be clearly understood." He declared that any attempt to use Quemoy and Matsu as a bridgehead to Formosa or the Pescadores would bring "necessary action."

He also warned Chiang that the U.S. wants no military action in the Formosa area, Chiang has been threatening to invade the famine-ridden mainland but has pledged he will not act without U.S. consent. This he won't get, unless attacked.

Kennedy scored a smashing victory in Congress when the House passed his tariff-cutting foreign trade bill over powerful Republican opposition.

THE MEASURE GIVES the President broad powers to negotiate tariff reductions not only with the new European Common Market, but with other free countries, thus promoting a stronger free world economic front against Russia. Nikita Khrushchev, meantime, bitterly attacked the common market as a form of "economic war on other countries."

The President and Mrs. Kennedy flew to Mexico for a three-day goodwill visit that featured political talks on Latin America and lavish ceremonial functions. Mexican President Adolfo Lopez Mateos' government has openly condoned Fidel Castro's Communist take-over in Cuba. On his arrival, Kennedy called for "peaceful revolution" in the Western hemisphere, with emphasis on social and economic change instead of tyrannies and bloodshed. Anti-Kennedy rallies cooked up by Mexican leftists fizzled out.

In other news spheres, Kennedy berated House Republicans and some Democrats who killed his farm bill. He said the action would cost the taxpayers a billion dollars and he urged the voters to give him a bigger working margin in the next Congress.

HE SIGNED INTO LAW a bill extending present excise taxes but ending, effective Nov. 15, the present 10 per cent tax on railroad and bus fares and reducing the 10 per cent airline tax to 5 per cent.

The Atomic Energy Commission exploded the largest underground nuclear shot in U.S. atomic weapons history at its Nevada proving ground. It was the 39th in a series. Atmospheric tests continued in the Central Pacific.

The house of delegates of the American Medical Association met in Chicago and gave overwhelming support to the AMA's unyielding battle against Kennedy's medical-care-for-the-aged bill. But the members did not refuse to participate in the program if it becomes law.

Convicted Soviet spy Dr. Robert A. Soblen, 62, jumped $100,000 bond in New York and fled to Israel where he was arrested. Soblen was due to surrender to begin serving a life sentence. Israel was asked to hand him over.

The United States Steel Workers of America (AFL-CIO) signed new contracts with major aluminum companies which omitted wage increases in exchange for some fringe benefits. Secretary of labor Arthur H. Goldberg praised the union for "a constructive, non-inflationary settlement."

NO-HITTER FOR SANDY KOUFAX!

Dodger Star Ks 13 Mets

Year's 3rd Perfecto Registered Before 32,769 at Stadium

By GEORGE LEDERER

The skyscraper emblem of the New York Mets is one story today, and a big one at that.

Sandy Koufax turned one Dodger wild streak into another Saturday night as he pitched a no-hitter and won, 5-0. The crowd of 32,769 was as wild about Sandy as eight Dodger pitchers were in issuing 27 walks the past two nights.

Sandy's masterpiece was the third no-hitter in the major leagues this year and the first in the National since Warren Spahn victimized the Giants, April 28, 1961.

BO BELINSKY of the Angels tossed a no-hitter against Baltimore, also at Dodger Stadium, earlier this season and was, in turn, a no-hit loser to Earl Wilson of the Red Sox last week.

Koufax struck out 13 and walked five in becoming the first Dodger no-hit pitcher since Sal Maglie, who picked on the Phillies in 1956. With the help of two double plays, Koufax faced only 30 Mets and none reached second base.

The entire Dodger bench mobbed Sandy seconds after Felix Mantilla had hit into a force play for the final out. There were three such plays in the ninth inning after pinch-hitter Gene Woodling led off with a walk.

THE COUNT on Woodling went to 3-1 and on nine occasions Koufax was confronted with a full count. He made

LEDERER ON AIR
Dodger writer George Lederer will be interviewed by Chuck Bennett on today's Warmup show over KFI starting at 1:05 p.m.

138 pitches and the five walks were a season high for him.

Each strike and each out drew a roar and each ball a groan in the tense final round. Plate umpire Mel Steiner called a strike on Richie Ashburn while he backed out of the box, waiting for Joe Christopher to run for Woodling.

Ashburn, famous as a destroyer of no-hitters, gave it his best. He lined a foul to left, 10 feet outside the chalk line, then tipped another before he forced Christopher.

ROD KANEHL quickly forced Ashburn and Kanehl was the final out as Mantilla tapped to shortstop Maury Wills.

It was Wills who made the one difficult play of the evening and surely took a hit from Frank Thomas to start.

Angels Applaud All-Star Selections

BILLY MORAN
"It's Like a Dream"

T. Davis Lone Dodger Pick

By ROSS NEWHAN
L. P. Staff Writer
NEW YORK — The halos on the caps of Leon Wagner and Billy Moran glowed with a silver lining Saturday. In fact, so did their faces.
Informed their fellow American League players had voted them to first-string berths on the All-Star team, Moran and Wagner were like two children on Christmas morning.
"It's the biggest thrill

I've ever had," exuded Wagner, the All-Star left-fielder. "I haven't woke up yet."
"It's wonderful," exclaimed Moran, the All-Star second baseman. "I expect to wake up and find it's all a dream."
As they stepped off cloud nine to pose for pictures with Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, Angels' manager Bill Rigney said: "I bet there are some teams who've been in baseball 50 years and have yet to have two All-Stars the same season. It's a well deserved honor for both of them. No one in the league has played better than Billy. For Leon, well, it's been a long road back."

This spring, a bet that Moran and Wagner would end up in the All-Star game would have won you 100-1 odds and further substantiated Mr. Barnum's theory that a sucker is born every minute.

Wagner and Moran went to work on their faults. Billy stepped back from the plate, got a better look at the pitch, and began hitting home runs. His fielding followed in a similar pattern (Only three errors in 72 games) and his batting average has played tag with the .300 mark last season.

Dream Finals for L.B. Girls?

By BOB MARTIN

Will it be Billie Jean against Darlene in the Wimbledon finals?

Few, if any, tennis fans would have made such a prediction before the tournament began Monday. The odds still are against it. But now that both girls have reached the London quarter-finals, an all-Long Beach final in the world's greatest tournament is not unlikely.

The prospect has excited Long Beach area net enthusiasts as they've seldom been excited. By upsetting the No. 1 favorite, Margaret Smith, in her opening match, giant-killer Billie Jean Moffitt stirred her backers' hopes and made it all seem possible.

DARLENE HARD, the American champion, was seeded No. 2, so she of course is in the opposite half of the draw, along with two-time winner Maria Bueno of Brazil.

Saturday Miss Moffitt crushed Sonja Pachta of Austria, 6-1, 6-2. Miss Hard demolished Helge Schultze of Germany, 6-1, 6-0.

Darlene teamed with Miss Bueno to eliminate Americans Margaret du Pont and Margaret Varner, 6-0, 1-6, 6-3 in women's doubles, while Billie Jean and Karen Hantze Susman of San Antonio, Texas ousted an unseeded Swedish team, 6-2, 6-0.

Darlene required only 28 minutes to win her singles match. "I'm still not talking about the title," she said. "Anything can happen."

BILLIE JEAN was a winner all the way. She reeled off five successive games in the first set, displaying steady ground strokes and an effective service.

Miss Moffitt's next opponent will be Ann Haydon, fifth seed from Briton, and Miss Hard will engage Vera Sukova of Czechoslovakia.

"Wouldn't it be something if the two Long Beach girls met for the championship?" fans here are saying. "It could happen you know!"

Both 18-year-old Billie Jean and 26-year-old Darlene are familiar figures on the county-owned Lake-wood Country Club courts and sometimes play at Recreation Park. Neither is above playing with persons of less than expert skill.

They teamed to win the National Clay Courts doubles title in 1960, but rarely play together here.

There is even a greater possibility of their facing each other in the doubles final at Wimbledon than in the singles. Darlene and Senhorita Bueno, who won the title in 1960 but did not play last year, are seeded No. 1. Defending champions "Little Miss Moffitt" and

DARLENE HARD

Mrs. Susman are seeded No. 2.

But it is the possibility of their clashing for the coveted singles crown that has stirred the most discussion.

If they do succeed in winning two more matches each to reach the championship round, the sympathies of those who know them both will be divided.

BILLIE JEAN, who has lived here since birth, no doubt would have more Long Beach rooters than Darlene, who has been here only three years—and then only between tennis travels.

"I'd be for Billie," said one fan. "After all, she's a Long Beach native and learned her game here."

"But this might be Darlene's last chance to win the Wimbledon singles," said another. "She has said she's going to retire this year. She's come so close, too—she reached the finals twice. I'd like to see her make it this time. Let Billie Jean win it in the future."

"Just so long as ONE of them wins it!" said a third tennis enthusiast. "It would be wonderful either way!"

'Queen' Linita Scores Under 'Pappy' Longden

By ERNIE MASON

California's queen of western thoroughbred racing, Corradini and Dorney's Linita, today was looking for greater worlds to conquer.

The trim, five-year-old daughter of Indian Hemp Saturday erased any doubts as to her supremacy among the equine fair sex in western half-length victory in the $55,650 Vanity Handicap.

Under a flawless ride by masterful Johnny Longden, Belle paid $3.20.

Linita raced the mile and a furlong in 1:48 2/5, shoulder-riding her top impost of 126 pounds in true championship fashion to turn back nine rivals for the crown as Fun House finished second and Kissing Belle third.

Scoring her third straight victory and her second in stakes competition, Linita returned a surprisingly lusty $7.60, $3.80 and $3 across the board. Fun House paid $4.00 and $3 and Kissing Belle paid $3.20.

The brilliance of Linita's victory was clearly demonstrated in Longden's post-race comments. "I've won this race three times in the past with Busher. Silver Spoon and Countess Fleet and this mare certainly belongs in that category."

LINITA accomplished her triumph in a manner which also added punch to her title-deciding win. Longden laid off the pace-making Fun House and Bushel-N-Peck for seven-eighths of a mile, moved up to engage the former in the early stretch and then once getting control, she courageously handled her rival, although carrying the highest impost of her career.

The stretch run developed into a two-horse battle. Jackie Leonard attempting to bring Fun House back on after Linita had passed her, while Longden kept after his mare to remind her the finish line was still ahead.

The daily double return of $1,070.60 was the highest of the meeting with Laddie Maggie, Ray York up, winning the first race in a photo finish to pay $27.40, and Incan Chief, with Willie Harmatz, taking the second at $40.60.

Well Deserved Honor for Angel Comeback Kids, Acclaims Rig

from Rigney, Wagner began keeping both feet on the ground when he swung the bat. After 72 games, he led the league in home runs and RBI and his average has been in the .290s all year.

That Wagner and Moran should even be around to qualify for an All-Star game vote is a tribute to Rigney and general manager Fred Haney.

When the Angels were assembling for the first time in Palm Springs a year and one-half ago, Moran and Wagner were fighting for jobs with Toronto of the International League. Rigney told Haney he thought the Angels could use Wagner, and Haney told Rigney he thought the Angels could use Moran.

"I was ready to quit baseball," said Moran. "My wife and I figured we had seen the last of the major leagues."

"This is a goal I've been after for a long time," admitted Wagner.

4 Giant Bombs Batter Phillies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Felipe Alou smashed two home runs and Willie McCovey and Orlando Cepeda clouted one apiece Saturday as San Francisco protected its National League lead with an 8-3 victory over Philadelphia, the Giants' seventh win in eight games.

Wills' Dandy Saves Sandy

the second inning, Wills' backhanded Thomas' hard hopper in the hole, turned and rifled a throw to first that nipped Thomas by a half step.

The only other semi-scare for Koufax came with two out in the sixth. Ashburn sliced a line-drive to shallow left, but Tommy Davis was in perfect position to make the squeeze.

THE CROWD may have sensed that there was history in the making as early as the first inning. Koufax, never faster, struck out the side on nine pitches.

He added two strikeouts after Wills' great play in the second inning and fanned seven of the first nine Mets to face him.

Ashburn drew the first walk to start the fourth inning and was quickly erased on a double play. Frank Thomas walked and Mantilla walked, only to be wiped out by a double play in the seventh.

KOUFAX was aware of his feat from the beginning and thought seriously of his chances from the third inning on. "I had such good stuff that I couldn't help but think about it," said the jubilant Koufax.

Koufax said he lost his control in the latter stages "as the pressure mounted and I threw more curves than normally. Actually, it wasn't my control that worried me. It was the pressure."

A "friendly feud" with Mets third-base coach Solly Hemus didn't bother Koufax a bit. The clowning Hemus reminded Koufax of his no-hitter from the third inning until the ninth. "You still got it, Sandy," was the gist of Hemus' needle.

KOUFAX felt the greatest pressure as he pitched to Elio Chacon in the eighth inning. With the count 3-2, catcher John Roseboro called for a curve, but Sandy shook him off and wanted to throw a fast ball.

"Until that time, I was more concerned about winning the game than pitching a no-hitter. But with a 5-0 lead, I realized that I certainly wanted this no-hitter."

"I followed John's sign and threw the curve. It missed, but I got out of the inning OK."

Dodger Batboy Contest a Sparkler

By GEORGE LEDERER

DEAR BOSS:

I would like to be Dodger batboy contest editor next year because, well, I seem to have trouble picking winners and I think this would be a wonderful opportunity. I have never been a contest editor, but I promise to work at it faithfully; honest I do. I hope I win because I like to read the budding literary giants of our community, such as:

THE EXECUTIVE TYPE

"An inside view of Chavez Ravine and an opportunity to meet Buzzie, Walter O. or Fresno or hear some Stengelse would add up to a day I wouldn't forget if I were 'batboy for a day.'"

BREAKFAST OF A CHAMPION

"I brought the paper in to look at the standings. I read there's my chance to be Dodger batboy. My mom was fixing breakfast. I told her I was going to be Dodger batboy and she looked puzzled. She read the article and said OK, write, and I did."

THE SOCIALITE

OPPORTUNITIES WANTED

"Petraing to your ad in The Independent, Press-Telegram on being Dodger 'batboy for a day.' I thought that this would be an excellent opportunity to start my training and further my knowledge of the game due to the fact that I have seriously thought of playing big league ball."

POST SCRIPTS

"P. S. I didn't count the two-letter words."

"P. S. My name is Robert, age 10½. I live at . . . I know I am only 10½, but I've been a Dodger fan for a long time." (Hopeful contest editor's note: That can age anyone in one paragraph.)

NEGATIVE APPROACH

"I am pretty sure I don't have too much of a chance to win because I'm sure there are plenty of boys that would jump at the chance, like I'm doing to be even just 'il' ol' batboy for the Dodgers. P. S. Please excuse my sloppy writing; I'm in a hurry."

HONEST

I want to be batboy because I like to carry bats and balls around."

THE OLD SCHOOL

"Why I want to be batboy: First, to see and be near Wally Moon. Second, to start at the bottom and work up on a team I expect to be on four long years from now. Baseball I love. It replaces classy cars, fancy clothes and my best girl."

THE FAMILY MAN

"If I am the winner, when you notify me, tell me if the other members of the family can go."

THE POET

"Alston, Koufax, Drysdale, Reiser; The Sherrys, Perranoski, Wills and Becker. Podres, Moon, Howard, Moeller. The Davises, Fairly, Gilliam and Spencer. These, plus the Dodgers first in the race. Are why I want the batboy's place."

INELIGIBLE

"I would like to become acquainted with the players. . . I lack one qualification: I'm not a boy."

BATMAN

"I want to pick up a bat and say that I picked it up. Some day with hard work I hope to be one."

You see, boss, that's why I'd like to be Dodger batboy contest editor. And, with your permission, I'd like to get a head start by mailing each of the above authors a souvenir for their help.

Hawks Sweep Pair

SAN JOSE—Two Nitehawk opposition to four hits over home runs accounted for a 14-inning, two-game sweep of the San Jose FMC Tankers Saturday night as pitchers Ed Waymire and Jack Randall limited the Bob Bomar's blast in the sixth inning of the opener enabled the Hawks to win 10-0 while Nick Hopkins' two-run blast in the nightcap spelled a 2-0 victory in the final inning.

Don Prudhomme of Vancouver won the postponed finals of last week's Spring Drag Championships and also took home fuel eliminator honors before 6,774 fans Saturday night at Lions Drag Strip.

Prudhomme defeated Tom McEwen of Long Beach to win the championship, however, McEwen came back to win the gas eliminator title over John Peters. Prudhomme had top speed and fastest time of the evening at 185.18

Tom Cheney of the Washington Senators, who has developed from a part-time reliever into a starter, allowed only five hits and struck out 10 in blanking the Minnesota Twins, 1-0, Saturday night.

Cheney, in bringing his record to 2-2, had to outpitch Minnesota's Jim Kaat, who matched him in a scoreless duel for six innings.

The Senators scored the game's only run in the seventh when Jim King walked, went to third on two infielders and tallied on Ken Hamlin's third single.

Once Over Lightly

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

Tales of Baseball's Merry-Makers

Bo Belinsky's recent 5 a.m. escapade has resulted in old-time baseball men recalling the gay times of the game's notorious playboys down through the years.

Strangely enough, the majority of the better-known fun-lovers were pitchers. Rube Waddell was rated the king of the early merry-makers. Then there were Bugs Raymond, Amos Rusie, Flint Rhem and Grover Cleveland Alexander. Rabbit Maranville and Hack Wilson were a couple of the "leaders" who weren't pitchers.

There are humorous stories galore about their escapades. Rhem, of course, was the one who went off on a two or three-day bat and when he finally showed up, he had an elaborate story concocted of how he had been kidnapped and held prisoner while being forced to drink whiskey.

Then there was the time Joe McCarthy, when he was managing the Cubs, attempted to get Hack Wilson to give up drinking.

To impress Wilson on the deadly effect of alcohol, Joe once placed a worm in a glass and then poured in some gin. The worm died immediately. "If that stuff does that to a worm, can you imagine what it does to you?" Joe lectured . . . but to no avail. Hack wasn't "sold" and kept right on drinking.

After one all-night session, Hack showed up at the park the next day rather woozy. Boom Boom Beck was pitching that day in a park with an old tin fence in the outfield. In fact, that's how Boom Boom got his nickname. The hits would make a big boom when they hit the fence.

BOOM BOOM WAS GETTING belted pretty good that day and Hack didn't help things by messing up a routine fly ball. After the play, Hack strolled back to his regular station and then proceeded to close his eyes for a couple of needed winks before the next man came to bat.

However, when the ball was returned to the pitcher, the angry Boom Boom cut loose with a hard throw that sailed over Wilson's head and hit the fence with a tremendous crash. The startled Wilson opened his eyes, frantically looked for the ball and after retrieving it fired a strike to home plate as Boom Boom threw up his glove and retired to a cooling shower.

One of the classic episodes in baseball history involved my old friend Jack Rothrock and the immortal Grover Cleveland Alexander when both were members of the St. Louis Cardinals' famed "Gas House Gang."

Shortly after Rothrock, the first Long Beach developed player to reach the major leagues, began his rookie season, the Cardinals opened a crucial series. Alexander was scheduled to pitch the second game and to make sure he would stay sober the night before the game, manager Frankie Frisch hit upon an idea.

HE CALLED IN ROTHROCK and told him he was spending the night with Alexander in his room and that he was to make sure Alex stayed sober.

After supper, Frisch got Jack and Alex together and marched them up to Alexander's room. Frankie and Jack then inspected the room for any liquor that might have been hidden away. They even searched Alex. But they didn't find any and Frisch left—locking them in the room.

It was still too early to go to bed, so Jack asked Alex if he wanted to play cards. The answer was no, so Jack began playing solitaire.

"Alex was very restless," Jack recalls. "He would sit a few minutes in a chair, reading a paper or a book, then get up and prowling all over the room. After an hour or so, I noticed he was getting uneasy and his speech was getting awfully thick."

"Alex, you're drunk. Where are you getting the stuff?" He just laughed at me. I began looking for it. I went over every inch of the room. I even inspected the toilet, thinking he might have a bottle down there attached to a string."

"FINALLY, I GAVE UP AND went back and sat down and watched every move he made. You can imagine how I felt seeing him getting drunker and drunker . . . and laughing at me all the time," Jack goes on.

"Suddenly it dawned on me that everytime he got up and walked around, he always wound up stopping at the window, leaning against the side and looked out."

"I jumped up and ran over to the drapes and sure enough, taped on the backside of them was a fifth of bourbon with one of those glass tubes they use for drinking in hospitals. Every time Alex leaned over to look out the window, he'd take a big swig out of the bottle."

"I poured what little was left out of the bottle, but it was too late. By then he was uproariously drunk."

"I had visions of Frisch sending me back to the minors the next day for failing to keep him sober, but that grand old guy himself saved me. Despite an awful hangover on a brutally hot day, he went out and pitched a two-hit shutout!"

Welterweight contender Luis Rodriguez of Cuba ruined the ring comeback of Gene Armstrong Saturday night by flooring him once and battering him for a 10th victory in the eighth round of their television fight at Madison Square Garden.

Referee Barney Felix stopped the scheduled 10-round bout at 2:09 of the eighth because Armstrong was half-groggy and was taking a severe battering without returning any punches. It was Armstrong's first fight after a 16-month layoff because of a cracked rib when stopped by Dick Tiger.

2 Veteran Firemen to Retire

Retirement of two veteran firemen with a total of 65 years, 2 months and 28 days of service on the Long Beach Fire Department was announced Saturday by Fire Chief Leonard V. Foster.

Chief Foster said Battalion Chief Harold E. Maas and Captain David F. Burdette would both retire July 6.

Capt. Burdette has been a member of the department 32 years, 11 months and 20 days and Chief Maas for 32 years, 3 months and 8 days.

CHIEF MAAS has been in charge of the northern section of Long Beach since his promotion to battalion chief May 7, 1951. He will be succeeded by Captain Kenneth Hoffman who will be promoted to battalion chief.

Chief Maas is presently vacationing at Lake Tahoe where he owns property.

Capt. Burdette plans to fish and to continue to raise epiphyllums, cactus orchids.

CAPT. BURDETTE, whose last 12 years on the department has been in the Fire Prevention Bureau, had a word of caution for the public.

"Remember the injury and death potentials of flammable liquids. Treat them with caution."

South Korea Calls for Short Skirts

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—Short skirts will be the fashion for Korean women starting today. They were recommended, not by a fashionable design house, but as a result of the austerity campaign being waged by the national reconstruction movement.

The government says women should start adopting short western style skirts as part of their wardrobe because they would mean an economy of cloth.

FIRE HAZARD

Angeles Forest Areas Closed for Dry Season

PASADENA (UPI)—Fire hazard areas in Angeles National Forest will be closed to the public today until the fall rainy season.

Supervisor Sam Jarvi said that the closures would be made in high value watershed slopes for public safety and fire prevention.

"All major highways, roads and major recreation areas in the forest will remain open throughout the year," Jarvi added.

Maps of the closed areas are available at all U.S. Forest Ranger Stations in the forest.

By recent legislation, Congress enacted a "phase-out" formula for setting the last date certain veterans could apply for a VA-guaranteed loan.

"HERE IS HOW it works," Webster explained. "The veteran has 10 years from the date of his discharge from his last period of active service, plus an additional year of eligibility for each three months of active wartime service."

For some World War II veterans that deadline is going to come on July 25, 1962. For others it may be July 25, 1967, which is the outside limit.

The arrangement which combined income units and the owner's home has advantages for many kinds of investors, says John H. Hedrick, president of the building company.

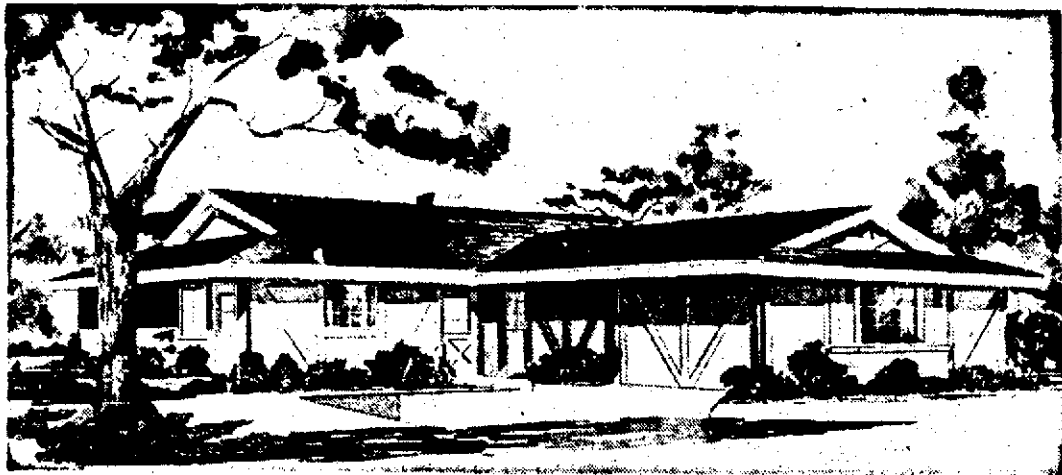

"IN THE CASE of Mr. and Mrs. Key," said Hedrick, "the rental of the apartments comes within $30 a month of carrying the mortgage payments, taxes and all maintenance costs. For less than $30 a month the Keys and their two boys live in the home they designed for themselves and at the end of 20 years they will own a valuable income property, entirely clear."

Such home plus income units setups have special appeal for retired couples who want more room than is offered in many apartments, welcome a limited amount of physical activity, and need the financial boost it gives their limited retirement income.

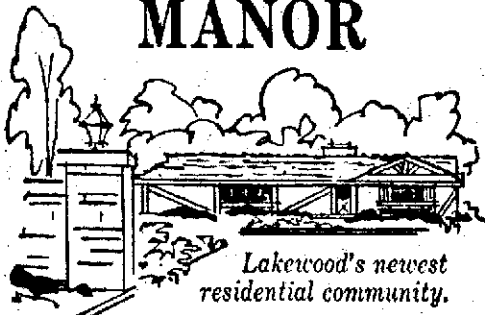

"WE HAVE just as much privacy as though we were living in a single residence," said Mrs. Key, "including our own double garage. In addition we have four bedrooms, one of which will be a den, and three baths."

"Loan companies look with favor upon such projects,"

Donald Key, North American Aviation design engineer, has had the J. H. Hedrick Company design and build on his property at 4672 Barker Way, a custom home for his family combined with three deluxe apartments, arranged to provide individual privacy for owner and for tenants.

Mr. and Mrs. Key sketched their ideas which were refined by Hedrick architects and engineers, and the happy result is a four-bedroom home plus three apartments. The rental of the apartments comes within $30 a month of carrying all mortgage payments, taxes and maintenance. At the end of 20 years the Keys will own the property, free and clear.

Such home-plus-income-units combinations have special appeal for retired couples, and for young executives who seek complete, modern homes for their families at minimum monthly payments which come back multiplied and build family estates.

City Planner First to Buy in Westmont

The first new home buyer in the City of Fountain Valley's very first subdivision, the 1,100 home Westmont community near Huntington Beach, was an honored one. The buyer was the city's planning director, Stanley Mansfield.

Mansfield was formerly employed by the city of Baldwin Park and came to Fountain Valley in the new community's expansion that was launched with the Westmont groundbreaking only two weeks ago.

The Mansfields have three daughters and have selected one of the most popular of the Westmont homes with the big convertible "Bonus Room," as their reasons to buy in the new Westmont community.

MANSFIELD, like many others, was on the waiting list when the Westmont homes officially were offered to the public just last week. The homes with the big convertible bonus room had previously set new sales records in the growing Huntington Beach area.

Built-in kitchens, family rooms, wood shake roofs, paneling, wallpaper, tile, and the oversize lots are all listed by developer, George M. Holstein and Sons as outstanding features. The Westmont prices start at $18,200 with low GI, FHA, and conventional terms.

To reach Westmont from the Long Beach area, drive East on Seventh St. to Hwy. 39. Turn right about three miles to the models on the left of the highway.

FIRST HOME BUYER

Planning director Stanley Mansfield selects site for his new home with sales chief, Ray Haffdahl, on the opening of the new big Westmont "Bonus Room" development in the new city of Fountain Valley. Located adjacent to both park, new school and shopping site, the Westmont homes are the first to be built in the Huntington Beach area city and Mansfield is new city's first home buyer.

Welcome Aboard!

--- Or ARE You?

By IOLA MASTERSON
L. P.T. Women's Editor

Ship ahoy!

Did you know that there are roughly 140,000 registered pleasure boats floating around our 11th Coast Guard District these days? And, as a resident of one of the "boatingest" cities in the entire district your chances of being a guest aboard one this summer are excellent.

But . . . do you know how to be a ship shape ship mate? To get some authentic ideas on guesting protocol while at sea, members of the Long Beach Yacht Club were polled for opinions. Here are a few of their common sense answers to keep landlubbers from feeling all at sea at sea.

WEAR CLOTHING suitable to life aboard a little ship. Remember that boarding most small vessels requires a certain amount of gymnastics. Slacks, capris or shorts for women are recommended. For both men and women, be SURE to wear some form of soft soled flat shoes. Highly varnished decks do not take kindly to the abuse of hard soles or high heels. The other reason is to give you maximum balance and sure footing for your own safety.

A net to keep feminine hairdos from blowing is handy. And remember, it may be hot ashore but once away from land those breezes can be chilly, so take a sweater or jacket.

If you're bidden for a weekend cruise, don't bring everything you can think of just because "it might come in handy." Storage space, even on bigger vessels, is limited. Take just enough to see you through. Ask the captain or first

Independent Press-Telegram

FOND FAREWELL . . . which isn't as fond as it looks . . . is given departing guests by Hope and Bob Cunningham. Obviously their "friends" have just said a merry thank you for the cruise, waved goodbye and left Cunninghams to hose down their cruiser, remove all the litter after voyage. Boating guests, volunteer your services for the clean-up!

Staff
Photos

Joe Risinger

OH, OH LADY . . . have care how you step into that skiff. Enacting wrong way is Flo Anderson, given what aid such procedures allow him by Dean O'Hare. Flo, long-time boater (her late husband, Dr. Manley Anderson, was commodore of LBYC), would step directly into the center, preferably backwards, weight aimed straight down. Weight directed sidewise will give dinghy push away from you. This frequently results in unexpected ocean swim, called dinghy dunking.

The Commodore's Corner

Commodore William R. Hardcastle

Safety Afloat Is Skipper's Obligation to Guests

Just as guests aboard a pleasure boat owe certain courtesies of behavior to their hosts . . . so does the skipper owe courtesies to his guests.

According to Commodore William R. Hardcastle of the Long Beach Yacht Club, the most important of these, by far, is the "courtesy" of safety.

Commodore Hardcastle points out that the law requires certain safety equipment . . . but good seahorse sense will tell the truly conscientious skipper that many added requirements aid immeasurably to safety.

THE COMMODORE advises that it is every skipper's responsibility to know the characteristics of his own boat, be thoroughly versed in boathandling procedures.

The careful skipper must use good judgment with respect to weather. According to the U. S. Coast Guard, the main cause of boating mishaps is inexperience;

when the wind blows the rescue crews are kept busy.

Guard against negligence. Boat owners must make it their business to learn the ropes before they take to the wheel.

PLEASANT, successful way to learn is to attend free classes, conducted spring and fall, by U. S. Power Squadrons. Or to enroll in training offered by the U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary.

Notices of these courses appear in newspapers, are posted in boating stores, marina and dock areas in advance of enrollment dates.

Hardcastle cautions, "It is far cheaper to pay tariff on licensed charter boat than risk your life and lives of your family on the invitation of someone whose qualifications as a pilot you don't know, or whose boat you aren't qualified to judge."

TODAY Safe Boating Week begins. A good time to take those words of wisdom seriously.

THEY'LL HAVE a wonderful weekend in Catalina, this foursome of Blanche and Phil Wiedrick (left), seen welcoming Ken and Zeletta Cummings aboard. They will, that is, if there's any room left at all for passengers after mass of luggage is stowed. Knowledgeable yachters (as Wiedricks, Cummings are) would limit gear for weekend trip to minimum, the less bulky the better. Avalon has course, but will they really golf?

Make 'Welcome Aboard!' Ring True

mate, your hostess, what clothing you'll need and keep what you tote down to that amount. This also goes for bulky musical instruments, camera gear and the like. Be a miser in your use of water. Don't let mainland tap usage carry over at sea. The amount available is limited to what is stored aboard. Your conscience is the only meter.

IF YOUR CHILDREN are invited along, too, have them well indoctrinated before setting sail: No running on deck; no tinkering with a "what's this" gadget . . . it may turn out to be a delicate piece of electronic equipment; no climbing in the rigging or around the decks without specific permission from the captain. Even WITH his permission, you'd be wise to keep them inside the rails for their own protection.

You adults who smoke, DON'T when the skipper is starting his engines and never, never when fuel is being taken aboard. A cigarette carelessly flipped or left in an ashtray unattended can lead to serious trouble. A fire or explosion at sea is most fervently to be avoided.

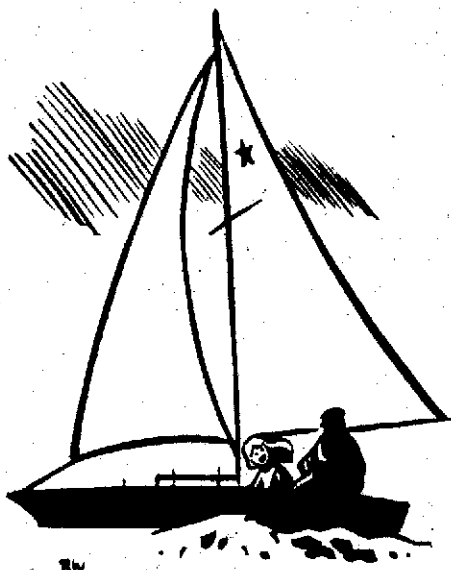

Provided your cruise includes any meals afloat, don't be shy about offering to help provide part of the fare and certainly offer your services in the preparation and clean up.

Clean up chores extend beyond the galley, too. After a pleasant boat ride, be it for a couple of hours or a couple of weeks, offer to help your host hose down the boat, re-apply the protective canvas covers and with whatever else comprises "battening down the hatches" after you return dockside.

If you MUST throw anything overboard, heave it downwind . . . not into the wind . . . or you'll have the whole mess right back on the good skipper's deck. If you are disposing of cans at sea, punch holes in both ends to insure their sinking. If it's a bottle, fill it with water for the same reason. Incidentally, don't dump anything unless you're well out to sea beyond the currents which will sweep debris back onto a nearby beach.

MOST OF THE foregoing was once summed up best in an amusing, tongue-in-cheek article in Sea and Pacific Motor Boat Magazine entitled The Ten Commandments for Boating Guests, here reprinted with permission from the editor:

- I. Honor thy Captain at all times.
- II. Tread not upon his deck in hard shoes. Instead, garb thy feet in soft sneakers so that ye scuff not the deck paint or varnish.
- III. Smoke not thy cigarettes, pipes or cigars while ye Captain warmeth 's motor. Such behavior is likely to make ye Captain explode. Also ye boat itself.

IV. Smoke not thy cigarettes, pipes or cigars while ye Captain takes aboard fuel for ye engine. Such behaviour is likely to make all explode, including ye gasoline station.

V. Offer thyself for duty when food is prepared in ye galley, also when dishes are washed, pots scrubbed and galley cleaned. He who sits and watches at sea will surely watch ashore, for ye Captain will not bid him welcome again.

VI. Offer not thy suggestions for navigating ye craft. Such words from a guest are like cackling of ye gull to ye Captain, who will no doubt turn wrathfully and give thee the bird.

VII. Drop not upon ye deck such things as cigarette ashes, beer cans, stale sandwiches and stale bait or fresh caught fishes.

VIII. Spit not ever to windward, for such behaviour shall return to plague you.

IX. Empty not thy stomach upon the deck when sickness strikes thee. Instead, bend ye thy head well over the leeward and contribute thy bile to the sea. The Captain wishes none of it.

X. Hurry not away from ye boat after ye voyage is finished. Instead, remain to aid thy Captain in polishing ye deck, washing ye craft, and scrubbing down all manner of salt and dirtiness. For this effort thy Captain will bless thee. Without this effort thy Captain will damn thee from his craft forever.

DEAR ABBY

Dad Is Nicest Name of All

DEAR ABBY: In this day and age, what should one call his father? Dad, Pop, Papa? Does "Father" denote more respect than Papa? We'd like your opinion.—TWO SONS

DEAR SONS: I have had a clipping for many years. The author is unknown to me. I'd like to share it with you:

"If he is prominent and wealthy and you stand in awe of him, call him 'Father.' If he sits in his shirt sleeves and suspenders at ball games, call him 'Pop.' If he tills the soil and labors in overalls, call him 'Pa.' If he belongs to a literary circle and writes cultured papers, call him 'Papa,' with the accent on the last syllable. If, however, he makes a pal of you when you're good, and is too wise to let you pull the wool over his loving eyes when you're not, and if, moreover, you're sure no one else you know has quite as fine a father, you may call him 'Dad.'"

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a nut who insists that I continue bleaching my hair like I did 25 years ago. He says he fell in love with a blonde and he doesn't want to live with a gray-haired old grandmother. Abby, I am sick to death of sitting in beauty parlors. It is expensive and ridiculous. My natural hair color would be a salt and pepper, which would give the "frosted" effect which is fashionable today.

But this bull-headed, blonde-loving husband of mine says NO. What can I do?—BLONDIE

DEAR BLONDIE: Get a good blonde wig and watch your husband flip his when he gets the bill.

DEAR ABBY: There is a young married girl in our neighborhood who is very pretty. All she has to do is look at a man and he is under her spell. Well, she has come over here several times right after supper and has asked my husband to go with her to try to hunt up her husband. They are gone two and three hours at a time and I don't like it. (They never seem to find her husband.) I don't want to appear jealous but I'd like her to leave my husband alone. How? Or am I being childish?—JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: Your instincts are probably good. Why invite trouble? Next time your neighbor recruits your husband for a man hunt—join the hunt.

DEAR ABBY: I often wonder what the relationship is between newlyweds who begin their married life with twin beds. Do these partners go through life never knowing the ecstasy of dropping off to sleep encircled in loving arms? Or the comfort and peace derived from the closeness of a loved one in the night? When my wife and I are forced to accept a motel room with only twin beds, we use only one.—MARRIED TO THE SAME WOMAN FOR 35 YEARS

How's the world treating you? For a personal unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

WILD WAVES SAY . . .

By Iola Masterson

I, P-T Women's Editor

BEARING the lion in his den almost every day, except in this case the lion is a mule, as Betty Daniel, exuberant chairman for Community Hospital Auxiliary's second annual horse show.

Determined to prove that mule and practice can get you anywhere, she has decided that this year she, too, will be among participants. So, like clockwork Betty and a sidekick by the name of Louella work out at the Harold Dakon ranch in Westminster.

When the horse show goes on Sept. 7-9 at Los Alamitos track, Betty will demonstrate mind over mule.

All is not as derring-do as it sounds. Louella is a star in her own right, so Betty will be going "on stage" with an old pro. The old pro, incidentally, is slated to make her next appearance at the Sheriff's Rodeo in Los Angeles. Louella, not Pat.

TIME TURNED backwards, 25 years to the dot, Wednesday night when Jean and Howard Mann were honored at a silver wedding anniversary party. It was given in the very spot where they were married, the garden of Jean's aunts and party hostesses, Forrest (Mrs. Samuel) Peters and "Roy" Wilkinson. It was not a wedding anniversary reception as such, but a warm hearted and nostalgic gathering of the Manns' long time friends, a good many of whom were present when the "I do's" took so well.

UNDERSTAND Dr. Walt Furie kept a terrific diary of his and Gladys' just completed two and a half month tour of the Orient. So good, in fact, avid readers of same insisted on having a copy, so Walt had several made up. They tell me the information contained would be wonderfully useful to anyone planning to travel in the Orient; that it is plain good reading even if your farthest journey plans only extend to La Runa.

YOU CAN call Esther and Lyle Gardiner the hamiest residents in town and they won't even hit back. That's because currently they are. You see, Esther left Wednesday in her station wagon bound for Chicago, New York and Vermont (where she will be a delegate-at-large for the World Roundup of Girl Scouts) and in it was a just installed ham radio set. Her call letters are WA6UBU while Lyle's are K6LPI. These two will be hammering it up, coast to coast, every day until her return.

WITH A quick pat of a rabbit's foot and nary a stricken look backward, Ina Harris departed for Seattle by plane this week, sans Willie . . . a departure of another type. She took daughter, Marcia, and twin sons, Bill and Bob, entrusting the ranchito to Willie, and eldest son, Richard.

"IT'S STRICTLY legitimate when my secretary sits on my lap," brags Doc (Erwin) Newton. On the surface this sounds as phony as a Billy Sol Estes, "Who me?" But as it turns out, "Doc's" wife, Betty, will be his secretary in his new public relations offices in Hollywood. After Betty gets through sitting on his lap at the office each day, both will return to the old homestead on Wardlow Road where they will continue to live. They're committed to commuting.

OFF FOR hot, muggy country — the East Coast — went a quartet of Sigma Kappa alumnae this week, all due in Washington, D.C., now for national convention. Virna Nalley and Bonnie Elliott, actives at State, left Monday for New York to rendezvous with Loretta Kaiser, then proceed to the capital. After convention the girls will visit in Philadelphia.

Winona Averill left Wednesday with plans to see Williamsburg before returning and Barbara Barnes jetted off Saturday. On return flight she won't quite make it all the way back. Fred will meet her in Las Vegas where they'll spin a few wheels for a few days.

IF THE TRUTH be known the consequences will be paid. Three gentlemen of our town were tricked by their wives into innocently attending a recent taping of the TV show "Truth or Consequences" and before they could say "Not on your life" they were featured performers. You can see the show for yourself Monday at 11:30 a.m. on Channel 4.

Gimmick you'll see is the three men meeting, all separately, a girl they each used to date during high school days at Wilson and hadn't seen since. Their "old flame" is Adell (Leonard) Masterson.

Without their knowledge each wife bet $50 that her husband would still remember Adell. Wives won. Which proves there's still a fling in the old boys yet.

SUMMER returnee is Van Heath who winters at Smoke Tree out of Palm Springs. Now she views sea, not sand, from her ocean front home. Husband, Ronnie, comes and goes with complete irregularity; a traveling man, for sure, since becoming executive vice president of Signal Oil last year.

From here on there'll be music and lots of it on the peninsula. When Van travels between her two abodes she's faithfully trailed by her Hammond organ (moving of its precious and unwieldy products and speakers carefully supervised by the studio). And none of that all Bach and a Beethoven wide for her. She plays pop and jazz organ. Have a hunch Van's portion of beach front will prove one of the most popular park-to-sun and be entertained at the same time spot anywhere.

Bongo, Bongo, Bongo. New Handbag With a Beat

By MARY ELLIS
I. P-T Fashion Editor

Teen-agers have drummed up a new bag of tricks.

It's a notable totable with a bongon beat!

Yep, the latest teen sensation is a bongon drum that doubles as a handbag—or a beach bag, depending on whether the gyrating miss is land-lubbering or sea-going.

Made by Sheri Originals of Hollywood, the bongon—a handmade import from Mexico—is fashioned of genuine goatskin pulled taut over the finest wood drumhead.

Reason: to insure the finest tone quality.

AT LEFT, Wilma Hasting model Diane Davis gives bag's inside story, demonstrating how a flip-top opening (on the underside) gives vent to space for all those teenage "purse-onals": suntan lotion, comb, lipstick, coke money and fraternity pins.

Help Timid Child to Develop His Talents

By RICHARD BARBOUR

Do you have a timid child? A shy, quiet, retiring young 'un? There are many like that. Usually we ignore them. We pay attention to noisy, aggressive kids instead. It is a mistake. Timid children usually try to succeed. They work hard. But they underestimate themselves. Their fears keep them from accomplishing very much.

They do what we ask them to do. They get up on time, keep their rooms clean and are very obedient. They smile when we smile at them. They're model kids in many ways. But inside they're miserable. They're sure they're not as capable as the noisy youngsters around them. They think that they're odd, or strange. They don't make many friends. They are lonely. They can eat out their hearts, with nary a murmur.

Usually their worst times come during their teens. They aren't invited to parties. When they do go they sit alone. They aren't asked to go steady. The opposite sex ignores them. They suffer and suffer through long, unhappy days.

WANT to help your timid child? Here's how. Take a canvass of his talents. Find the things he can do exceptionally well—sports, dancing, writing, composing, playing a jazz instrument, or whatever. Then help your timid one to practice until he's a whiz. See to it he gets chances to demonstrate his ability in ways that count. Then the other kids will begin to look up to him. Gradually he'll realize that he is just as capable as they are. He'll enjoy a new popularity. His basic timidity may never leave, but it will not be so painful. He'll be happier, I promise.

'Friends' to Reopen Classes

By ELISE EMERY
Art Page Editor

Last September, after much thought and preparation, the Friends initiated children's classes at the museum. More than 200 youngsters participated under the dynamic direction of Mrs. Dorothy Lanier.

However, in January the museum space was needed for other purposes, so the classes were discontinued. Ever since, the Friends have been searching for another suitable location.

Now, with the co-operation of Long Beach State College art department, the problem is solved.

Art classes will begin July 9 in Fine Arts Building 3, Room 111 on the LBSC campus. Lynda Penner, USC graduate, will instruct youngsters in various media — collage, mobiles, wire sculpture, painting and print making.

THERE WILL be two sessions of three weeks each, with classes meeting on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The first session will run from July 9 to 27, the second from July 30 to Aug. 17. Enrollment fee for each is $15. The schedule will be: 4 to 6 year-olds, 9 to 10 a.m.; 7 to 9 year-olds, 10:15 to 11:15 a.m.; 10 to 12 year-olds, 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Classes will be limited in number.

Pre-registrations may be mailed to Mrs. Seymour Gottlieb, 11923 Foster Road, Los Alamitos; registrations will be taken Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. in the college classroom. Mrs. Alfred Schmidt, 3031 Kallin Ave., or Mrs. Marvin Tincher, 5596 Oleta St., will supply further information.

THE FRIENDS will be active today, too, when they serve as hostesses for the 2 to 4 p.m. reception which opens July exhibitions at the Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. The public is invited to the informal affair.

One of the exhibits, 96 photographic panels illustrating architecture by Richard Neutra, has been organized by the University of California at Los Angeles.

LONG BEACH Art Association today marks the beginning of its second year in its Villa Riviera Gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd., with a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. to open a new exhibit, "Art for Sale." Original paintings will be offered at prices not to exceed $30. The show will continue through August.

THE WEST COAST premiere of an exhibition, "Elements of Modern Art," from the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum in New York City will be shown in Laguna Beach Art Gallery through July.

Oils, relief constructions, drawings and watercolors have been assembled to answer the questions of viewers confronted with the new language of contemporary painting.

In the collection are works of Georges Braque, Marc Chagall, Andre Derain, Paul Klee, Max Ernst, Lyonel Feininger, Alberto Giacometti, Morris Graves and artists of equal stature.

'THE MUSIC MAN'

Joan Strickland (right) gives some motherly advice to young Robbie Doherty as leading lady Marion Alford and little Terri Henley listen in this scene from "The Music Man." The fast-paced Meredith Willson show, first production of Long Beach Community Music Theater, will continue its run this evening and Friday, Saturday and next Sunday nights in Long Beach City College auditorium. Young Doherty's singing of "Gary, Indiana" is a highlight of the show in which Macdonald Carey stars.

Major & Minor Notes ROLAND HAYES RELATES DIFFICULTIES OF CAREER

By RACHEL MORTON
I. P. T. Music Critic

A phenomenal thing happened in Carnegie Hall on the evening of June 3. Before a packed audience, a man of 75 years came upon the stage, a colored man, and sang a program of German lieder, French songs and Negro spirituals. This man was the great singing artist, Roland Hayes. And so movingly did he sing that one reviewer wrote, "There are few performers that can send a writer reaching beyond mere superlatives to the concentrated evocation that poetry provides."

It is reported that hundreds waited patiently backstage after the concert to greet him. The concert was a benefit to set up scholarships in six southern Negro colleges. Roland Hayes has dedicated his whole life to

'Creative Exhibiting' Marks Museum Show

By VIRGINIA LADDY

Selections from the Permanent Collection — oil paintings and sculpture — at Long Beach Museum of Art along with a retrospective of Richard Neutra's architecture make a fine exhibit.

Opening today, they will run through July 29.

The works are displayed with thoughtfulness, taste, and imagination; the show reflects trends in painting in this area over the last five years.

Three paintings in the foyer suggest, succinctly, as many approaches to subject matter. Ray Dutcher's "Birch Tree" is romantic expressionism. The glade seems to have a soul, or presence, of its own; the brush strokes are vigorous, sensual and in vibrant color. "Spring in the Park" by Frode N. Dann is classical. Nature is organized in geometric patterning; color is harmonious, quiet, serene. The extreme of intellectual approach is abstract classicism, shown in the hard-line composition of John McLaughlin's "Untitled," limited to white, yellow, and gray.

Local Girls Appear With N. Y. Ballet

The New York City Ballet begins a two-week engagement at the Greek Theater on Monday, with a full-length performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" being given nightly through next Sunday.

Thirty children have been selected to appear in the production from several hundred who auditioned with four out of the selectees being from Long Beach. They are Nancy Ichino, 9, and Laurie Ichino, 6, children of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ichino, 4301 Keefer Ave.; Christine Mills, and Lisa Mills, 7, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Mills, 3843 E. Broadway.

The second week the company will be seen in repertoire works, including two new ballets.

Steinberg to Conduct Bowl Opener

Hollywood Bowl's 41st season which opens Tuesday will feature "Music for Everyone," including symphonies, vocal and instrumental soloists, "Pops" nights and the internationally-famed Ballet Folklorico from Mexico.

William Steinberg will conduct the Los Angeles 100 musicians in the opener, and will have as soloist Grant Johannessen, gifted young American pianist who will play two works new to the Bowl repertoire.

The music director of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra will begin with the "Leonore Overture No. 3 by Beethoven. He will offer the "Wanderer Fantasy" by Schubert; d'Indy's "Symphony on a French Mountain Air" and the colorful symphonic poem, "Pines of Rome" by Respighi.

THURSDAY Henryk Szering will play Bartok's "Concerto No. 2," Mozart's "Haffner Symphony," and Saint Saens' "Symphony No. 3" for organ in honor of the convention of American Guild of Organists in session during the week.

Johnny Green will conduct music by Sigmund Romberg for the initial "Pops" concert of the season Saturday. Hit tunes from many of Romberg's Broadway successes will be sung by Joan Fenn, soprano; Chris Lachona, tenor, and James Tippet, baritone. The Roger Wagner Choral will be an added feature.

WHEN HE first sang in Berlin in 1924, antagonism was strong. An open letter in the newspaper from the people of the United States warned of the "calamity of a black man coming into Germany and defiling the great names of music and poetry; a man, who at best, can only remind us of the cotton fields of Georgia."

As he stepped upon the stage, he was greeted by a volley of hisses which continued for 20 minutes. "I walked to the curve of the piano and stood there quietly," he relates. "Then there was silence and I sang Schubert's 'Du bist die Ruh' (Thou Art Peace). This song broke the back of the animosity and they responded warmly to the rest of the program."

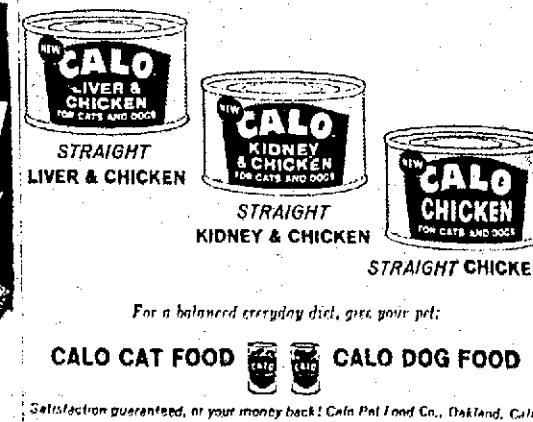

Roland Hayes, as I heard him sing, was a consummate artist. His voice was fused with a spiritual quality that was soul-inspiring. His diction in any language was perfect and his light tenor voice was masterfully controlled.

They Proved Young Marriage Can Work

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: I wish to take issue with you about young marriages. I know you've said, and others say, time and time again, young marriages haven't a ghost of a chance. Well, I'm the ghost I guess. 'Cause ours worked.

I was just 16 and not dry behind the ears, but I'd lost my parents and had no home. By the time I was of age I was the father of three and now we are the grandparents of three times three. We are still deeply in love. I'm not about to peel off either. We go, my wife and I, to a senior citizen center where we dance and delight in telling how long we've been tripping on each other's toes. We can laugh with each other over most anything. And neither of us looks more than's proper, at another.

Heck, Molly. My ears aren't dry yet. —BY GUM

DEAR BY GUM: Congratulations: You did it!

But my mind's the same. Life is too brief to bow under great responsibilities too soon. Enjoying youth fancy-free seems to me a special privilege not to be given up easily.

But looks like you've enjoyed it all. Write me again —and again. —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: My girl friend and I are bound to be old maids. We practically are right now and I'm getting hysterical about it.

Just the other day I told her what a fuddy-duddy she was and she up and showed me cause to call me one.

Our trouble is that we live with just girls. We work with just girls. We rarely contact men and we seldom go out, except with girls.

We are modern and, I think, somewhat sophisticated young ladies. Most of us are between 22 and 28.

Oswald Jacoby East Stops Two Suits

South was one of our well known experts, but experts don't always play correctly and South failed to make his six spade contract.

His play was simple. He ruffed the second heart, played a few rounds of trumps, cashed dummy's ace and king of clubs, ruffed a club, ran the rest of his trumps and of course, the club-diamond squeeze did not come off because East discarded after dummy.

South's play would have worked had West been long in both minor suits; the correct way to play would also work in the actual situation in which East was long in both minors.

SEE IF you can figure out the winning line of play which would work as long as either defender held four or more cards in each minor suit.

Here it is. Simply run off all trumps but one and discard down to the ace-king of diamonds and four clubs in dummy. East will have to discard down to six cards. If he hangs on to four clubs you cash dummy's ace and king of diamonds and your third diamond will be good. If he hangs on to three cards in each minor suit you ruff one club and dummy's fourth club will be good.

Of course, it is up to you to figure out just what combination East has held on to, but you should be able to do that.

Dear Molly Mayfield

I am 22 and I don't want to be here at 28. You work miracles. Work one for me, please? —THE DUD

DEAR DUD: Your outlook needs a little me! dominance. Too many women are very unbalancing—even for a man.

I suggest you change your place of abode. You, and maybe one other girl, get new quarters—perhaps in an apartment building where single men also reside. Join in with the coed activities of your city. Refuse to spend your life, Quaker fashion, on the women's side. Mingle with men. It's exhilarating. —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: I have a parent complaint. Mine should be told what problems they are. I talk to other fellows and they have the same troubles with theirs.

Now for instance. My folks won't let me drive the family car. Now, how do they expect me to rate the racier gals if I don't.

Mine make me dry dishes. Dad doesn't have to. Oh, no. He sits in HIS chair reading the paper while I'm out with Mother drying dishes. I hate dishes. I hate towels. I hate putting damp dishes in cupboards. It is positively embarrassing, that's what it is. I'd sure welcome it if you'd lay into parents like mine. —CLAUDE

DEAR CLAUDE: Personally, I proclaim your parents are to be pitied. You sound like a smart aleck that doesn't know enough to dry a dish, let alone get dry behind the ears.

I doubt if this will hurt you, for I fear you are too thick-skinned. But if there is any intelligence drifting around upstairs you'll agree that it's far better to listen to reason than to rebel.

Your parents are plenty smart to keep you and the car apart. —M.M.

Amelia Earhart Blazed Trail

Today the Sky's No Limit

EDITOR'S NOTE: One moment her voice crackled over the radio. Then silence — a silence that has grown over 25 years into one of the world's most intriguing mysteries. Amelia Earhart disappeared, but her memory lingers on. Her impact on American woman was—and still is—strong. So today the I. P. T. Women's Section pays tribute to one of America's great women.

By MARY ELLIS

The trim, lean gal with the twinkle in her eye and the wind-burned face gave more of a lift to American women than Maidenform ever dreamed of.

And though she did more to popularize tailored slacks for females than Marlene Dietrich, leggy aviatrix Amelia Earhart was strictly feminine—an all-woman woman.

Until her untimely disappearance 25 years ago Monday (July 2, 1937), she was a gal with a goal.

PAUL L. BRIAND JR., Air Force officer and Amelia's biographer, said simply:

She was "the girl who simply wanted to do something because she wanted to demonstrate the equality of her sex with that of the opposite in a field of constructive endeavor."

From the time she was born in Atchison, Kan., until she got close to her first airplane at old Daugherty Field here in Long Beach at Willow Street and Long Beach Boulevard, she floundered around in search of a career.

But from the day she saw Earl Daugherty put his plane through its paces, she was bent on becoming a pilot.

SHE STAYED in Southern California and learned to fly with Frank Hawkes, another Long Beach boy and former Poly High School student, who was destined to set many aviation records.

And fly she did—all over the place. Among her many achievements: she became the first woman to fly the Atlantic Ocean in June, 1928. Also, she flew the Atlantic solo—the first time by a woman—in May, 1932.

"Lady Lindy"

In August, 1932, she set the women's transcontinental non-stop speed record. And then in 1935 she flew solo from Hawaii to Oakland.

DESPITE ALL her flying time, she still remained strictly feminine, and at one time remarked to President Herbert Hoover:

"I shall be happy if my small exploit has drawn attention to the fact that women, too, are flying."

The former Boston school teacher, social worker and nurse's aide, was now all pilot—but she decided that in addition she would become a housewife.

She married George Palmer Putnam

in February, 1931, and remained happily married to him until her disappearance.

MRS. HERBERT HOOVER, wife of the then president, once described Amelia as "poised, well bred, lovely to look at, intelligent and sincere."

And Purdue University thought enough of her to put her on the faculty.

Purdue President Dr. Edward C. Elliott, in making the appointment, said:

"Miss Earhart represents, better than any other woman of this generation, the soul and courageous spirit of what may be called the new pioneering."

"At no point in our educational system has there been greater need for pioneering and constructive planning than in education for women."

AMEILA WAS a shrewd business-woman and an astute student of American women—but she was a gal who never lost her sense of humor.

She often pointed out that "fun is the indispensable part of work."

Though a staunch supporter of home and family for women, she said:

"Women need the critical stimulus of competition outside the home. Nowadays they must realize at the outset that a woman has to do the same job better than a man to get as much credit for it."

FRECKLE-FACED, wind-blown and auburn-haired, Amelia began her last great adventure in 1937 with her able navigator and fast friend, Fred J. Noonan.

"Gas is running low . . . been unable to reach you by radio . . . we are circling but cannot see you . . ."

These were the last desperate words of aviatrix Amelia Earhart on July 2, 1937.

They were heard by listeners on tiny Howland Island in the loneliest wastes of the Pacific Ocean.

DID AMERICA'S most famous woman pilot and Noonan lose their way and blunder to their deaths in the sea?

Or did Japanese militarists rescue the two Americans only to take their lives later?

Could her much-publicized, record-setting world flight have been a secret espionage mission for the U. S. Government?

None of these questions has ever been satisfactorily answered. There are staunch supporters of all phases of the mystery.

RECENTLY Fred Goerner, Navy veteran and San Francisco newsman, announced his belief that Miss Earhart and Noonan came down safely, then were taken to Saipan by the Japanese.

He has declared that testimony from 19 reputable islanders indicates a white man and white woman were flown to Saipan Island some time in 1937 or early 1938. Goerner said they answer the descriptions of Noonan and Miss Earhart, and that Japanese military police interrogated them as spies.

Goerner believes that after much questioning they were imprisoned, that the woman died of dysentery at some later date and that the man was beheaded a day or so after her death.

THE NAVY VETERAN dived into Saipan Harbor and recovered a generator from a plane, but it was Japanese.

He also recovered bones and teeth from a grave on Saipan, but they proved to be those of natives.

He still hopes eventually to solve the mystery of what happened to Amelia and Noonan.

THE WOMAN who wanted to do things for women just disappeared in her bright red plane. And that is all that is really known.

A memorial—Amelia Earhart Light—was built on Howland Island.

During World War II the Japanese shot the top off the lonely lighthouse. It has never been restored.

On the foundation of the lighthouse is a plaque inscribed simply: AMELIA EARTHART.

Dr. Charles Hulquist Weds Marlyn Powell

Dr. Charles Richard Hulquist, son of Mr. and Mrs. F.V. Hulquist, Long Beach, and Marlyn Lemert Powell, daughter of Mrs. Harry L. Dietrich, Fort Smith, Ark., exchanged wedding vows in Vienna, Austria.

In keeping with local requirements, the ceremony was first performed in the chambers of the civil magistrate. A second ceremony followed immediately in the Vienna Community Church and was attended by a small group of the couple's Viennese friends.

THE BRIDE attended William Woods College in Fulton, Mo., and was graduated with honors from Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Tex. Her sorority is Chi Omega. She taught in San Diego schools for two years and during the past year taught in the American Dependents Schools in Schweinfurt, Germany.

Dr. Hulquist was graduated from Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln, Neb., and from the University of Nebraska College of Medicine. He interned at Los Angeles County General Hospital, served two years with the U.S. Navy, spent one year of residency at the Institute of Ophthalmology in London and did three months of post-graduate work in Vienna. Last winter he was associated with the Bishop Clinic in Long Beach.

He 'Saddles' Venison for a Gourmet Ride

Harold A. Neibling, M.D.

By Mildred K. Flanary

I. P. T. Food Editor

Combine the dignity, the depth, the subtle humor and the considerateness of a gentleman with the marvelous knowledge and prudence of the surgeon, and they all add up to Chef of the Week, Harold A. (Hal) Neibling, M.D.

His conversation is noted for quality rather than quantity, too. Starting about even, between East and West, Neibling was born in Kansas City, Mo., and lived there intermittently until 1944. Completing grammar and high school there, he enrolled in Parkville Missouri College.

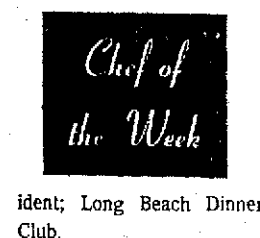

In this case, the old saying, "like father, like son," doesn't apply all the way. His Dad was a corporate lawyer, while Neibling chose to become an "emdee." They were alike, however, in that Neibling Sr. was president of Kansas City Bar Association, and Neibling Jr. today is president of Long Beach Chapter, American Medical Society. He had formerly served as both secretary and treasurer.

RECEIVING his medical degree at Northwestern U., he continued on to the University of Minnesota for his MA in medicine. Following his internship at Kansas City General Hospital, Neibling went to the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., as first assistant to chief of staff.

The Neiblings had spent many winters with relatives in Long Beach. He knew the city and liked it, so, in January of '48, he and his family decided to make it their home.

In 1955, however, he decided to close his offices here, and for the next two years was chief of general surgery with the 98th General Hospital in Southern Germany. In 1957 he returned to Long Beach.

A member of both the Long Beach and Los Angeles Surgical Societies, he also holds membership in the American College of Surgeons. He belongs to Sigma Xi honorary science research fraternity, and is a past president; Long Beach Dinner Club.

WERE HE to be given his druthers of going big game hunting or on a fishing trip, he'd have to flip a coin. He HAS been on safari in Africa, but whether his aim was for fun or game is not known.

Living on the bay as he does, however, and with a sizeable boat to boot, fishing comes in for its own. Members of the Southern California Tuna Club, his wife, Marjorie, son, Harold, 20, and daughter, Nancy, 15, join in the sport.

Though our "chef" CAN cook, he doesn't—that is, unless he's preparing a hind quarter of venison as he's doing today.

SADDLE OF VENISON

Pour over a well-aged saddle of venison the juice of 1 lemon, and ½ cup olive oil. Let the meat marinate for 3 hours. Lard the venison in even rows with strips of larding pork 2 inches long. For a small saddle, two rows of larding on each side of the top will be enough. Let the ends of the strips project into rows.

Crush 1 teaspoon juniper berries with 1 teaspoon salt and rub the mixture into the meat. Lay the venison, larded side down, in a roasting pan, add 1 onion, sliced and separated into rings, a 3-inch curl of lemon peel, and ½ cup vinegar, and pour ½ cup simmering melted butter over the meat.

Roast the venison for 15 minutes in a moderate oven (350°F), pour over it 1 cup hot sour cream, and roast it for 45 minutes more, basting frequently. Add 1 cup more hot sour cream during roasting. Turn the venison, dust it with 2 tablespoons flour, and continue to roast the meat, basting until it is brown and the larding is crisped. Allow 20 minutes per pound for medium rare.

Transfer the venison to a serving platter, pour over it ½ cup hot melted butter, and keep meat hot. Strain pan juices, correct seasoning, and stir in enough hot sour cream to make 1½ cups sauce. Pour over the meat ½ cup of sauce and serve the remaining sauce separately.

Tea at Ebell

A "friendship tea" and card party, will open the summer session of Ebell at the clubhouse, 290 Cerritos Ave., on Monday at 1 p.m. Mrs. Everett N. Morningstar, president, and her board, extend an invitation to all members and guests. Tea will be served at 3 p.m. Mrs. Russell M. Brougher is general chairman for the event.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

Jim Backus Seeking TV Talent Fight

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Jim Backus is looking for a fight.

He's using this column to issue the challenge.

"I would like to go on CBS (channel 2) opposite NBC's (channel 4) 'Tonight' show," said Backus.

"I know we could beat it."

Jim is the TV star who had his own newspaperman series, "The Jim Backus Show," who starred as Judge Bradley Stevens opposite Joan Davis in "I Married Joan," who is the voice of "Mr. Magoo" and who, in the last year, scooted from studio to studio to work in six motion pictures.

"I know we could beat it," repeated Backus, "because Hollywood is the talent center of the world."

"I don't mean our show would concentrate on celebrities. We'd mix up the celebrities with some of the brilliant people here, some of the real conversationalists."

"There would be a good opportunity for the viewers to really discover some unheralded talent."

BACKUS WOULD BE pleased if those who share his feelings would write to Hubbell Robinson, CBS vice president in charge of programming, at 485 Madison Ave., New York City, N. Y.

In the meantime, despite his fondness for Hollywood, Backus is going to New York.

"I like New York in the summertime," he said. "Most of the people are gone."

There are several other reasons why he's trekking to the peopleless pomposity.

The first reason is money which he will receive in some abundance for hosting a summer replacement show, "Talent Scouts."

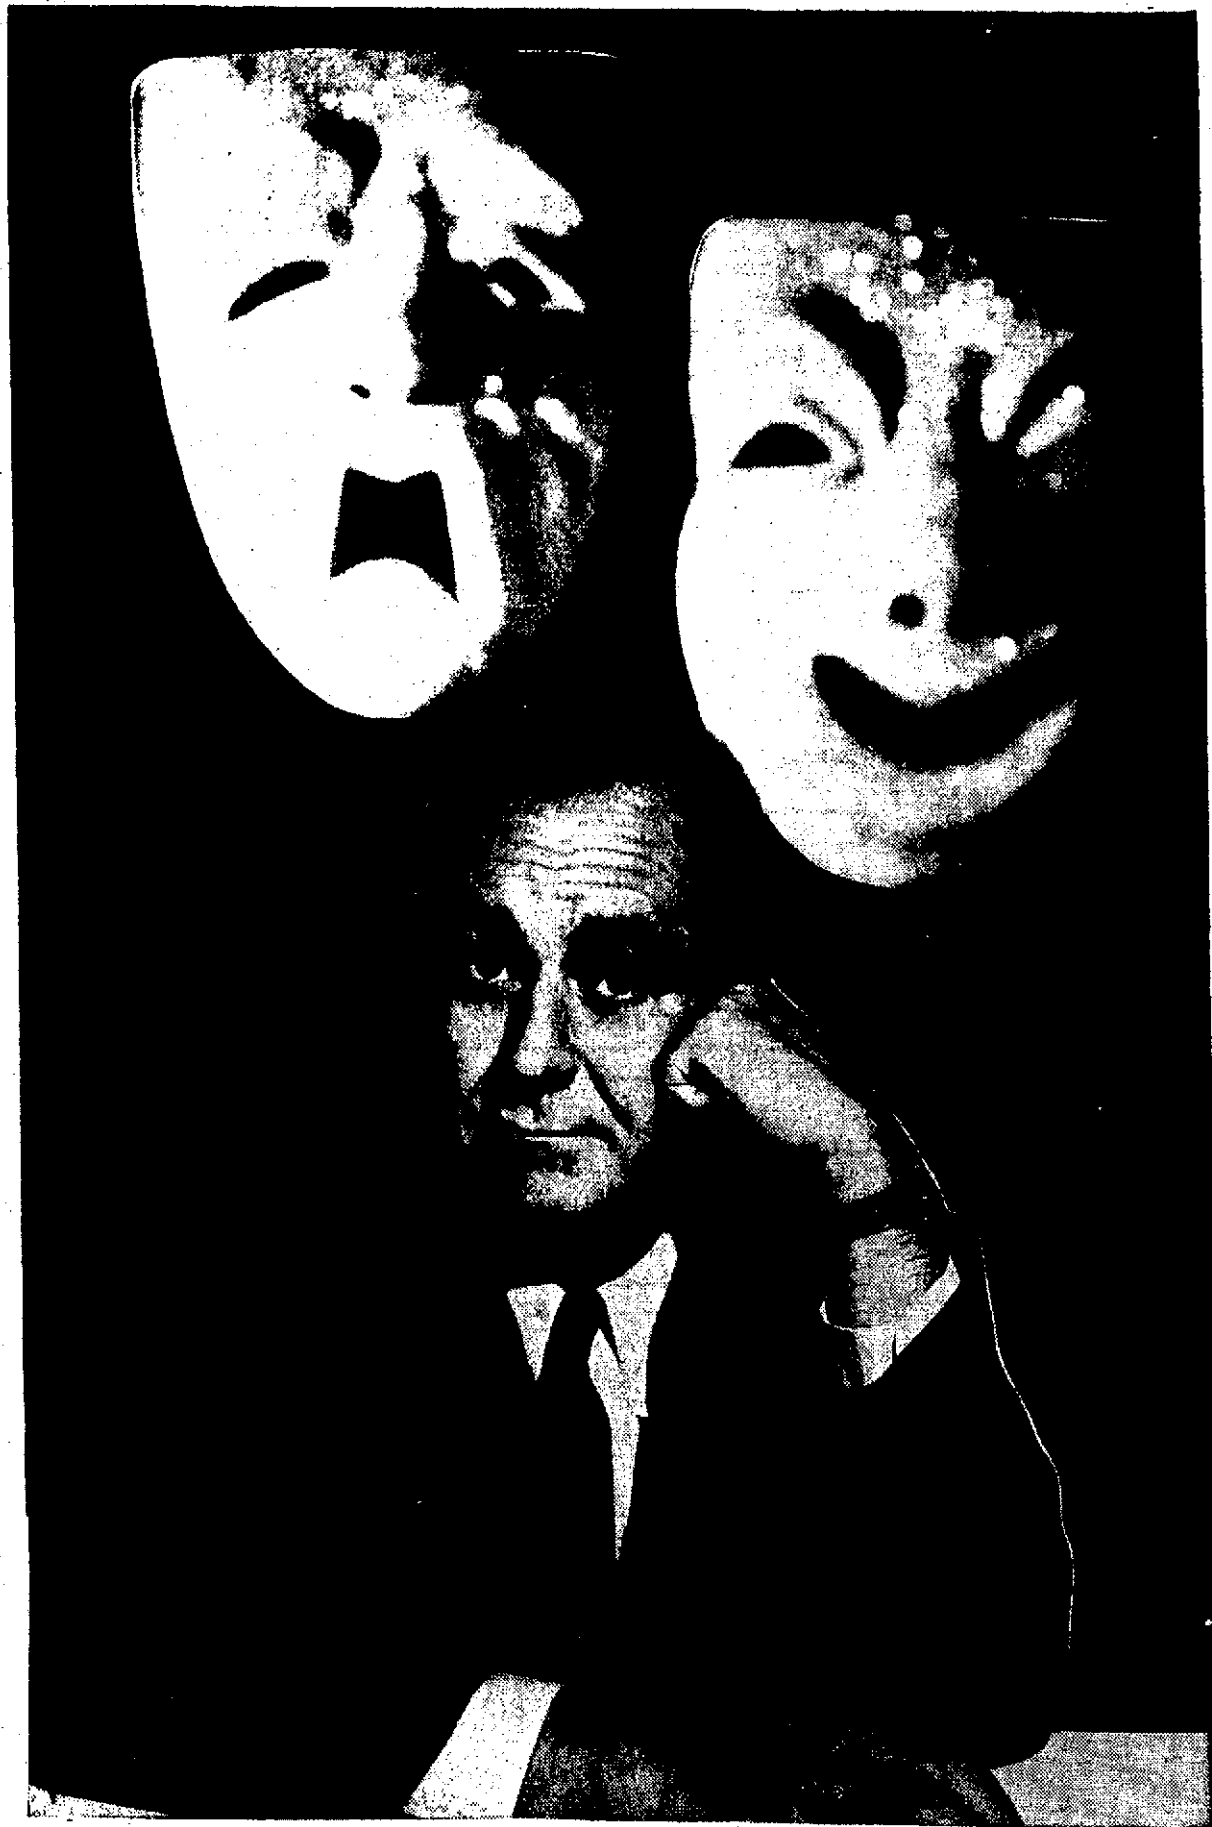

The show, starting 10 p.m. Tuesday on channel 2, will occupy "The Garry Moore Show" timeslot until that program returns in the fall.

Another reason is that it will offer him a change-of-pace from being "good old reliable loud-mouthed baboon."

Not that he's knocking the fame his loud-mouth has brought to him. He enjoys being a celebrity.

"ANYBODY who doesn't is crazy," Backus said.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

Backus Seeks Talent Fight, Hosts New Show Tuesday

"I like being stopped on the sidewalk and having someone ask me for my autograph."

"I enjoy it when I get into an airplane and the captain comes back to shake hands with me."

"And there's nothing wrong, when you walk into a restaurant, with them taking you to the best table."

But funny-man Backus would like to be serious for a change.

He did have one serious opportunity and the result was what he considered his favorite role.

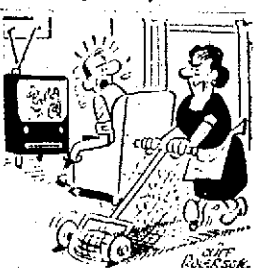

He played the meek father of Jimmy Dean in the movie "Rebel Without A Cause."

"When they cast a big guy (which Backus is) as a meek guy, it's doubly imaginative, it's three times as powerful," he said.

Backus' portrayal was imaginative, was powerful and won him critical and popular acclaim.

BUT IT DID NOT bring him any further offers for serious roles.

He later was offered the Broadway role currently played by Rudy Valle in

"OK-OK- QUIT HINTING!
I'LL MOW THE LAWN!"

"How to Succeed in Business without Really Trying."

"I turned it down," said Backus. "No challenge. It was just another bombastic, loud-mouth part and I'm sick of them."

He was lured into playing a loud-mouth for the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pilot TV film of "Father of the Bride."

"It was so bad," said Backus, "that when the lion came on, he yawned."

The series subsequently was made with Leon Ames in the father role. It aired on CBS this past season and has not been renewed.

"If I'm going to get cast in a serious role, it looks like I'm going to have to write the part myself," he said.

He already is a published author. He and his wife, Henry, have written two books, "Rocks on the Roof" and the recently released "What Are You Doing After the Orgy?"

Neither of the books, however, contains any indication as how Backus would succeed as a serious author. Both the books are funny.

AND JIM does not intend to be "unfunny" as host of the "Talent Scouts" television program.

A little less loud-mouthed, perhaps, but funny.

The fact that the new show will give him many opportunities to ad-lib was an inducement in his taking the job.

For Backus, the ad-lib is to the funnyman like the hair-trigger is to the gunfighter. Jim's not much for hair-triggers, but he likes to ad-lib.

He hopes he'll get a chance someday to hair-trigger his ad-libs at "Tonight."

Turning Off TV Alternative for Spanking

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A research firm recently took a poll of 1,400 parents and found that almost 40 per cent punish their children under 13 by forbidding them to watch television.

This fairly new weapon in a parent's armory now is second only to the old-fashioned spanking. Apparently it has been found more effective than scoldings, banishment to rooms or withholding allowances.

As a matter of fact, television has grown rapidly into a tool of many uses quite apart from its value as an entertainment or time-killing medium for adults.

THE SET itself may be used to cover a worn spot in the carpet or conceal a crack in the wall, to hold flower arrangements or family photographs.

Programs can be used effectively to slip gracefully out of awkward situations: "I'd love to come, Lorna, to see the movies of your trip through Yellowstone, but the Mets are playing the Pirates and you know Charlie and his baseball..."

It provides entertainment for the children on rainy days' permits the adults to have some uninterrupted conversation while the kids are quiet and happy in another room, and—perhaps most important—is more efficient than a sleeping pill if the viewer is in a comfortable prone position.

So television, in spite of all the attacks on it recently, isn't all bad. A lot of us who watch it consistently can also vouch that much of it is entertaining and sometimes even stimulating.

SOUPY SALES prepares to celebrate the Fourth of July on his Wednesday program at 5:30 p.m., channel 7.

ZSA ZSA GABOR clinches a spot for herself with one of her favorite comedians when "The World of Bob Hope" is repeated 9:30 p.m. Friday, channel 4.

Teenagers Make New Discovery - - Mae West

By ERSKINE JOINSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — A butler served the carrot juice in tall, chilled glasses from a silver tray. They were spiked with a jigger of homogenized juices — cucumber, parsley, celery and water cress.

"Honey," Mae West said as we belted the stuff in her luxurious Santa Monica beach home, "this is what does it. If I'm going to look like I do today I wouldn't mind living to be 100."

She's well on the way, you know.

The record books say Mae made her show business debut in 1911. Her age remains a guessing game and you marvel at her appearance, considering how long she has been saying: "Come up and see me sometime."

"PEOPLE just don't eat right," she explains.

But the carrots are just part of her war against age.

"For breakfast," she said, "I have sliced apples and raisins or fruit with a syrup made twisting," she laughed, "ever since I learned to walk."

And if she can swing it, by golly, she just may live to be 100.

With the time and the money ("I don't depend on stocks, dearie, I have real estate"), Mae West's full-time career really is fighting old age — and Mae West impersonators.

What started Mae doing something about carrot juice was meeting a doctor in Scottsdale, Ariz.

"Honey," she tells you, "he went to Arizona to die when he was 40. Then he found this diet, featuring carrot juice. He's 96 now, but he looks 50."

SHE TALKS about doing a movie. "But the show must be built around me. I wouldn't play just a character."

About television she says, "I could be on all the time, but I don't need it."

of powdered almonds, milk and honey. At night all I have is a salad. During the day I just drink carrot juice. Honey, on this diet you don't have to EAT."

The carrot juice was getting to us so we decided to let her tell why she decided to make a record aimed at the teenage trade. She's back in the news, you know, singing "He's Bad But He's Good for Me," and making salty comments to an 18-year-old lad warbling, "Am I Too Young to Fall in Love?"

Sexy, of course. Sex is her favorite subject, next to carrot juice. Not what she says about sex, but the way she says it.

Well, about the record, she announced: "I'm through with muscle men. I've changed to teenagers." Her fan mail, she explained, could the odd switch. "Ever since I appeared on that Oscar telecast with Rock Hudson — ever since my old movies started playing on television — I've been receiving fan letters from teenagers."

MAE WEST lives in the past — "I've never lost my public" — yet she's in tune with the present. "I've been

Feminine TV Audience Prefers Entertainment

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The recent decision of CBS to reorganize its daytime schedule by lengthening two of its soap operas and adding an afternoon version of a popular evening panel reveals pretty definitely what the feminine audience wants: entertainment.

When television was young, programmers enthusiastically loaded the daylight hours with "service" programs. They figured women would leap at the chance to pick up cooking hints, see the latest fashions, learn how to arrange flowers, set tables or remodel last year's suit into this year's muu-muu.

The ladies, it was soon obvious from the ratings, didn't want that at all. The most expensive lesson was learned by NBC with its "Home Show," which was set up in departments, like a women's magazine, and covered the whole field of woman's interest. The program was well done, won plenty of acclaim—and such small audiences it was finally cancelled.

"I STILL DON'T know why," said Arlene Francis, its star. "But I think that perhaps women just want to be entertained—not instructed—on television."

Miss Francis, a regular on Sunday night's "What's My Line?," will guest 8 p. m. Tuesday, channel 2, on "Password."

Although there are no women's service shows on network television today, there are perhaps 75 local shows with fairly impressive audiences on stations around the country.

"But a lot of the women who started off with cooking shows and fashion talks saw the hand-writing, and quietly swung into interview programs," explained a time-buyer for an advertising agency. "Nobody ever found a way to make a TV fashion show interesting, and the women in the audience never seemed to like getting recipes when they had to write them down—even when they also got a demonstration of how to cook it."

"I think that these shows failed because women want to have something they can refer back to for instruction," commented a network program head. "And, of course, that means magazines and newspapers."

Pan and Fan Mail

Why is Ludden not returning to College Bowl next season and who is replacing him?
L.C. Stoppard, Long Beach

Allen Ludden is serving as host of "Password" and has several other TV irons in the fire. No host replacement has as yet been chosen for this popular program.

This channel 5 at 10:30 that stars Steve Allen is a great big flop, I think.

He is trying to be as big as Jack Paar.

Why don't Steve Allen be himself? He is a very funny man if he wants to.

I am a Jack Paar fan. No name, please.

Just because you're a Jack Paar fan is really no reason to be ashamed to sign your name.

I guess I'm just a jinx.

I go to the Dodgers' games about five times a year and everytime I'm there they lose.

I faithfully watch a TV program, "The New Breed."

think it's just great, and it's cancelled.

What can I do about it?
R. Falxen, Norwalk

You can swap your TV set for a radio, then move to San Francisco and watch the Giants' ballgames.

OUR COVER

When Barbara Britton arrived in due course of diligent study at City College, Little Theater work intrigued her. It was in a campus play that a Paramount scout saw her and... presto! almost before anyone could say Barbara Brantingham (that was her maiden name) they were painting a star on her Hollywood dressing room door. Barbara has never forgotten her links with Long Beach—her parents still live here—although life has taken her to New York for work in television. Currently she is a glamorous saleslady for Revlon and has been widely seen on the Ed Sullivan Show. For more about the career of this beautiful star see Page 7.

A segment of Gen. George Custer's ill-fated cavalry rides again at Buena Park. Officially it's called Ghost Patrol, E Troop, 7th Cavalry, Inc., but there is nothing ghostly about the lively men who make up this unusual unit. How they came to form their patrol and how they aim at authentic reproduction of the frontier riders of the Indian wars is told in next Sunday's Southland.

Sketchbook

These architectural accessories are easily built, add charm to any house. Detailed plans tell how to do it.

By Bill Meyerriecks

ARE YOU looking for ways to spruce up a "plain Jane" house?

One of the quickest, and least expensive, is to fit out your Cinderella with a set of shutters and window boxes.

As every architect knows, these "accessories" are immensely helpful in brightening a dull exterior. In gay colors and gingerbread trim, they can make a nondescript house look like the original "Home Sweet Home." More subdued styles and tones will add a note of stately dignity to the most simple bungalow.

The prestige model in shutter design is the traditional louvered type, usually expensive to buy because of the intricate fitting of dozens of louver strips. The Sketchbook plan shows how you can avoid this painstaking work and make louvered shutters quickly and easily — thanks to a modern material. The product is a durable hardboard with a "louvered" face which comes in panels and can be cut just like plywood. You make a frame, insert the hardboard and presto, you're finished!

Along with the louvered shutter, the plan shows you easy ways to make three other types of shutters and a half-dozen different ways to tailor the basic window box to the needs of your house.

Lamp from a Victorian Parlor

SATIN glass, amberina, peachblow, Tiffany, Mary Gregory, Aurene, overlay and "cut velvet" are only a few of the familiar terms that recall the craze for ornamental glass during the late Victorian era. Garnering treasures in this beautiful ware is a diversion enjoyed by many collectors, who use it just as effectively in decoration today as their forebears did.

Tastefully arranged throughout the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Safley of 825 Molino Ave. is a fine assortment of 19th century art glass. Displayed near a window, some of the pieces catch the sparkle of the sunlight, refracting the rays into scintillating colors; others brighten corners with vibrant hues and fancy shapes. Cut glass, cobalt blue, frosted amberina, "clam-broth," "end-of-day," satin glass and other favorite types are found here.

ANTIQUES

A prized item is a red satin-glass lamp of rare design, dating from about 1880. The Safleys obtained the lamp about 10 years ago in Westfield, New York. They report that in the hundreds of antique shops they have visited in the United States during the past decade, they have never seen one exactly like it.

THE TERM "satin glass" usually means opaque white glass, flaked (coated) with a color, and then given a satiny finish with an acid bath. (Exceptions are certain patented satin-finish glasses, such as Peachblow and Burmese). It is not certain where satin glass originated, but it was made at many American glass-works in a variety of colors from the 1880s on. Although there is no mark on the Safley lamp, it is thought to be from a Pennsylvania factory.

This piece has a diamond-quilted pattern. It is 24 inches high, with the lower globe measuring 12 inches in diameter. The upper shade, 10 inches across and 8 inches high, lends grace and symmetry with its smaller, elliptical shape. It was originally made to burn kerosene, and the Safleys have never converted it to electricity. There is a wick and a clear glass chimney. When the lamp is lighted, and the Safleys often use it, it emits a cheerful, rosy glow reminiscent of Grandma's Victorian parlor.

Why the magic wand singled out Long Beach's Barbara Britton as a

MOVIE CINDERELLA

By Charles W. Crutcher

BEFORE the magic wand singled her out and won for her a scholarship, put her in a parade, and made her a movie star, she was known as the little blue-eyed girl with the blonde curls who lived at 11th Street and Cherry Avenue, and walked nine blocks to Lincoln kindergarten.

"She liked to walk," says Mrs. Adna Brantingham, Barbara's mother. "She walked to Franklin and Poly; she caught the bus to City College because it was too far for her to walk."

Several factors helped and influenced Barbara Brantingham to gain an edge on fame as movie star Barbara Britton.

She had kind and understanding parents and although she is the only child, she was not spoiled. In 1939 she graduated with honors from Polytechnic High School; she was awarded a scholarship to Long Beach City College by Long Beach Lions Club.

SHE ENROLLED at City College in September 1938.

"Barbara was very cooperative and had a happy disposition," says her capable instructor, Harold F. Seal, her teacher in American Institutions. "She stressed English, public speaking and drama; but her goal was drama."

In 1941 she rode the Long Beach float, "Peace and Honor," in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses.

She was Paula in "The Torchbearer" at LBCC Little Theater. "But it was the role as Tina in 'The Old Maid' that won her recognition," says proficient Kathrayn Kennedy, who was Barbara's dramatic coach at City College. "Milton Lewis, a Paramount scout, was in the audience, and he liked her performance."

"Barbara was charming as a girl, and she is equally charming as a woman. She never forgets me; she came to see me the last time she was in Long Beach."

Paramount officials thought Barbara's last name, Brantingham, too long and lacked euphony.

Barbara suggested a change to Britton, her grandmother's maiden name. Paramount liked it and she became Barbara Britton to the movie world.

While being considered for the role of the Catholic nun opposite Ray Milland in "Til We Meet Again," Barbara registered at the University of Los Angeles; she wanted to finish where she left off at LBCC.

"But Frank Borzage, who was to direct her in this picture, objected," said Mrs. Brantingham. "You have the part," said Mr. Borzage."

BARBARA WENT to lunch and when she returned, a man was putting a star and her name on her dressing room.

Barbara showed gratitude. She made a large batch of gingerbread one day from an old recipe of her mother's. She made 96 boxes out of cardboard and wrote upon each box the appropriate words, "Bundles from Britton." It was during World War II.

She gave a box to guards on duty at the studio front gate; and gave a box to everyone she met on the way to her dressing room, saving a box for each member of her cast.

Barbara was shown making gingerbread when she appeared on a TV celebrity advertising program. "I had always told her," Mrs. Brantingham says, "after she dropped the contents of eggs into the gingerbread ingredients to scrape the shell with her finger, and sure enough, she remembered!"

HER FILMS INCLUDE "The Great John L.," "Bandit Queen," "Cham-pagne for Caesar," "Wake Island," "Return of Monte Cristo," "Captain Kidd," "The Virginian" and "Secret of the Wastelands."

"When she started work in 'Wastelands' with Bill Boyd, Bill didn't like Barbara's riding breeches," says Mrs. Brantingham. "And when she was riding (she had not been on a horse before), the horse shied at something (Continued on Page 16)

In the days of steam pumpers, this was topnotch firefighting equipment in Borough of Queens, New York. Long Beach firemen are restoring a like unit to its original glory.

Firemen first dismantled the antiquated apparatus, made repairs and then rebuilt it. Above, Pat Lyon, Herbert Bramley and Ray Potts re-install a refurbished accessory.

Hours of off-duty labor and gallons of polish and paint have gone into restoring the unit, all provided by firemen. Above, Ray Schwartz does stint with paint brush.

Granddaddy of the Firehouse

By Helen L. Gillum

OUT OF THE SMOKY limbo of a romantic era in firefighting is coming a smoke-huffing, fire-flashing contraption that will serve as both the symbol of an early day in the Long Beach history and as a basis for a museum which firemen hope to develop. It's an Amoskeag steam pumper of the kind that used to thrill Grandpa in his boyhood days when it charged gaudily out of the firehouse in a bedlam of smoke, steam, bells, shouts and pounding of horses' hoofs.

Unveiling of the ancient vehicle which Long Beach firemen are rebuilding and refurbishing is set for July 4 at the firemen's Fifth Annual Circus and Fireworks Show in Veterans Memorial Stadium.

For months the fire lads have been working toward the July 4 goal. They plan to have the old engine in working order to show modern kids something of the drama of a fire in the old days.

At first, it was hoped to drive the pumper into the stadium behind horses in original style. But now there is some doubt if horses suitably conditioned to the scary equipment can be found. A trailer ride may have to suffice for the dauntless veteran.

BATTERED FROM countless rounds with fires of the past, the old-timer has contrasted sharply in its humble status beside the shining, modern equipment at Central Station No. 1 in the new Public Safety Building. But the owners of the rig, members of Long Beach Firemen's Memorial Association, who work during their free hours on the outmoded apparatus, plan to restore it completely to its original red and nickel-trimmed glory.

Herb Bramley, engineer at Fire Station No. 1, who might be called the instigator of the plot to purchase and restore the old machine, says that it is only one item of many that the association eventually plans to acquire in its hobby of establishing an authentic museum of old firefighting equipment and mementos.

"Men from the various stations work on a section of the machine at a time, bringing it back to exchange for another when completed," states Bramley.

THE COAL AND wood-burning pumper dates back to at least 1890. It was obtained from 20th Century-Fox Studios, through the efforts of Paul McGinnis and Ted Bowers of Long Beach. Earlier attempts had been made by Fire Chiefs A. C. Du Ree and Frank Sandeman to get the original Amoskeag pumper used in Long Beach years ago. After tracing the old rig through several lumber camps and other areas, they finally located it in the "backwoods" of Northern California.

The deteriorated condition of the rig and the roughness of the terrain made a move to Long Beach out of the question. The engine from Hollywood became the logical choice. It is identical to that purchased soon after the Long Beach department was organized by then Fire Chief C. E. Shrewsbury. Up to that time, all equipment was hand-drawn. But with the purchase of six sturdy fire horses, and the handsome Amoskeag, the fire department became horse-drawn.

"IT IS INTERESTING to note," Bramley said "that in 1907, Long Beach had the distinction of operating the first automobile fire apparatus on the Pacific Coast. The department became completely motorized in 1914."

But for several years after the purchase of the steam pumper (as true old-timers will recall), it was "Prince," "King," "Major," "Barney," "Tom," and "Jerry" that, with manes and tails flying, alternated in thundering down Long Beach's dusty streets with the pumper in tow, its smokestack belching smoke and fire to rival the flames the firemen sought to extinguish.

Former Chief Du Ree recalls unique traits of the old steam pumpers, such as the all-important business of getting a fire started in the fire box, a procedure that would turn gray the curly hair of any up-to-the-minute fireman of today.

Hoodoo Ship

The Joyita's log unfolds like an eerie nightmare

By Wilmon Menard

POSSIBLY no pleasure craft afloat that has had the eerie and tragic destiny of a 69-foot motor yacht built in 1931 at Wilmington Boat Works for Roland West, a Hollywood film director, which he christened for his wife Jewel: Joyita. West, at her gay launching, couldn't know that less than a quarter of a century later she'd be known as the "mystery ship of the Pacific," a hoodoo-ship that in November 1959 was towed to the beach of Nasova, near Levuka, Fiji, her group of white planter-owners abandoning her to a graveyard on the tide-beaten South Seas strand.

The Joyita had proven herself many times to be a jinx ship, and there was nothing to do with such a cursed vessel but to leave her to the pounding surf, the blazing sun and tropical tempests, until at last she broke up and the South Pacific's backwash carried away the final remains of her hulk.

The log of the Joyita is indeed a strange one.

THE LATE Milton Bacon of Southern California bought the yacht in 1934 and sailed her until 1941, when the Navy requisitioned her for war-time patrol duty in Hawaiian waters. During one of her patrols she ran on a reef off Oahu, but was refloated and repaired. At the end of the war, the owners did not want her back, so the Navy put her up for sale as war surplus. She was finally bought in September of 1952 by Dr. Ellen Katherine Luomala, of Finnish extraction, an anthropologist, writer and lecturer at the University of Hawaii. Dr. Luomala turned the craft over for commercial fishing at Canton Island to a South Pacific skipper, a Britisher by the name of Capt. Thomas Henry Miller, 39, formerly a British commander in the Salvage Section of the Royal Navy, whom she had previously met and fallen in love with while on a field trip for the Bernice Bishop Museum of Honolulu in the Gilbert and Ellice Islands.

But the adventurous Capt. Miller, or Dusty as he was known throughout the South Pacific, was a mariner and not a fisherman, and the commercial fishing venture over the next few years proved a failure. From March to October of 1955, Dusty lived aboard the Joyita in Apia Harbor of Western Samoa, destitute and despondent. Then, miraculously, he was offered a charter for a trading voyage to the Tokelau Islands 270 miles to the north, by E. A. Coxon Trading Co. of Apia. Afraid that his luck would run out on this, too, Dusty signed on a crew, loaded passengers and cargo, and hurriedly sailed out of Apia, just after dawn on October 3, 1955.

THE 70-TON, twin-screw motor-vessel never reached Fakaofu in the Tokelau. An intensive surface and air search was conducted, but the Joyita was not found until 37 days later, when Capt. Gerald Douglas of the trading vessel Tuvalu, on a voyage from Suva to the island of Funafuti in the Ellice Group, accidentally sighted her just after dawn on Nov. 10, drifting in a waterlogged condition 90 miles north of Udu Point of Fiji's Vanua Levu—strangely deserted and looted. This prompted the Fiji Times to comment: "The systematic stripping of the ship does not point very strongly to the work of islanders, but rather to a raid under expert instruction."

When the Joyita was towed to Suva, Fiji, and pumped out so that marine experts could inspect her, nothing could be found to warrant the mass abandonment of the vessel by passengers and crew. She had unusually heavy planks in her hull and all three holds were lined with five-inch slabs of cork. The chief surveyor of ships for the Government Marine Department of Wellington, New Zealand, V. G. Boivin, stated: "The Joyita would have continued to float in the condition in which she was found indefinitely." Capt. E. L. James, harbor master of Suva, declared: "The vessel could never have sunk unless she broke up. . . . I just can't understand why everyone would have abandoned her."

And Capt. Miller, a master mariner, with war-time experience in the salvaging of ships, knew her great buoyancy, so he never would have ordered the total abandonment of the Joyita during the calm voyage.

There are many wild theories as to the strange fate of those aboard the Joyita, but too few clues to form a definite solution.

A FORMER seaman who had sailed aboard the Joyita between Pago Pago and Apia, when Miller was hauling fish for Van Camp's tuna plant in American Samoa, reported: "On two occasions we were followed by a strange vessel without lights. Dusty switched off his lights, took the wheel and steered the Joyita into a rain-squall. The second time we were able to get into Apia Harbor before the mystery ship could overtake us. Dusty was very shaken up by this repeated trailing, but he never gave an explanation why he thought the craft was following us."

When the Joyita was repaired in Suva, a group of Vanua Levu planters tried to put her into trading service, but the jinx was still on her. In 1957, she grounded on the treacherous Horseshoe Reef and in 1959 she ran aground on a reef at Vatuvula, near Makogai in the Fijian Group. It was then that the owners decided to beach her at Nasova and let her rot.

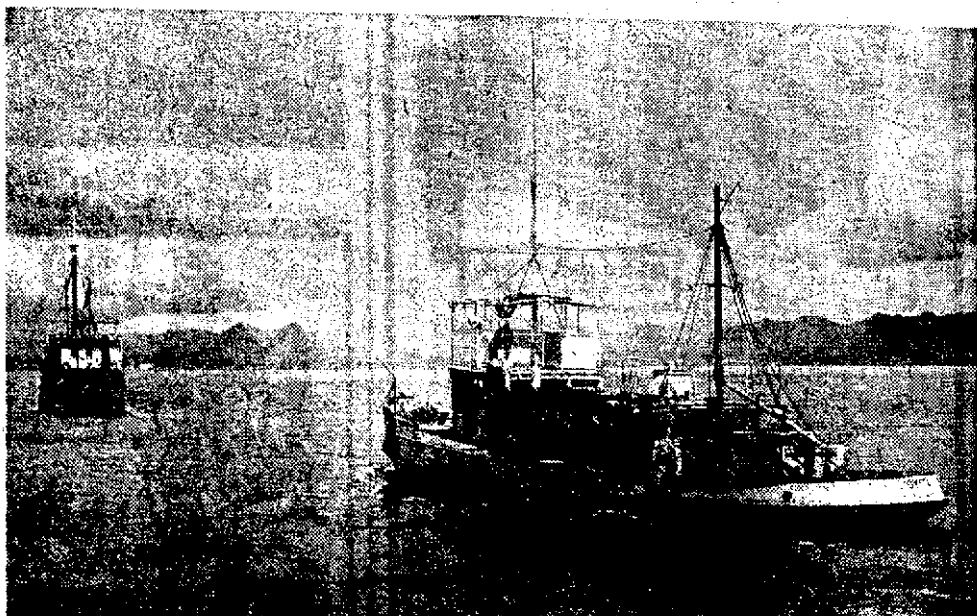

But in her strange pattern of destiny, the Joyita was rescued. In August 1961, Viscount

Maugham, in-peerage nephew of writer Somerset Maugham, visited Fiji, saw the doomed vessel, researched on its strange log—and decided to write a book for an eventual movie. He bought the Joyita for a pittance, and made plans to send her to Japan for repairs, with the idea, possibly, of having her play her tragic real-life role in the film.

BUT NOW IT seems that ownership of the jinxed vessel has brought bad luck to Viscount Maugham. An Italian film company of Rome, with three successful South Seas films to their credit, decided to produce a fourth, and have selected the Joyita mystery as their current project.

Honolulu investors have an equal share in the film, which will be released in America and Europe. The shooting script is completed, and an offer is expected to be extended to Ray Milland to play Capt. Miller. Cameras are scheduled to roll in late September, using Kailua-Kona Bay on Big Hawaii Island as Apia, Western Samoa, and the Samoan model village of Laie, on the windward side of Hawaii's Oahu Island, as authentic Samoan atmosphere. A vessel, identical to the Joyita, has already been located in Kewalo Basin, Honolulu. So it appears as if Viscount Maugham's plans for a film on the Joyita have been thwarted.

Along many island waterfronts of the South Pacific islands veteran skippers and traders will argue for many years the mystery of the Joyita. Perhaps the Italian-American film will offer a logical reason for the disappearance of the hoodoo-vessel's passengers and crew.

After preliminary repairs and being pumped out at Labasa, the Joyita was towed to Suva for an exhaustive examination by marine experts. The strange circumstances of her abandonment, however, were not learned.

Hot Seat on a Firecrackerbox

By Bob Ruskau

"BOAT RACERS? We're crazy, man! Didn't you know?"

Then Leroy Penhall turned serious and added:

"I personally think everybody ought to be just a little bit crazy about doing something out of the routine. My choice just happens to be speedboat racing. It's the greatest thing I know to divert my mind completely away from business."

Penhall will certainly have his mind 100 per cent diverted for several bustling minutes July 4.

As new owner of the 1961 National High Point Champion boat, Hot Cinders, the Anaheim water speed bug will hold down the hottest seat in one of the hottest classes competing in the big, all-inboard motorboat race meet on Long Beach Marine Stadium.

THEY CALL Penhall's class Crackerboxes, which is meaningless. Firecrackerboxes would be better. They're explosive.

When 31-year-old Penhall gets his mind back to business it will be to a hard but lucrative one. He's a contractor for concrete sawing (they use diamond-tooth saws), much of it in highway construction work.

This enables Penhall to keep in relative comfort his speedboat-loving blonde wife, Bonnie, and three young Penhalls—Connie, 8; Jerry, 6, and Bruce, 5. It also helps him to campaign Hot Cinders in major race meets of the national championship circuit.

For, the lure which calls speedboat racers to the roughshod and at times dangerous wet-wash trail, definitely is not money.

Inboard motorboat racer Leroy Penhall explains boating "hows" to Barbara Fiske, queen of July 4 regatta here.

IT'S TRUE THAT West Long Beach Lions Club, sponsors of the big Wednesday regatta, have posted a fine array of awards for the 14-year-old classic.

Even so, if the biggest winner of the slam-bang meet takes home enough to cover half of his expenses, he'll be lucky.

If he isn't lucky and perhaps proves to be the biggest loser, he could well see a rig of glistening hardwood, gleaming dural and aluminum, which cost anywhere from $4 to $10 thousand (sometimes more), blasted into bits by some ultra-speed accident.

Some of that is expected, though. All the drivers appear to philosophize that "It won't happen to me." But it's the chance they take to get that high, high, HIGH 10-minutes or less of fierce competitive exultation from a two-heat race.

Worth it?

AFTER SEVEN YEARS (he first got the violent virus in 1955 and drove a boat called Slide Rule) Leroy Penhall says:

"Absolutely — even though you sometimes can't explain why."

"To continue top racing and to maintain top caliber equipment demands a lot. Plus money, there are the untold hours of planning and work just to get those couple of hot rides."

"But if the rides are good, even though you don't win, all of it somehow seems to come back. It's measured by a word called 'satisfaction'."

"If that's crazy, man, I like it."

Photos by the Author

Tract Home Responds to a Personalizing

Photos by Joe Rissinger

French provincial furnishings, in their simple elegance, are well suited to this type of home treatment. The fireplace was redone in white and new brass equipment.

EXTRAS and comforts of a custom home were long in the minds of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Goldsmith as they envisioned some day building their own dwelling place. Then, about a year ago, they found a house at 11151 Donnis Rd., in the Rossmoor area of Los Alamitos, that had such basic possibilities of becoming the home of their desire that they bought. Now it is tailored to their specification and is all that they once visualized.

Individual changes and/or additions the Goldsmiths have made in the home are relatively small; added together they combine to make the place extremely attractive and livable. The first noticeable change is on the exterior. The length of the house, situated on a corner lot, runs parallel to the street, with three bedrooms viewing the street. Originally, the porch extended part way, and one window was shuttered (on the outside). The porch has been extended the full length of the house, shutters frame each window (and are also used inside), and white iron grillwork forms attractive framework, pillar fashion, along the porch.

Tract houses may have the same basic floor plan, but they can be customized to the point of being unrecognizable from their counterparts if the owners have artistic skill and imagination. The view from the entry in the Goldsmith home is an example.

ALONG THE far wall of the living room, which is actually the rear wall of the open kitchen, a French mural forms an almost three-dimensional background for a handsome marble shelf. The latter, a long, narrow rectangle, stands on carved wooden legs, made to resemble marble, the pattern of which is carried out on the lower half of the mural. Dramatic, at the far end of the marble shelf, stands a high, ornate silver candelabra.

Color accents in the mural are Wedgewood green. A tiny Wedgewood knickknack is placed next to a fine crystal piece to ornament the other end of the marble shelf.

Martini beige predominates the color scheme of the living room. The carpeting continues into the dining room and small family room facing the kitchen on the other side. The couch is curved, facing twin chairs upholstered in autumn tones. A subdued orange is the other color accent in the room, picked up in couch pillows from the pattern in the chairs.

Originally, the fireplace in the living room was red brick, which the Goldsmiths changed to white. They had the floor around the fireplace replaced with marble, added a brass fireplace set. The marble near the fireplace is again accented on the large, round, marble-topped coffee table in front of the couch.

THE FRENCH Provincial theme is carried through to the dining room. A Queen Ann mirror tops the buffet which has a silver tea service on the top counter.

What appears to be marble on the kitchen floor is really a hard-finish vinyl. A large picture window above the sink views the swimming pool and patio area.

The family room is furnished with a white naugahyde couch, TV and occasional chair. Colors in the chair are accented with high-backed chairs that face the bar into the kitchen—beige, blue and brown.

The master bedroom is done in gold and white, with a gold quilted bedspread, white silk, gold-flecked paper in back of the bed, and white silk paper in the rest of the room. The room has an adjoining bath.

The three Goldsmith teenagers' rooms which line the front of the home are immaculate. A girl's room has a canopy bed using white silk taffeta edged with a Provincial print in blue.

BOYS' ROOMS are tailored in effect and rugs in each are hued to the tones of the rooms.

The lot lends itself well to pool and patio planning. The pool is customized, with rock used as a decorative note. Adjacent dressing rooms and bath are located in the garage structure.

A patio is covered with aluminum, curved artistically to add to the outside appearance. White wrought iron furniture carries out the motif of the front of the home.

Herbs for Flavor

Herb growing can be a most satisfying experience for the culinary minded gardener, for fresh herbs have so much more flavor than the dried products. Grow them in pots and plant boxes or in the ground outside the kitchen door. Tuck them into any sunny border and see how well they go with most ornamentals.

Herb growing has become much easier in recent years, since members of the California Association of Nurserymen started stocking good selections of the most popular names on the spice shelf.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Narcotics Repeat Rate High

By Ben Zinser

Independent Press Telegram Medical-Science Writer

MORE THAN 90 per cent of those persons hospitalized for narcotics addiction become readdicted, public health officials have found.

And more than 92 per cent of the readdictions occur within six months of discharge from the hospital, says Public Health Reports.

The study—of 1,912 patients discharged from the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital in Lexington, Ky.—shows that age is the most significant factor in readdiction rate for men. Readdiction generally is lower after age 30.

The researchers' conclusion: Readdiction rates will remain high until community aftercare facilities become available. Prolonging hospitalization beyond a month does not improve permanent recovery.

A SIMPLE squeeze test can help the doctor diagnose rupture of the tendon of Achilles—a condition that sometimes results when young and middle-aged white-collar workers participate in sports.

The Achilles tendon is that which attaches to the heel, originating from the muscles in the calf.

When the ruptured tendon is suspected, the doctor has the patient lie prone on a table, feet extending over the end. Or the patient can kneel on a chair.

The doctor squeezes the muscles in the middle third of the calf—just below the widest girth.

Normal reaction: A movement of the sole of the foot.

Ruptured Achilles tendon: No flexion of the sole of the foot.

The report is in the Journal of Trauma.

A POWERFUL new drug called angiotensin II is the most effective agent now available for the treatment of shock—a state of collapse marked by a severe drop in blood pressure.

The evaluation is that of Northwestern University researchers.

Given intravenously to 21 patients, angiotensin II restored normal blood pressure to 15 of them. The other six were already near death.

Among the 15 helped were four persons whose outlook had been considered hopeless. They were suffering from advanced shock resulting from bacterial infections—either staph or strep.

LOSS OF consciousness sometimes occurs during migraine attacks in young girls, says a British researcher.

Dr. Edwin R. Bickerstaff says that such loss of consciousness is slow—never abrupt. The patient recovers consciousness with a throbbing ache in the back of the head.

Before headache—sometimes as much as 45 minutes before—there may be visual disturbances, dizziness, ringing in the ear, unsteadiness and abnormal sensations in the arms, legs and jaw.

These warning symptoms are usually more prolonged than those experienced in epilepsy, says Dr. Bickerstaff. Also, the headache itself is usually more painful than that following an epileptic seizure.

Girls who suffer such impairment of consciousness are usually from families with a history of migraine.

Dr. Bickerstaff, who is affiliated with the Midland Centre for Neurosurgery in Southwick, England, gives his report in the journal Lancet.

La Reina Rule

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy. For reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you explain EUBANK, EUBANKS and HUBANKS.—A. E., C. E., Mrs. H., Long Beach.

A. E., C. E., H.: EUBANK, EUBANKS and HUBANKS commemorate the famous English yew-trees. These beautiful evergreens were formerly prized as wood for making bows and arrows. The original form of these names was "Yew-bank" for "River-bank lined with yew-trees." George Ewbank, an ancestor, lived in Lancashire, England, in 1636. The family coat-of-arms has three interlaced gold chevrons below three black balls on a gold band crossing the top of a black shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like genealogy of McCANTS and McCANCE.—M.B., Bellflower; Mrs. M., Long Beach.

M.B., Mrs. B.: McCANTS and McCANCE have both Scotch and Irish forefathers. The original Gaelic form of these names was MacCainsh or MacCaish meaning "Descendants of the Only-Choice," a curious old cognomen. Ancestors resided in the western Scotch coastal district of Morven, and in County Down, Ireland. The Scotch branch of this family were related to Clan MacInnes. Their coat-of-arms has three blue buckles on a diagonal silver stripe, placed below six blue stars on a horizontal silver stripe. These emblems are on a blue shield. American ancestors include William, David and George McCance of Adams County, Pennsylvania, land owners in 1771.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have data on SANTOS.—Mrs. I.S., Bellflower.

I.S.: SANTOS, Spanish in background, translates as "The Saints." This surname was initially used by a family who had a group of religious shrines on their property, which led to their estate being called the "Place of the Saints." The Santos coat-of-arms, granted in Spanish Andalusia, has three wavy blue stripes across the center of a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you history on HOGAN? —Mrs. H., V.H., Long Beach.

Mrs. H., V.H.: HOGAN is traced to an uncle of King Brian Boru, a famous Irish ruler who reigned from 1002 to 1014 A.D. The original clan name, O'Hogain, meant "Sons of the little, young man." This lineage were natives of Tipperary. Their coat-of-arms has three silver birds on a black chevron placed across the center of a silver shield.

and Barbara flew over the horse's head.
"Barbara thought Paramount was more concerned about the welfare of the breeches after the fall than they were about her."

She co-starred with Robert Stack in "Bwana Devil," the first full-length color 3D picture ever made.

BARBARA BRITTON is a cover girl, too. Her face has adorned 36 magazine covers, including Woman's Home Companion, Look and Ladies Home Journal.

She played Mrs. North and Dick Denning was her husband in the TV series, "Mr. and Mrs. North," sponsored by Revlon and televised from Hollywood. From this series she went to New York in 1957, advertised again for Revlon on "The $4,000 Dollar Question."

"She wanted to play on Broadway," Mrs. Brantingham recalls, "and it looked as though she would get this wish. She signed the contract for a play but the producer died in a Lake Erie air crash, ending plans for the play."

Barbara is married to Dr. E. J. Czukur, a psychiatrist, and they have two children, Theodore, 14, and Christopher Eugenia, 10, both of whom have been on television with their mother. They live in New York City. When they find time, they steal away to their 200-year old farmhouse on 30 acres at Bethel, Conn., 65 miles from Manhattan, for relaxation.

"IT IS A PARADISE for the kids," says Brantingham. "There's an 18-horse and two-carriage merry-go-round, run by a gasoline motor, and a record plays while it runs. There's lake for swimming, archery, and a bowling alley."

"Barbara likes to share pleasures at the farm," says Mrs. Brantingham. "One Sunday when she attended the little church in Bethel, which was celebrating its 100th anniversary, the bishop of her church in New York was there for the occasion. She invited everyone present for a covered dish dinner—and 170 persons showed up."

Barbara Britton has shared good fortune with her parents, who faithfully watch her in the starring role of a glamorous saleslady for Revlon on the Ed Sullivan Show at 8 p. m. (PDT) every other Sunday. In 1960 she gave her parents a new car; in 1961, a beautiful white home at 563 Winslow Ave.

Pears have the unique quality of blending well with many flavors, making them a reliable ally of the housewife in preparing meals for the family and of the hostess readying party refreshments. Cinnamon Pear Salad, pictured here, has all the delectable ingredients that make for compliments.

Salad With Pear-sonality

A GOOD SALAD is like a good joke . . . light, refreshing, with just a bit of bite to it.

Such a creation is Cinnamon Pear Salad. Lettuce, cottage cheese, cinnamon candies with chopped nut meats for crunchiness, combine into a salad worth serving often.

By Mildred K. Flanary

Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

All you do is take a can of pears and share their refreshing enchantment. Mint them, serve them as a meat accompaniment or combine them with your favorite dairy foods. The salads (desserts, too) you create will give any meal a "pear-sonality" that always produces compliments, as well as requests for second helpings.

Fast, too, but don't take our word—take a can of pears and see.

GRADE CARD

Summer Discipline

By Harry Karns

Education Research Associates

DURING THE school year, discipline is a chore parents share with teachers; with school out for the summer, and the children home most of the time, it becomes a full-time job for mother.

It is a job that goes easier when mother has a set of rules. Children not only need rules, but want them.

Mrs. Mario L. Faegre, in a bulletin of the U. S.
Department of Health, Education and Welfare, declares:

"Children need to have some rules to guide them.
Not dozens, which restrict their activities in all directions, but a few clear ones, such as the times when they are expected to show up at home, the boundaries within which they should play, the home duties that are theirs. It is more comfortable to know what one can and can't do than to be uncertain."

Here are other items of advice the experts generally agree on.

1. Make sure the child understands why he is being punished. Explain carefully the moral and practical factors involved.

2. Be fair. Is the infraction really a "federal case," or is it so small that it deserves nothing more than a warning? Are you punishing the right child? It's not always the one who comes crying who has been hurt.
Indeed, it's often just the other way around. In any event, hold the trial before imposing sentence.

3. Ask yourself: "Am I punishing the child to improve his behavior—or to satisfy my own anger?" The purpose of punishment and discipline is to prevent the child from repeating his mistake, not merely to hurt or make him feel bad. Harsh punishment creates a spirit of rebellion and is of questionable value as a preventive.

4. Don't drag out your punishment. Impose it and forget the incident. To express anger and disapproval over a long period of time is tantamount to double jeopardy. The child begins to feel that you dislike him. Make it clear that it is the action, not the child, of which you disapprove. Punish, and then forget.

5. Normally, prefer the withholding of privileges to physical punishment. To withhold a privilege is to say, in effect: "All right, you haven't performed as you should, so you don't get the things that go with good conduct. Get back on the track, and those privileges will be yours again." This usually shows the child that he can't knock society's laws over like ten-pins and still enjoy the rights to which he is accustomed. Physical punishment, however painful, does not teach that lesson.

(If you wish assistance in helping your child to do good work in school, mail questions and requests to Harry Karns, Room 403, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12. Letters cannot be answered individually, but some will be answered in this "Grade Card" column.)

A NEW ACHIEVEMENT IN SANITARY PROTECTION!

Confidets

the only sanitary napkin - with true anatomical shape
and accident-proof inner shield...for the greatest comfort and protection
you've ever known!

5 reasons why new Confidets make other leading sanitary napkins out-of-date, ill-fitting and inadequate...

1. Only true anatomical shape. Confidets® are the only sanitary napkin fully tapered and shaped to fit body contours. Wide in front for more protection—narrow in back for greater comfort—don't bunch or bulge. Confidets can be worn with any standard belt . . . fasten easily, fit securely.

2. Only one with proportioned depth for more protection. No other napkin has extra thickness in middle where greatest absorbency is needed. Protects like a super pad with less bulkiness than a junior size.

3. Only accident-proof inner shield that's full size and securely held in position. Moisture simply cannot penetrate this feather-light shield, so under part of this new napkin stays dry, soft.

4. Only multi-layer filler with this unique arrangement. It holds 8 times its weight in moisture as proved by laboratory tests. The pure, fine quality materials absorb at maximum speed. You're blissfully secure with Confidets!

5. Exclusive ultra soft-strength cover. Only Confidets has a cover so comfortably soft against the skin yet has so much flexible strength in use. Try Confidets—developed and patented by Scott Paper Company.

You Ask We Answer

By Haskin

Q. Please describe the animal called the Yule, which is used in heraldry. L. A.

A. The Yule (also called Eale) was a mythical animal, black in color. It is said to have been as big as a horse and to have had the tail of an elephant the jowls of a boar, and outlandishly long horns which could be moved about "as the needs of battle dictate." Pliny is reported to have been the first to describe the Yule, in his "Natural History," but no one is quite sure what beast he had in mind.

Q. Do flies carry disease germs inside their bodies? R. N.

A. Bacteria capable of transmitting disease are carried in the gastro-intestinal tract of flies as well as on their legs and bodies. These bacteria may be deposited wherever the flies alight.

The Man Who Went Berserk

By Vera Williams

Independent Press Telegram Book Editor

STRANGE THINGS happen in a Southern town. Suddenly, Tucker Caliban, a Negro, faithful descendant of faithful servitors, seemingly goes berserk. He burns his house, ruins the land on which he has worked so hard, shoots his livestock. Then Tucker, his wife, and child leave the town for an unknown destination. And as if by accord, all the other Negroes leave too.

William Melvin Kelley, a young Negro, has thus written an imaginative first novel in "A DIFFERENT DRUMMER" (Doubleday, $3.95). It is a haunting and well-told story.

James Baldwin is also a Negro writer, and "ANOTHER COUNTRY" (Dial, $5.95) is no first novel. Baldwin has long since won his spurs as not merely one of the best American Negro writers, but as one of the very best American writers.

"Another Country" is set in a quite different scene than Kelley's novel — Greenwich Village and Harlem. It tells of a year in the lives of a broke and hungry Negro jazz musician; his 21-year-old sister; of the crisis in the lives

LEONARD SPIGELGASS

If you'd like to know how to tour Europe for $500 a day, read Leonard Spigelgass' new book "THE SCUTTLE UNDER THE BONNET" (Doubleday, $3.95). The first step, the author says, is to buy a completely outrageous foreign car; the rest will follow inevitably.

of a suddenly famous white writer and his wife; of an actor son of a wealthy white Southern family, and a self-styled "white trash" girl who has fled the South and her husband. It is one of Baldwin's best.

CRISES, PERILS — and what the President proposes to do about them — are succinctly presented in "TO TURN THE TIDE," a selection of President John F.

Kennedy's speeches and writing from his nomination through the end of his first legislative year (Harper & Brothers, $3.95).

Edited by John W. Gardner, president of the Carnegie Foundation, it has a foreword by Carl Sandburg and an introduction by the President.

In his editor's note, Mr. Gardner writes: "This is not a history of the first legislative year. Nor is it a comprehensive collection of the President's official communications during that year. It is a selection of the most important things the President had to say about the issues we face as a nation. In 1961 the gravest of these issues were international, and the selection of materials for inclusion in the book reflects the reality."

"President Kennedy has an extraordinary capacity to express himself in speech and writing. Rarely has an American President stated the nation's problems with such clarity, or voiced its aspirations so movingly. The reader of these pages runs no danger of getting entangled in thickets of bureaucratic prose. He will find here a lucid, instructive and eloquent introduction to the problems facing a great nation in a troubled century."

DO MODERN Americans feel guilty when they have fun?

une, thinks so and states his case with discernment, epigrams and humor in "THE DECLINE OF PLEASURE" (Simon and Schuster, $5).

He traces the phenomenon, if that is what it is, back to a 19th Century economic philosopher, Jeremy Bentham, who asserted that the real worth of anything was determined by its utility.

The 20th Century aftermath, as interpreted by Kerr, is that we drive ourselves into "recreation" because it has useful therapeutic values. Youth, he believes, permits boredom to supplant enjoyment.

THE WAR around which Mihail Sadoveanu's "TALES OF WAR" (Twayne, $2.95) revolve was the equivalent of our "Days of '76," and indeed they are Rumania's "Days of '77," for that little country fought its war of independence against the Turks in 1877. These are artless, simply told tales, more like folk stories. They have, too, an Ernie Pyle-like quality.

MARY MCCARRAN

The daughter of the late Sen. Pat McCarran of Nevada spent 32 years as Sister Mary Mercy, a nun, then returned to secular life. Her biography: "ONCE THERE WAS A NUN," by Ruth Montgomery (Putnam, $4.95).

Specs Before Your Eyes

By Ward G. De Witt

IN THIS modern day and age, people accept and wear glasses and seldom question how we happen to have this visual help. How long have we had the benefit of spectacles? How did glasses happen? How long did it take?

Glass was exported by the Phoenicians 300 to 400 years B. C. The earliest known lenses are now in the museum of the White Fathers of the Desert near ancient Carthage. It is believed that lenses to aid vision and held on the face by some sort of frame were not made until the 13th Century. China and Europe are given credit for inventing spectacles.

An English monk, Roger Bacon, in 1285, imparted the knowledge to Heinrich Goethals. He passed it on to Al-lesandro Della Spina a Dominican friar in Italy, who in turn gave it to Salvino d'Armata to whom the invention of spectacles is attributed. D'Armata kept the secret and sold spectacles at a good profit until his death in 1317. The epitaph on his tomb reads: "Here lies Salvino d'Armata degli Armati of Florence, the inventor of spectacles. May God forgive his sins."

MARIE ANTOINETTE had her lorgnette inserted into a fan. Disraeli dangled his monocle from a cord. Madame Pompadour had a gold and red jealousy lorgnette which had a prism for peeping at people behind her and du Barry was never without hers.

About this time, gypsies, not to be outdone, sold colored lenses for spectacles and finally, spectacles themselves. Their claims were most "scientific." Glasses could give power and wealth; gazing at the sun through green glasses would straighten rheumatic backs; red glasses would help or remove corns for housewives. Jealous maidens and inconstant lovers would become reconciled while gazing at the moon through amber tints. The latter two must be together, of course!

And so it went until Ben Franklin considered his time too valuable to have two pairs of glasses when one would do. He cut his reading glasses in two and likewise, his distance glasses, and combined them into one pair. These were the first bifocals. Since then, we have had glasses for every need. We have been burdened or helped by bi, tri, and quadrifocals ever since.

Granddaddy of the Firehouse

"First," says Du Ree, "excelsior was laid about 3 or 4 inches deep on the grates, then fine kindling criss-crossed over the excelsior.
Immediately after the engine cleared the station in answer to an alarm, a lighter cable was pulled or a match applied to the fire material. Then coal was added, and we were in business."

"After the fire was doused and the steamer returned to the station," Du Ree continued, "the remaining fire and ashes were dumped from the grates to the ground.
Steam was used to blow out the fire box, and then new fire material was laid."

In checking over their "old-new" pumper, Bramley and the other firemen were amazed to find that the machine was almost 80 per cent brass.

"This presents a challenge in replacing broken and missing parts," says Bramley. "We want to keep the old vehicle as authentic as possible. Perhaps I'd better emphasize here that the steam pumper is not city-owned, but strictly the property and hobby project of the Long Beach Firemen's Memorial Association."

Bramley credits "Old 124," a 6-cylinder Ahrens-Fox fire engine of 1926, used for many years by the Long Beach department, for being the germ idea of the firemen's dream to establish a permanent museum. Such a rig was considered among the finest of equipment in its time, and this one served long and faithfully, proving its mettle in several disasters. One test in particular occurred during the 1933 earthquake, when Station No. 1 collapsed completely into a pile of rubble.

Old 124, however, simply bullied its way through the fallen bricks and debris to answer resultant alarms.

ANOTHER occasion was at a vicious two-day pier fire in December 1945. Although possessing only 110 horse-power, Old 124 met this challenge serenely by pumping nearly 2 million gallons of water on the flames over a 30-hour period.

In 1952, after 26 years of dependable service, the faithful old rig was retired by the city, but many of the firemen were reluctant to let it go.
The association bought it, and spent many off-duty hours repairing and polishing the vehicle. It thus became the inspiration and nucleus of the proposed museum, and now stands in regal splendor in the main fire hall, to be joined in the near future by the refurnished Amoskeag.

"We have been promised space in the firehouse for permanent, dust-free display cases," says Bramley. "If anyone owns or knows of fire-fighting equipment from bygone days, we would appreciate making the relics a part of our museum. Interesting as such items are now, they will be even more valuable to future generations in presenting an authentic history of firefighting."

cult. They particularly fancy peanuts.

SKUNKS and civet cats should not be teased. In fact, if they get into your food, you would benefit to wait until they leave before you put edibles under lock and key. A civet cat in particular seems to enjoy an open camp fire and will play in nearby trees where the firelight dances among the leaves. (Civets are good climbers.) Both the civet and the skunk make excellent pets when descended, but this must be done when they are babies. Wild civets have been known to take candy and eggs from human hands, but they can quickly upend themselves to stand on their forefeet and let their defense artillery go into action. If by chance you, or perhaps your dog, get involved with animals with scent glands, use a cup of ammonia to a bucket of water for a wash. Or use tomato juice.

A deer may seem friendly and is easily drawn to your camp site with offerings of bread, potato peelings, fruit and vegetables. Feed him at some distance from your own table, or you may have him as a dinner guest. A fawn is perfectly harmless, but a growing or adult deer lashes out with its front hooves when angered or nervous.

There are, of course, some animals you should not coax near your camp, among them foxes, coyotes, wildcats, and

DURING your summer excursions, numerous wild animals may visit your camp site. Some of them will, if you are patient and persistent, become quite friendly and you will have nothing to fear if you adopt a "hands-off" policy, remembering that most can, if provoked, inflict serious bites. These part-time pets should be just fun to watch and feed.

Pick a sheltered spot the inquisitive animals seem to enjoy—usually under a tree or against a log—and put out food you feel will appeal. Find an observation post and sit quietly. Probably your visitors, with no other coaxing, will soon be eating the food. Every day, then, move a little closer.

A squirrel can actually make a nuisance of itself once it associates you and your camp site with food. It will chew through a purse to get a stick of gum, riddle your clothes for the same purpose. It can easily make lace-work out of plastic containers holding food and even nibble destructively at wooden containers. Some squirrels will get right on the camp table and make meal-getting diffi-

TRAVEL—RESORTS

Wonder of Wonders

By Fred Taylor Kraft

Independent Press-Telegram Travel Editor

IF YOU'RE tired of it all, and need a pleasant jolt to give you a fresh perspective on things in general, why not pay a visit to the Grand Canyon?

If you've never seen this world-famous spectacle, it'll give you the jolt you're looking for.

If you have seen it, and scarcely believed what you saw, it certainly is worth a return visit.

The Grand Canyon does different things to different people, but most visitors find it absolutely awesome.

As a matter of fact, it is. The highest points of the rim are about 9,000 feet above sea level. The rampaging Colorado River is more than 7,000 feet below—about 1,850 feet above the sea.

AND IT'S BEAUTIFUL.

Standing at one of many vantage points along the rim, you gaze downward past a myriad of temple-like ridges into a sea of color—brilliant reds, rubies, lavender-browns and blues, an unending field of peach orchards and emerald fields as the sun moves across the sky.

And distances! As you look, and begin to comprehend in a small way what you see, you just wonder how big the great outdoors really is.

Perhaps the fastest way to

TRAVELING LIGHT

by the Sloanes get there is to follow Hwy. 66 from Southern California to Kingman, Ariz. and then turn left on Hwy. 64. After 59 miles, you reach Grand Canyon Village, center of activities on the South Rim.

ACCOMMODATIONS at the Village run all the way from camping sites and moderately-priced cabins to the fashionable El Tovar Hotel and an ultra-modern motor hotel.

Most tourists, as a minimum of sightseeing, take the so-called Rim Drives (or you can drive your own car) from the Village. Of these, the East Rim trip to Desert View is perhaps the most attraction-packed. On this one you'll see dioramas of the region's history and genealogy, Yavapai Museum, Tusayan Ruin and Museum, and the Watchtower at Desert View with its exceptional views of the gorge and Indian paintings.

Other Village magnets include daily Hopi dances, Lookout Studio, the Kolb Studio and its old river-running movies, free campfire programs, and horseback trips.

But the best way to meet the canyon head-on is to ride down the seven-mile trail from South Rim aboard a mule. Alternate mule jaunts are the one-day ride to Tonto Plateau halfway down the gorge and the overnight excursion to Phantom Ranch near the canyon bottom. Each takes one into the heart of this mighty natural creation.

less than two hours. Others drive it from Arizona's capital in four or five hours up Hwy. 89.

A scenic way to go directly from the West Coast is to follow Hwys. 60-70 to Aguila, Ariz., Hwy. 71 to Congress, and Hwy. 89 through the scenic Prescott and Oak Creek Canyon country below Flagstaff.

A TRAVEL-TRADE Show will be held in connection with the Oct. 23-27 convention of the American Society of Travel Agents in Las Vegas, at which companies affiliated with the travel business will have opportunity to exhibit their goods or services. More than 3,000 travel agents and others in allied businesses are expected to attend.

TRAVEL REPORTS Around the World With DEPLANE

"Best Paris shop for best on perfumes, please?"

ALL FRENCH shops are very competitive on perfumes and the prices are much the same. However, there are a few shopping devices.

First, ask for a discount—on any gifts you buy in France, not just perfume. All the tourist shops seem to be set up to give you about 20 per cent off.

Sometimes they urge it on you as a final sales effort. If they don't, ask for it.

I notice at nearby Deauville, the French sea resort, signs in the window say "20 per cent discount for American travelers' checks."

When there was a black market on money in France, this discounting meant something. Dollars were hard and valuable.

At present I can't see why they should discount for any kind of money. The franc is stable—you can't get more francs for travel checks.

This seems to me a sort of sales gimmick.

If Deauville can discount 20 per cent for travel checks, they've got a markup going. Paris should be able to discount for checks, francs, dollars or what have you.

"... If a group of us go through France, Germany and Switzerland by small bus, do we tip the guide? And how much?"

You can tip a dollar each. It's customary. If you have a guide and driver, still keep it at a dollar and let them split.

All guides make commissions on what you buy—from 10 per cent on watches in Switzerland to 25 per cent or better on Spanish rugs.

They also get commissions on night clubs and restaurants.

Generally, you'll find prices are marked up to take care of the guide in Italy, Spain, Mexico, Hong Kong.

No markup in Britain, Scandinavia, Germany and Switzerland. Some in France. Since guides do well, the tip can be a gesture.

"... friends recommended Nice for a week of sun and swimming. Do you agree?"

THE RIVIERA is very elegant, but you might consider the Normandy coast where I am now—Villerville-sur-Mer. Villerville is a small, stage-set town of narrow streets and a pleasant beach not far from Deauville.

The hotel Chez Mahu is set around a Norman courtyard under apple trees. It's restaurant is one-starred by Michelin—one of two on this coast. And the price is good—$10 a day with excellent meals.

I don't go all out on recommendations, usually. But on this one, I do.

"Can we send gifts under $10 from Mexico without declaring them on the $100 duty exemption when we return to the States?"

You can send under $10 gifts from anywhere in the world and it does not come off the $100 worth of things you can bring back without paying duty.

I've had very bad luck sending things in from Mexico though. Wrong things arriving. Sometimes not coming through at all. And a strange lot of red tape getting a customs broker who costs more than you paid for the articles.

Anything I buy in Mexico. I bring home myself.

"Please recommend a not too expensive hotel in London."

The Washington on Curzon Street. About $8 a day.

Garden Magic: Mulch and Water

Nasturtiums lend bright color to the garden scene. The gardener who mulches adequately and waters wisely during warm summer days is one whose flowers will prosper.

By Joe Littlefield

WARM weather is at hand and will continue through September, and, to the gardener, this means watering becomes the most important garden job. When, how often, and how deep to water, depends upon soil texture, types of plants in the garden, weather conditions in certain areas, and whether the garden has been adequately mulched.

Morning watering is preferable; late afternoon or evening watering may encourage fungus diseases.

Frequency of watering depends upon the type of soil. Adobe-clay soils are tightly packed, need much longer time and more water to penetrate to a given depth than a coarse, porous, sandy soil.

DEPTH OF watering depends upon kinds of plants. Shallow-rooted plants may not need more than an 8- to 10-inch watering, whereas larger shrubs should be soaked to two feet or more deep, trees about four feet.

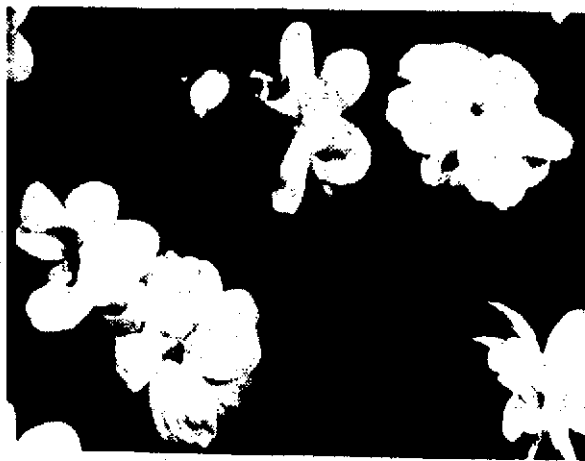

The gardener who mulches shrubs, lawns, ground covers, trees, saves money in watering costs.

Dichondra lawns planted now, whether seeds or from flats, treated with one of the fine mulches and kept moist will grow rapidly. Periodic light applications of liquid or granular fertilizer encourages new lawns to grow together.

Cutworms attack well-established dichondra lawns, as do other smaller chewing worms, too.

LAWN MOTH WORMS prefer a young grass lawn that isn't more than a year and a half old. There are two ways to combat damaging worms.

If a lawn needs feeding, use a fertilizer with insecticide added. If an infested lawn doesn't need feeding, spray with an insecticide your nurseryman or garden dealer recommends. Repeat as recommended for continuing control.

Abundant yellow blossoms of Primrose jasmine are semi-double and blooming period is January-May.

By Murtha Hurley

ONE of the most versatile plants for Southland gardens is Primrose jasmine, Jasminum mesnyi primulinum. One of the hardiest of jasmines, it will endure heat and any amount of cold.

Growing some 15 feet high, with a spread of almost five feet, when planted in groups, it will produce a tall dense hedge that can serve as a flowering screen to hide undesirable spots. The plant can also be trained to climb over a wall, a trellis or an arbor. When lower branches are cut off it will form a graceful, umbrella-like small tree. It also makes a fine cover for a sunny bank.

The small leaves are a rich, bright green, the flowers bright buttercup yellow. When in bloom, the pendulous branches are studded from tip to base with non-fragrant cheery yellow blossoms that look like semi-double violas.

PRIMROSE jasmine is a fast grower, develops well in most any soil, can be set out at any time from a container.

The plant likes full sun and when established thrives with a minimum of water.

Dorothy Digs

Now that your garden has survived the labor of heavy springtime blooming, it needs a little relaxation and refreshment. You can give it renewed strength and vigor for the long, hot season ahead by the way in which you nourish the soil. Your second application of commercial fertilizer is not enough. The soil needs trace minerals. A good material that provides the many minerals that are either lacking or unavailable to your plants because of the soil's alkalinity.

Iron alone will "green up" the garden. A foliage spraying with water and epsom salts (1½ ounces to a gallon of water) will help a lot. But these are temporary measures.

GARDEN TIPS for the week. . . Remove dying blooms from roses before they form seed pods. Remember that picking the blooms encourages continued bloom. For a more attractive shaped plant, cut just above an outside bud if the plant has an upright growth pattern. . . Resist the temptation to remove foliage from spring-blooming bulbs until it has definitely died back. . . Deciduous shade trees grown in containers may be planted anytime. Your C. A. N. nurseryman can advise you which variety will serve your needs best. Use a manure mulch on hibiscus and water the plants frequently. They love the rich soil and moisture which is native to them in the tropics. Amateur seedmen can try growing perennials such as columbine and delphinium from seed sown this month or next. The plants will bloom next year.

IF YOU would introduce your children to the wonders of plant life, get them started with the simplest of all lessons—growing radishes. They not only witness the miracle of germination and growth, but they actually taste their success. Help them level a bed and sow two or three rows of seed. Then if they seem eager for more, start them on other vegetables and on an easily grown annual such as zinnia or calendula. Chances are you'll get as big a kick out of it all as they do.

bears. The young of these creatures are playful and cute, but the adults are dangerous. Stay away from the young, anyway, because the mother is certain to be close by and may cause extreme trouble. Avoid also bats and bugs. If you see a rattlesnake and cannot dispose of it without endangering yourself or family, report the matter to the ranger.

SHOW NEWS: South Bay Kennel Club has an all-breed, all-age fun match today at Normandale Playground, 224th Street and Normandy Avenue, Torrance. Entries close at noon. South Bay Chihuahua Club will have a fun match at El Nido Park, Torrance, July 8, judging to start at 1 p.m.

Begonia Bud Drop

If you're troubled by bud drop on tuberous begonias, chances are you could be over watering them or underwatering them — take your pick. This is less a problem when the plants are grown in the ground, but can be a bother with pot-grown begonias. Every other day should be often enough to water potted begonias except in the hottest summer weather.

Our Brand, Suh

Caricature by Bob April

CAN YOU judge a restaurant by its printed menu? Certainly. And that's why people who pick up a menu at the Apple Valley Steak House, 733 E. Broadway, know at once that they're in a first-class establishment.

The Apple Valley's menu is quite large, measuring 21 3/4 by 14 1/2 inches when open. Printed on heavy gleaming cardboard in brown and green ink, it carries out the restaurant's western motif with illustrations of brands from such famed ranches as the Seven D, Rocking R, Walking Y and, of course, the Apple Valley (in San Bernardino County). On the menu's rear cover is a handsome photograph of Long Beach and a detailed biography of the city, telling its growth from 1882 on.

No one can scan the inside sections of the AV's menu without feeling their taste buds kick up a fuss. First are listed such fish courses as fresh frog legs, filet of sole, gulf shrimps, swordfish steak, scallops, fried oysters, lobster thermidor and crab Newburg. Next are listed roast prime ribs of beef au jus, tenderloin tips, saute; calf's liver and bacon, minute steak, calves sweetbreads, pan-fried chicken and boned squab.

UNDER THE heading of "Charcoal Broiler" (bossed by Master Chef Stan T'Anson) are listed such items as luscious New York cut steaks, filet mignons, loin pork chops, lamb chops and splendid eastern choice top sirloins. Priced from $1.95 to $4.95, the entrees include soup du jour, marvelous tossed green salad, potato, breads and beverage.

Owned since 1952 by amiable sports booster Oscar Contratto, the Apple Valley Steak House has a superb staff of professional waiters and waitresses. It is open every day, serving fine luncheons as well as dinners. Sunday dinners are served from 4 p.m. on.

PERSONALITY PARADE

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, PARADE, 733 Third Ave., New York 17, N.Y. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Sorry, the volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. When Kathleen Kennedy, one of Joe Kennedy's daughters, defied her father and married the Marquis of Hartington, Mr. Kennedy reportedly said: "The only thing I would hate worse than an actor as a son-in-law is an English actor." How, then, did he permit his daughter Patricia to marry English actor Peter Lawford?—Carl Entz, Phoenix, Ariz.

A. Patricia Lawford was 29 when she married Lawford in St. Thomas More Roman Catholic Church in New York on April 24, 1954—adult and rich enough to marry any man of her choice, even an English actor.

Q. Who earns the highest salary in TV?—Monica Parkinson, Orlando, Fla.

A. Probably Garry Moore at $30,000 per week.

Q. Since Liz bounced Eddie, whom has Fisher been going with?—Doris Gully, Newark, N.J.

A. He's been dating actress Annette Cash.

Q. Who is N. I. Yezhov? I understand he is the most powerful man in the Soviet Union, yet no one has ever heard of him.—K. H., Indianapolis, Ind.

A. Yezhov was the Soviet secret police chief under Stalin. One of the most detested men in Russia, he was responsible for the false imprisonment, execution and exile of thousands.

Q. I've been told that Doris Day refuses to grant interviews unless she is given the right to censor the written version. Is this true?—M. T., New York, N.Y.

A. True.

Q. There is a rumor in this community that President Kennedy sees all movies starring Angie Dickinson or Lee Remick. Would you comment please?—J. Rubin, Palm Springs, Calif.

A. Not true.

Q. How old is Danny Kaye? Is he giving up show business for aviation?—Helen Wiel, Troy, N.Y.

A. Kaye is 49, has become an aviation enthusiast, now flies his own plane, has no intention of abandoning show business.

Q. There is a famous quotation on liberty by the late Judge Learned Hand. Could you please give it to me verbatim?—Roselyn Borchard, Springfield, Ohio.

A. "Liberty lies in the hearts of men and women. When it dies there, no constitution, no law, no court can save it."

Q. Whatever became of Richard Ney, the young fellow who was married to Greer Garson? Does he still act?—C. H. Woodmansee, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. Ney, now married to a wealthy society matron, works as an investment adviser, acts occasionally.

Q. Do the tax-payers foot the food bills for Caroline Kennedy's ponies and dogs?—N. L., Akron, Ohio.

A. These are paid by Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy out of her private income.

Q. Which is the most dangerous year of life?—E. Wunderlein, Natchez, Miss.

A. The first 24 hours of an infant's life are considered the most dangerous. During the first day of life the mortality rate is 10.3 per 1000 births.

Q. Can you help me in locating Jon M. Lindbergh, son of the famous aviator? Is he still a deep-sea diver?—B. Thayer, Dallas, Texas.

A. Jon Lindbergh, 30, resides in San Diego, specializes in underwater exploration.

Q. I would like to find out exactly what gifts Pierre Salinger gave out in Moscow when he visited Alexei Adzhubei. I'm told he had 10 television sets flown over.—H. C., Washington, D.C.

A. Salinger brought with him and gave to the sons of Prada editor Adzhubei two American gifts—a football and a pocket transistor radio. No truth about the 10 TV sets.

Q. Can you tell me Helen Keller's birthday?—Roxann M. Dean, Montrose, Pa.

A. On June 27th, Miss Keller celebrated her 82nd birthday.

Q. Is it true that Somerset Maugham's daughter, Lady John Hope, is suing her father for $500,000?—N. Abbott, Madison, Wis.

A. No. She is suing Sotheby's, the famous London art auctioneers, for $648,900, claiming that amount is due her from the sale of paintings recently auctioned off in the Somerset Maugham collection.

Q. Has Ernest Hemingway's widow made any move to publish the writings her husband left behind?—Constance Hirt, Boulder, Colo.

A. Mary Hemingway says she will try to reach a decision by fall as to which manuscripts should be published. These include poetry, short stories, sketches, possibly some novels.

all new...all Birds Eye ...and all ready

vegetables with the extra-special touch. Delicious. And altogether new. Vegetables with the extra-special touch prepared for you by Birds Eye. Your favorite Birds Eye vegetables combined with excitement. Garnished with imagination. Some with exciting sauces. All sparkling with seasonings and savory herbs. Vegetable tastes that are new, novel and very, very good. So good, in fact, they deserve a place on party menus. So convenient, you needn't wait for special occasions. Because all the special touches are in the new Birds Eye packages. Variety? Enough to keep your menus vegetable-happy every day!

A delicious example: Mixed Vegetables with Onion Sauce. A medley of Birds Eye's garden-fresh vegetables and a sauce peppy with onion, nutmeg, parsley. Smooth as the pure cream and butter that go into it. To make the sauce, add the generous packet (it's right in the package) to the water in which you simmer the vegetable. Stir and serve with pride. Other new delights, the two at right, and ■ Corn and Peas with Tomatoes ■ Fordhook Limas and Cheese Sauce ■ Green Peas with Sautéed Mushrooms ■ Green Peas with Cream Sauce.

An apprentice lineman for the Rural Electrification Administration in Henderson, Ky., before World War II, he won the Medal in July 1944, while leading a Marine assault against the Japanese on Guam. His citation reads in part: "Pfc. Skaggs was critically wounded when a Japanese grenade lodged in his foxhole and exploded, shattering the lower part of one leg . . . he applied an improvised tourniquet and, while propped up in his foxhole, gallantly returned the enemy fire with his rifle and grenades for a period of eight hours, later crawling unassisted to the rear to continue the fight until the Japanese had been annihilated . . ." Today, Skaggs, minus his left leg, lives in Washington, D.C., with his wife Rose, serves the CMH Society without pay and works as a budget analyst with the Defense Supply Agency.*

President, Congressional Medal of Honor Society

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO this month, Abraham Lincoln signed into law a bill creating the Congressional Medal of Honor, the nation's highest award for valor. Today there are 293 living Americans, 46 of whom served in World War I, who hold this treasured decoration. More than half of the 644 Medal of Honor winners of World War II and the Korean conflict received their awards posthumously. They came from all walks of life: bus drivers, businessmen, actors, auto racers. They had one thing in common: they loved our country. On the following page are the stories of 10 Medal of Honor winners chosen at random from those living today.

Most of those who survived have returned to civilian life; some have chosen to remain with the armed forces. All of them are a part of America. The purpose of the Congressional Medal of Honor Society is not to set these men apart from their fellow-countrymen. Rather, it is to protect, uphold and preserve the dignity of the Medal and its individual holders.

Courage is not restricted to those who have been honored for deeds performed on the field of battle. In all of America's wars, many men have fallen, unseen and unsung, with no one to witness their courage. So, too, there are countless unsung heroes in civilian life.

This Wednesday, July 4, the nation once again observes the anniversary of its independence. That freedom was won and held, not alone on the battlefield, but in the everyday lives of all our citizens. It is held today by the courage of individuals who speak out against injustice, who resist the freedom-destroyers of the extreme right and left. This is the private, quiet courage of the true American.

We who hold the Medal of Honor feel that we were called upon to do a job for our country which was our responsibility as American citizens.

This country owes us nothing other than the opportunity to serve again if necessary.

ROBERT EUGENE BUSH

A native of Tacoma, Wash., Bush joined the Navy as a Medical Corpsman in World War II. Today, he owns a lumber company and lives with his wife and four children in Elma, Wash.

CORPSMAN BUSH was administering blood plasma to a desperately wounded Marine on Okinawa when the Japanese launched a savage counter-attack. Holding the plasma bottle high in one hand, he drew a pistol with the other and fired it into the oncoming enemy ranks until his ammunition was exhausted. Then he seized a discarded carbine and resumed firing, killing six of the enemy, but suffering wounds himself, including the loss of an eye. The citation reads: "With the hostile force finally routed, he calmly disregarded his own critical condition to complete his mission, valiantly refusing medical treatment for himself until his patient had been evacuated. . . ."

ELI WHITELY

Texas-born, Whitely interrupted college to enter the Army in World War II. He is now associate professor of soil management at Texas A&M, lives with wife and five children at College Station, Texas.

DESPITE SEVERE WOUNDS in his left arm and shoulder, young Lt. Whitely led his platoon in a vicious house-to-house fight through the streets of Nazi-held Sigolsheim, France. He cleared one enemy nest after another in spite of withering fire. Reaching a building held by fanatical Nazi troops, he blasted out a wall with bazooka fire, killed five of the defenders and forced the remaining 12 to surrender. "As he emerged to continue his fearless attack," the citation continues, "he was again hit and critically wounded. In agony, and with one eye pierced by shell fragments, he shouted for his men to follow him through the next house. He remained at the head of his platoon until forcibly evacuated."

WILLIAM R. LAWLEY, JR.

Lawley was proprietor of a gasoline station in his native Alabama when World War II brought him into the U.S. Army Air Corps as a B-17 bomber pilot. He remained in the service and today is an Air Force Colonel at Maxwell AFB, Ala., where he lives with his wife and three children.

LT. LAWLEY won his Medal of Honor in the blood and flame of a burning B-17 bomber high over Nazi-held Europe on a February day in 1944. His co-pilot was slumped dead beside him; eight crew members were wounded, two so badly they couldn't bail out. Lawley himself was seriously wounded and blood covered his instrument panel and windshield. Although he collapsed once from loss of blood and could fly with only one hand, he stayed at his post and brought his ship and crew safely home to a crash landing in England. "Through his heroism and exceptional flying skill," the citation reads, "Lt. Lawley rendered outstanding, distinguished and valorous service to our Nation."

ROBERT S. KENNEMORE

Born in Greenville, S.C., Kennemore was a Montgomery Ward messenger boy when he enlisted in the Marines in 1940. He fought on Guadalcanal and Tulagi in World War II and stayed in the Corps to fight again in Korea. Today, he is a production controller in an industrial plant in Oakland, Calif., where he lives with his wife Mary and their seven children.

STAFF SGT. KENNEMORE lost both his legs and won America's highest military award in a savage night action near Korea's Chosen Reservoir. "When an enemy grenade landed in the midst of a machine gun squad, he bravely placed his foot on the missile and, in the face of almost certain death, he personally absorbed the full force of the explosion to prevent injury to his fellow Marines." So reads his official citation.

LLOYD L. BURKE

Before World War II, Burke, a native of Tichnor, Ark., was a soda fountain clerk. Today, Maj. Burke lives in Springfield, Va., with his wife and three children and is on active duty with the Army General Staff at the Pentagon.

ON OCTOBER 28, 1951, the then Lt. Burke and a forward group of 35 American infantrymen were pinned down by a storm of fire from 300 enemy troops entrenched in three fortified bunkers near Chong Dong, Korea. Burke staged a one-man assault on the first two bunkers and wiped them out, then charged the third emplacement, catching several grenades in mid-air and hurling them back at the enemy. His citation says: "Securing a light machine gun and three boxes of ammunition, Lt. Burke dashed through the impact area to an open knoll, set up his gun, and poured a crippling fire into the ranks of the enemy, killing approximately 75. Although wounded, he ordered more ammunition, reloaded and destroyed two mortar emplacements and a machine gun position with his accurate fire."

GINO J. MERLI

A native of Scranton, Pa., Merli was a student at the time he entered the Army in World War II. Today, with his wife and three children, he makes his home in Peckville, Pa., where he works for the Veterans Administration.

PFC GINO J. MERLI won his Medal of Honor one violent night in Belgium in September 1944, when his machine gun outpost was overrun by a superior force of Germans. Twice he feigned death as the Germans stormed past. Twice he "returned to life" and sprayed the enemy with gunfire. At daybreak, the Germans surrendered. Merli was still at his gun. "On the battlefield," his citation reads, "lay 52 enemy dead, 19 directly in front of the gun. Private Merli's gallantry and courage, and the losses and confusion that he caused the enemy, contributed materially to our victory."

DONALD M. CALL

New York City-born, Call was a successful Broadway actor before volunteering for the U.S. Army in World War I. Today, he is a prominent landscape architect (he designed portions of the famous Burning Tree Golf Course) in the Washington, D.C., area.

CORPORAL CALL won the Medal of Honor near Varennes, France, in 1918, for what his commanding officer, the then Colonel George S. Patton, termed one of the bravest acts he had ever seen. "Corporal Call," the citation reads "was in a tank with an officer when half the turret was knocked off by a direct artillery hit. Choked by gas from the high explosive shell, he left the tank and took cover in a shell hole 30 yards away. Seeing that the officer did not follow, and thinking that he might be alive, Corporal Call returned to the tank under intense machine gun and shell fire and carried the officer over a mile under machine gun and sniper fire to safety."

EDWARD V. RICKENBACKER

Born in Columbus, Ohio, Rickenbacker was a dare-devil auto racing driver before World War I. In 1914 he captured the world speed record of 134 mph. Today he is Chairman of the Board of Eastern Air Lines, lives in Manhattan with his wife and enjoys frequent visits from his two sons, their wives and five children.

CAPTAIN "EDDIE" RICKENBACKER was America's top fighter pilot ace in World War I. In a brief eight months of action he shot down 22 enemy planes and four balloons. Time after time he single-handedly fought large flights of enemy bombers and fighters. Captain Eddie soon became the prime target of German fighters, but despite their concerted efforts he emerged from all of his hair-raising encounters unscathed—though his little pursuit plane was frequently riddled with bullet holes. Referring only to one engagement, his Medal of Honor citation reads in part: "While on a voluntary patrol over the lines, Lt. Rickenbacker attacked seven enemy planes. Disregarding the odds against him he shot down one of the Fokkers out of control. He then attacked one of the (bombers) and sent it down also."

BENJAMIN KAUFMAN

Kaufman, born in Buffalo, N.Y., 1894, left the University of Syracuse to join the Army in World War I. After the war he became National Commander of the Jewish War Veterans. Today, he is retired and lives in Trenton, N.J.

FIRST-SGT. KAUFMAN was leading an infantry patrol in the Argonne Forest, France, in October 1918, when a burst of machine-gun fire shattered his right arm. Hurling grenades with his left hand and brandishing an empty pistol in his useless right hand, he made a one-man charge on the enemy machine-gun nest, capturing a prisoner and scattering the rest of the crew. He brought the machine gun, his prisoner and his empty pistol back to the American lines under intense enemy fire.

HERSHEL W. WILLIAMS

Williams, a native of West Virginia, worked as a bus driver before joining the Marine Corps. Today he lives with his wife and two children in Huntington, W. Va., where he is employed by the Veterans Administration.

IN THE DESPERATE FIGHTING for Iwo Jima, Corporal Williams volunteered to clear out a network of Japanese pillboxes that had momentarily stopped the Marines' advance. Alone and under terrific enemy fire for four hours, Williams wiped out one Japanese position after another with flame throwers and demolition charges. "On one occasion," his citation says, "he daringly mounted a pillbox to insert the nozzle of his flame-thrower through the air vent, killing the occupants and silencing the gun; on another, he grimly charged enemy riflemen who attempted to stop him with bayonets and destroyed them in a burst of flame from his weapon."

FREEDOM

By CHARLES L. BACON

This Wednesday the United States will be 186 years old, an appropriate time for reflecting on the blessings of freedom. In this article, prepared especially for Parade, Charles L. Bacon, National Commander of The American Legion, presents new insights into our traditional liberties. Mr. Bacon is a veteran of World War II who left the Navy in 1946 with the rank of Lieutenant Commander. A lawyer by profession, he's been active in the Legion ever since and last September was elected Commander of the 2,700,000-member veteran's group.

IN MY HOME TOWN, Kansas City, Mo., there are 200,000 new Americans who earned their citizenship the hard way. Many were victims of Communist oppression. All of them came here in search of freedom. They have found freedom and opportunity, thanks largely to the efforts of a dedicated Kansas City woman, Mrs. Madalyne Brock, who heads our town's "Citizenship Naturalization Council." Since 1945, Mrs. Brock and her colleagues have worked unceasingly to help these new Americans find their place in our community. We are proud of their success and proud of our new citizens.

In return, these gallant people from other lands appreciate the freedom of America with a fervor that many of us would do well to emulate. These victims of tyranny give us a new perspective on the national liberties we too often take for granted.

Here, from the lips of seven new Americans, are seven lessons of freedom. Together, they tell a story of America that our founding fathers would have been proud to read.

The Freedom of Home

Mrs. Gabriella Polony Mountain, who fled her native Hungary to become a sculptress of national reputation in her new country:

Home, like everything else, does not attain full meaning until we have lost it. I have lost my home and my country, but I have found them again in America. I tell you from my heart that the freedom to choose one's home, to make it a haven for one's family and friends, and to defend it against all oppression, is one of America's greatest blessings.

Freedom From Injustice

Philip Quo, who escaped from Red China, graduated from Kansas University and is now a mechanical engineer:

In America, justice is the rule of law, not of men. Without such justice, there can be no true freedom or security. Having lived in a land where justice rested on the will of tyrants, my family and I cherish most of all the great American privilege of equal justice under the law.

Freedom of Worship

Mrs. Zofia Sokolowski, a Polish-born Registered Nurse:

The freedom to worship God in our own way is the dream of all of us who have come from countries where prayer is a sin against the State. This freedom, then, is to be cherished and reverently held close to our hearts as perhaps the greatest of all freedoms in America.

Freedom of Elections

Jack Mandelbaum, a successful businessman who came to America from Poland in 1950 as a penniless Displaced Person:

A free man's most prized possession is the ballot. To exercise his vote gives him the feeling of standing on the highest mountain, breathing the pure air of freedom. Freedom to vote is the hope of all enslaved peoples today. This I know.

Freedom of the Press

Bulgarian-born Dr. Christo A. Weltscheff, now a Kansas City physician:

Freedom of the press from government control and censorship guarantees all Americans the real liberty to think and to speak, to voice their opinions. This is a great freedom which is denied in my native Bulgaria. America must hold fast to it.

Freedom of Opportunity

John Vrendas, who left his native Greece after his parents were killed by Communist guerrillas and worked his way through grade school, high school and college in the United States:

Here in America, we can be whatever we choose to be, whatever we are capable of being. We are not bound, as in the old country, to follow in our fathers' footsteps. The freedom of opportunity which all of us enjoy here enables us to achieve our highest goals—if we have the determination, the will to work, and the readiness to sacrifice for our dreams.

Freedom to Disagree

Mr. M. Neuschaefer, now a lecturer at the University of Kansas City, was a prisoner of war during World War II. He emigrated to the United States from his native Germany after the war:

For all of us who have lived under a thought-controlling dictatorship, the right to disagree is precious. The freedom to uphold a minority opinion is the true essence of democracy. Freedom to disagree is the Promethean spark which keeps America's cruel alive.

MY FAVORITE JOKES

by OSCAR CARTIER

EDITOR'S NOTE: Oscar Cartier is the only Argentine-born, big-time comic currently working in the U.S. Like many Latin Americans, Cartier got his start in show business as a dancer, appearing with the La Playa Dancers in Miami's Rhythma Casino, New York's Versailles Club, and other such night spots. Because his English was better than that of other members in the group, Cartier was given the job of announcing the La Playa numbers and introducing the artists. Gradually he came to embellish these introductions with a gag or two until he discovered that comedians were better paid than dancers. He embarked on a study of comedy from Aristophanes until the present, re-writing jokes as he went along. Presently he developed a comedy act for himself and since 1950 has been playing top supper clubs. Here are some of Oscar's funniest gags, which he writes himself.

A young girl took her grandfather to a twist party, and while they were watching the dancers she said, "I'll bet you never saw dancing like that when you were young."
"Once," replied the grandfather, "and the place was raided."

I just heard that Elizabeth Taylor was offered $50,000 per week to stay in Europe. The offer was made by Hollywood wives.

Did you hear about the scientist who crossed a potato with a sponge? It tastes terrible but holds a lot of gravy!

A woman making her first jet airplane ride was frightened to death. She said to the pilot, "Suppose we crash?" The pilot assured her she had nothing to worry about. "We always keep a spare plane in the hangar," he explained, "exactly for such emergencies."

Did you know that Las Vegas is the town where they discovered instant poverty? . . . They have a golf tournament there which is ridiculous—everyone is trying to get out of the hole! . . . And in Vegas if you ask a kid how old he is, he says, "Eight, the hard way."

A fellow, happily married, bought his wife a new book called Better Homes and Gardens. Then she ran away with a guy who had a better home and garden.

A pessimistic fellow read his horoscope which said, "Make new friends and see what happens." He went out, made three new friends, and nothing happened. Now he complains he's stuck with three new friends.

In England when they answer the telephone, they don't say hello. They say, "Are you there?" It's better that way. If nobody's there, there's no use in carrying on the conversation.

Mama Cabor is writing a book entitled How To Raise Children for Fun and Profit.

With the uncertainty of nuclear war, some people still join the Book of the Month Club—only they do it a week at a time.

King Saud of Arabia has had 40 wives. To get a divorce all he has to do is to say three times, "I divorce thee," and the wife has had it. Here, if a man's wife's name is Mabel, and in his sleep he should call her Dorothy even once, you can bet he's had it, too.

Polygamy will never work here. Can you imagine six wives in a kitchenette?

A comedian went to a psychiatrist who said to him, "Lie down on the couch and tell me all you know." The comedian did. Now the psychiatrist is doing the comic's act in Chicago.

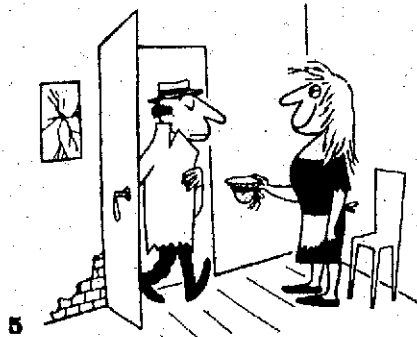

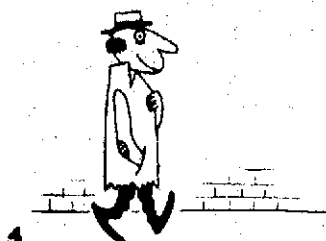

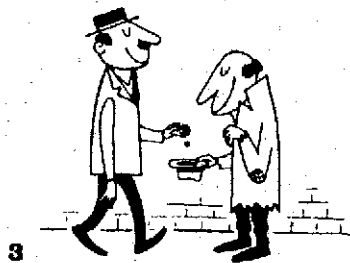

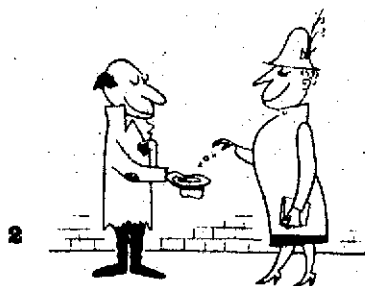

I've got a sure system to beat the races—pick a horse with a sensitive nose and a jockey with halitosis!

It's easy to figure out why women live longer than men. They don't have a wife to put up with.

ANECDOTE of the WEEK

The late Andrei Vishinsky, who was once Russia's Voice of Wrath, sometimes spoke with tongue in cheek. After a particularly bitter denunciation of the United States, he was challenged privately by an American acquaintance.

"The United States is very untrustworthy," the Soviet official replied solemnly. "I need only cite Korea as an example. The United States clearly indicated it had no interest in defending Korea. When the Communists attacked, however, you intervened with a powerful military defense. This proves you cannot be trusted." ■

FASHIONED STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

by BETH MERRIMAN

Parade food editor

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

- 2 cups biscuit mix
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1/4 cup shortening
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1/2 cup heavy cream (about)
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 quart strawberries, sliced and sweetened to taste

Combine biscuit mix and sugar. Cut in shortening with 2 knives or pastry blender. Combine egg and cream; stir in with fork. If dough is too dry add a little more cream or milk. Roll out 1/2-inch thick on lightly floured board. Cut into 6 rounds with 2 1/2-inch cutter. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Dot with butter. Bake at 450° 12 to 15 minutes or until golden brown. Split while hot; spread cut surfaces with additional butter or margarine. Put together with strawberries between and on top. Serve with plain or whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

When it comes to making shortcake we shy away from pastry, very sweet cake and other such novelties. For us, traditional shortcake means biscuits—big biscuits—so short and flaky they barely resist the fork. We bake them while dinner is in progress and serve them piping hot from the oven, with butter lavishly melting on the cut surfaces, awaiting the crowning touch of sweet red strawberries and a pour of heavy cream. You can enjoy this dessert the year 'round with berries, with sliced ripe peaches, or with canned or frozen fruits. It's an all-American delight whatever the season.

Beach Maneuvers— baby style

bringing up baby*

hints collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber,
Mother of 5

Oh joyous outing!—a day on the beach with your toddler. Free-wheeling in the wonderful wide outdoors, sand surprises to discover, water to test with a tiny toe or two. But remember, the reflected rays from the sand add to the scorching power of the sun. So don't let your beachcomber run in the sun for more than 20 minutes or so without some kind of protective shirt or covering, even if he is tan. A bonnet or hat is advisable. And by the bye, a beach umbrella is a good investment.

Refreshment for the big outdoors. Beach business can make your toddler work up a big thirst. Wonderful quenchers for tykes and toddlers alike: Gerber Strained Fruit Juices. Delicately delicious, they're all rich in vitamin C. Seven sipping pleasures—Orange, Apple, Orange-Pineapple, Orange-Apple, Apple-Cherry, Pineapple-Grapefruit and the new Orange-Apricot.

HOME REFRESHER FOR TODDLERS

2 tbs. Gerber Strained Egg Yolks
1 can of Gerber Orange Juice
1 cup of cool milk                      2 tsp. sugar
Blend with a rotary beater. Serve on the spot.

Note for water nymphs. It's wise to let your inquisitive toddler make his (or her) own advances in the water. (Under your eagle-eye, of course.) A little one who's sloshed in the water without warning, even from the security of your arms, may develop a fear that'll be hard to cure.

Quiet please! You won't want to let your gad-about get overtired on the beach. To get him to stay put for periods, devise simple 2-way games to play under your umbrella. Building castles in the sand is still as much fun as it ever was.

Fruit-ful ideas for sand-diggers or stay-at-homes. Most everyone likes more fruit in the summertime and toddlers are no exception. Gerber Junior Fruits are refreshing as can be with naturally good flavors that really titillate an appetite. Special processing preserves the utmost in nourishing food values. Why not try Gerber Fruits for luscious sundae toppings or toothsome sandwich spreads?

Important: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods—infant formulas, cereals, strained and junior foods—to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

Nancy Olson

THE

FOURTEEN YEARS AGO Paramount Pictures signed a young coed from the University of California to a long-term contract. Her name was Nancy Olson. Daughter of a Milwaukee physician, she was 20 and well turned, a lovely, leggy, smiling girl with honey-colored hair, eyes of Scandinavian blue, and a wholesome, irrepressibly Midwestern outlook on life.

Nancy Olson was the original success kid. She started at the top. Unlike many young players she served no period of apprenticeship at the studio, no posing for cheesecake, no dating of executives or executives' sons, no playing of starlet bits.

Right off she was assigned starring roles. Largely because Paramount had signed her for little money—$250 a week—she could keep the production budgets down, and she was an intelligent, perceptive, well-educated actress.

In one year Nancy was top-lined in four big movies, found herself playing opposite Bing Crosby in Mr. Music and Bill Holden in Sunset Boulevard. Then love impinged on her life. She met Alan Jay Lerner, 10 years her senior, twice-married, a writer under contract to Paramount. Six months later they were married.

HOLLYWOOD.

Says Nancy: "If I'm sitting in a room, and someone says to me, 'See that fellow over there. He's been married ten times. He looks awful. He dresses awful. He is awful. But he's also talented and has an I.Q. of 178,' I'm immediately attracted, despite his history, and that's the guy for me."

In 1950, Nancy Olson Lerner abandoned one of the most promising motion picture careers of all time and moved to Rockland County, N.Y., with her husband. There, on the western bluffs of the Hudson, Lerner bought from Burgess Meredith and Paulette Goddard the centuries-old farmhouse originally built for Revolutionary War General Mad Anthony Wayne. The Lerner's moved in, and there Nancy began to live the suburban, artistic life of the show-business New Yorker. She gave birth to a daughter, Liza, two years later produced another daughter, Jennifer. Zealously she looked after Lerner's daughter from a previous marriage on weekends, dedicated herself completely to her family.

Then one afternoon in 1957 Alan Lerner came home "and just like that, no warning or anything," he asked for a divorce.

couldn't believe it. She didn't even have an inkling of an idea that Alan was unhappy. She phoned her mother in Los Angeles and said, "Mother, I'm in serious trouble, but I'd like to be alone for 24 hours. Then, please come and see me." She cried her heart out for 24 hours, and then her mother arrived and found her in a state of semi-shock.

"But Nancy has guts and great strength of character, and she pulled herself together very quickly."

A divorce settlement was negotiated—reputedly $3,000,000, most of it in trust for the children—and the third Mrs. Alan Lerner decided to take a post-divorce trip to Europe with her girls.

"It did wonders for my morale," she recalls. "Especially Rome. The Italians make a pass at any American girl under the age of 85."

Back in America, Nancy got a call from Walt Disney asking if she'd like to resume her screen career. She accepted immediately and flew to Hollywood where she played the part of a maid in Pollyanna and Fred MacMurray's girlfriend in The Absent-Minded Professor.

At the moment she is working with MacMurray again in a sequel entitled Son of Flubber, a title for which the entire cast feels Walt Disney should be shot at sunrise.

At 34, Nancy Olson is more beautiful than ever. The baby fat on her face has disappeared, delineating her high cheek bones and making her more photogenic. Her figure, 5 feet 6, 117 pounds, is as trim as it was in her coed days. No longer the wide-eyed girl next door, she is a mature woman who has experienced the pleasure-pain of love. She is smiling, witty, sexy, knowledgeable, the possessor of a charming sense of humor.

Woman of the World

Seven years of marriage to Lerner have made her a worldly, sophisticated person, equally at home on the Broadway stage and the Disney backlot. She feels extremely fortunate that Hollywood is willing to give her a second chance, but she has no intention of giving up her 10-room apartment high over New York's Central Park which from time to time is transformed into an intriguing salon frequented by the nation's top artists, writers, educators, and Broadway producers.

"New York is closer to Washington," she explains, "and people back there are more alive, more attuned to world affairs than they are in Hollywood. I consider myself a New Yorker with Midwestern accents. I try to work in Hollywood during the summer, because I can bring the children out with me. I'm very happy these days, and I want to work as much as possible."

"As for marriage, I'm still a young woman and I hope very much to marry again. My children need a father. I need a husband."

As a wealthy, interesting, young divorcee, Nancy Olson has had many marital offers. "But I've been single for four years now," she says, "and I'm not rushing into it. What I need and want most right now is the excitement and the challenge of work. I also want to enjoy the serenity I feel."

As she spoke those words a small sonata of a smile played itself across her beautiful Swedish face, lineless and serene, but there was, I thought, a touch of sadness in her sky-blue eyes when I brought up the subject of marriage. And suddenly I recalled what a brilliant Frenchman, La Rochefoucauld, who minted countless maxims, had written about serenity:

"The serenity of the wise," he said, "is merely the art of imprisoning their agitation in the heart." ■

Nancy and husband Alan Jay Lerner leave for London trip in 1956. They were divorced in 1957.

Lerner (lyricist of My Fair Lady, Brigadoon, Gigi, Camelot) is a small (5 feet 6), diffident man, blind in his left eye—the result of a boxing accident in the Harvard gym—enormously talented and enormously rich. (My Fair Lady has grossed over $50,000,000.) His father, J. J. Lerner, a former dentist from Atlantic City who founded the successful Lerner dress chain, sent his sons to the best schools.

Alan attended the Columbia Grammar School in New York, Bedales School in England, Choate Prep with John F. Kennedy, who helped him edit the school yearbook, and Harvard, class of '40. He majored in French and Italian literature, wrote songs for the Hasty Pudding musicals, spent his summers studying music at the Juilliard School.

When Nancy Olson married Lerner in 1950, he was five years away from writing My Fair Lady. Nevertheless he was the same fallow, ambitious, sensitive, complex, cerebral creature he is today—an Says one friend: "This was the first tough knock Nancy ever got. Before that everything in her life had been silk smooth. She had won the Wisconsin State Oratorical Contest as a teenager. She'd been admitted to the University of Wisconsin players as a freshman. She'd been signed by Paramount when she transferred to the University of California at Los Angeles. She'd become a young movie star with fame and money. She'd met and married a rich, talented lyric-writer who provided her with all the creature comforts that money could buy. She had wonderful parents and a nice kid brother, and two sweet children of her own. And now came the first big knock—her husband wanted a divorce. And he wanted it quickly to marry another girl (Micheline Muselli Pozzo di Borgo, a blonde Corsican-born beauty and practicing member of the French bar).

"To tell you that Nancy was shocked is to understate the situation. She was stunned, incredulous. She

Rocket Scientists Plan Low-Cost Desalting

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

A Van Nuys firm more famous for its work in sophisticated rocketry has developed a plan to convert salt water to fresh at less than a quarter of the cost of present methods.

County officials, at the order of the Board of Supervisors, are studying the plan, and Catalina Island has been suggested as the site for an experimental plant.

Despite the amazing cost "breakthrough" on water conversion, the cost of converted water still would be more than three times what the city of Long Beach pays for Colorado River water entering its mains.

The Marquardt Corporation, under leadership of David W. Barais, systems development manager, believes it can make a radical reduction in the cost of salt-water conversion by use of diphenyl, a substance that would— for example—replace water and steam in a conventional power plant.

By heating diphenyl, just as water is heated in a steam generating plant, Marquardt would use the energy developed to produce electricity, and the heat waste to literally boil the salt out of ocean water.

By combining the two functions—making electricity and desalting water—Marquardt cost analysts come up with a figure of 23 cents per 1,000 gallons of pure water.

Long Beach reckons the cost of Colorado River water, ready to distribute locally, at 7.6 cents per 1,000 gallons.

Experimental conversion plants, such as those at Point Loma in San Diego and at Freeport, Tex., and financed by the government, convert salt water at a cost of $1 per 1,000 gallons. The converted water is sold to nearby municipal systems at 20 cents, the government charging the balance to the experiment.

In some cases, these government plants sell their converted water at 30 cents per 1,000 for industrial purposes.

Several factors, Barais says, may prevent the Marquardt plan from becoming a reality in the near future.

Cost analysts have projected figures for the diphenyl generating-converting system, for various sized communities.

A plant which might serve Long Beach and its neighboring communities would require an investment of $64,161,000, and would produce 75,000,000 gallons of water a day and 205,099 kilowatts of electricity.

Long Beach itself consumes 48 million gallons of water daily.

Marquardt Corp. figures the cost of the water-conversion system at $36,315,000 and the generating section at $27,866,000. Under the proposal of Marquardt, private utilities would handle the generating portion and municipalities the water conversion.

Barais says Catalina Island might be a suitable site for a diphenyl plant, since the island lacks enough water and power sources for development.

"Such a plant," he suggests, "might open the way for complete development of the island."

The plant cost for Catalina, Barais notes, would be less than a system designed to serve Long Beach.

Barais presented an outline of the Marquardt proposal to the Board of Supervisors a week ago. Since then, he says, several coastal cities have shown an interest in the proposal. Currently, Marquardt is keeping its fingers crossed.

"We want to build a plant with the cooperation of some community that needs water and power," Barais says.

Barais points out that the Office of Saline Water, in the Department of the Interior, will support projects of this type under certain conditions. These are: the community must provide a plant site; the proposal must in-

Shakeups Are Urged for School

Garden Grove
District Is Scene
of Dissension

Reassignment of the superintendent of Garden Grove Union High School District and resignation of two members of the school board has been recommended by a special panel made up of members from four educational organizations.

The report, issued by the California Teachers Assn., is the result of a three-day inquiry by a six-member panel. Representatives of the State Association of Secondary School Administrators, The State Association of School Administrators, the State School Boards Assn. and the CTA sat on the panel.

The 30-page report calls for "restoration of harmony in the operation of the board."

This, the panel concluded, "is a compelling need if the district is to meet the educational needs of its expanding population."

"It is impossible to expect united school support while the two strong opposing personalities remain on the board. The panel, therefore, earnestly recommends that these two trustees submit their resignations from the board effective immediately."

"When these two trustees resign," the report said, "remaining board members"

JFK, Lopez in Warning to Meddlers

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

MEXICO CITY (AP)—President Kennedy and President Adolfo Lopez Mateos issued a warning to totalitarian nations Saturday against meddling in the affairs of the Western Hemisphere.

They said in a joint communique issued after the two chiefs of state wound up a series of talks that their nations are determined "to oppose totalitarian institutions and activities which are incompatible with the democratic principles they uphold."

This seemed a clear warning to the Soviet Union and the Communist world, now allied with Fidel Castro's Cuba, to beware of intervention in this hemisphere.

THE WARNING came in a passage dedicating the two nations to democratic ideals.

The presidents said:

"In consonance with their dedication to these ideals, and acting always as sovereign and independent countries, which decide their own policies and their own courses of action, they propose to respect and maintain the principles of nonintervention—whether this intervention may come from a continental or extracontinental state—and of self-determination of peoples."

"Therefore, they are resolved to uphold these principles in the international organization to which they belong, to defend and strengthen the democratic institutions which their peoples in the exercise of their sovereign rights have constructed, and to oppose totalitarian institutions and activities which are incompatible with the democratic principles they uphold."

THE TWO leaders' agreement that a new era of relations between Mexico and the United States has begun was underscored by the enormous emotional welcome given the visiting chief executive by Mexico City in this weather-vane Latin-American nation. The day was another personal triumph for President Kennedy.

The U.S. and Mexican presidents also announced agreement on the nature of the Alliance for Progress effort to cure hemisphere economic and social ills.

"Mexico and the United States are determined, so far as they are concerned, to continue such effort until hunger, poverty and social injustice are eliminated from the hemisphere," they said.

That was the theme Kennedy stressed most heavily in his round of public speeches in this capital. Mexico is a likely prospect to become a showcase for the alliance.

Algerian Leaders Fire Staff Chief

ALGIERS (UPI)—The Algerian nationalist government in Tunis Saturday dismissed the commander of its general staff and two other high officers on the eve of the Algerian independence referendum for "criminal activities."

The surprise announcement from the nationalists' exile headquarters in Tunis followed the resignation of nationalist minister Mohammed Ben Khider and the mysterious disappearance of Vice Premier Mohammed Ben Bella in what apparently was a serious government split on the issue of nationalization.

NO-HITTER BY KOUFAX

Sandy Koufax, the Dodgers' whip-armed southpaw, pitched the third no-hit game of the major league season Saturday night.

Koufax won his 11th game against four losses by stifling the New York Mets, 5-0, at Dodger Stadium. He struck out 13 and walked five.

Bo Belinsky of the Angels and Earl Wilson of the Red Sox threw no-hitters earlier this season.

Jackie's Spanish Charms Audience

By T. M. FAGRELL

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Jacqueline Kennedy, spectacular in shimmering pink, shyly made a speech in Spanish Saturday that recalled she had honeymooned in Mexico. She brought down the house.

A little nervous, and conscious of the fact that she was facing not only a lunch but also vast television audience, the First Lady delivered a brief address in excellent Spanish.

Flanked by her husband and Mexican President Adolfo Lopez Mateos, she stood in her two-piece dress of flamingo pink silk-linen with a matching hat with large, turned-up brim. She rubbed her chin a second and then spoke. Occasionally she rubbed her hands, as though nervous.

Russ Put Satellite in Orbit

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union Saturday put another unmanned satellite—Cosmos Six—into orbit as part of its current exploratory series. The Soviet News Agency Tass said the satellite was functioning normally.

TASS SAID Cosmos Six was circling the earth every 96 minutes. The highest point of its orbit is 250 miles above the earth with the lowest point given as 126 miles.

The Russians announced earlier that the Cosmos series was designed to explore radiation and other hazards man will face in extended space travel.

CHIEFS PUSH DOPE CURBS

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Redoubled effort toward the eradication of the illegal drug traffic which exists along the U.S.-Mexico border was pledged Saturday by President Kennedy and Lopez Mateos.

In a joint communique issued by the presidents, they said they were "gratified by the manner in which their governments are collaborating in the eradication of illegal drug traffic and agreed to redouble their efforts and their cooperation to put an end to this criminal activity."

HERE AND THERE Grand, Gala July 4

DIENE OLSON, Miss Welcome, will be queen of Long Beach Firemen's Circus.

Fireworks, beauty contests, musical pageants, two circuses and a parade will provide Fourth of July entertainment fare Wednesday, and Southland beaches are expected to host their usual hundreds of thousands.

Eight aerial pyrotechnic displays are scheduled for the Long Beach-South Bay-Orange County area, and Huntington Beach will stage its annual Independence Day parade.

Fireworks shows are slated at the Long Beach Veterans' Memorial Stadium, the Huntington Beach pier, Newport Dunes, Buena Park, Fullerton, Anaheim, Cabrillo Beach, and Lawndale. In addition, the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum will stage its annual circus and fireworks show.

THE HUNTINGTON BEACH PARADE will have 22 bands, 25 floats, units from the Army, Navy, Marines, and Air Force, and a bevy of beauties including the recently selected Miss California, Marilyn Tindall.

The parade will get under way at 11 a.m. at Main and 14th Streets, head south on Main to Fifth Street, then to Orange Avenue, west to Ninth Street, south to Walnut Avenue, east to Main Street, north to Frankford Street, east to Lake Avenue, and north to the disbanding area at Lake Park.

After the parade, a stage show gets under way at the open-air beach amphitheater, followed by the Miss Firecracker contest.

SQUARE dancers, a concert by the Robin Hood Band, and fireworks off the pier at 9 p.m. conclude the program.

"MY HUSBAND and I are very glad to come back to Mexico," she said. "This is my third trip to Mexico. I like to remember that my last trip was my honeymoon."

She praised Mexico for "the underlying values of your culture, the profound faith in man's dignity—they have all been expressed in your art and literature over the centuries."

At the conclusion, persons attending the lunch burst into loud applause. Mrs. Kennedy sat down, but had to get up again to acknowledge another outburst.

THE PRESIDENT jokingly introduced her as the one, who would speak in Spanish. His own Spanish is limited to such phrases as "Viva Mexico," he said. He drew a laugh when he said that after some "protest," it was de-

U.S. Calls 7,562 Europe Gls Home

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Defense Department Saturday ordered 7,562 U.S. Army support troops to return from Europe in a cautious step toward reducing American forces on the Continent to pre-Berlin-crisis levels. An announcement said the returning troops comprise 42 small units, and will reach the United States by Sept. 30.

U.S. military strength in Europe is now close to 350,000 men, more than 50,000 above the pre-Berlin level. The current force includes 272,000 Army troops, compared to 232,000 before the crisis flared up last fall.

"As a result of the receipt of new equipment, completion of pre-positionings of equipment in Europe and improved logistics techniques, units totaling 7,562 officers and men will be returned to the United States from Europe this year," the Pentagon announcement said.

Over a longer period, however, it was expected that troop strength in Europe will be reduced by at least 40,000 men, or even more if the withdrawals can be accomplished without undermining combat strength. At least one-third of the troops in Europe are in support outfits rather than combat units.

Ike Leads Attack on New Frontier

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower led some 100 Republican leaders Saturday in a free-swinging attack on the New Frontier with special emphasis on the Kennedy administration's policies toward business.

Declaring that he was proud to have the GOP labeled "the party of business," Eisenhower advised businessmen to "wake up... take a look at what's happening to you... and you better get in politics quick."

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and other Republicans also cut loose at the Democrats on both domestic and foreign issues. With sights trained mainly on the 1962 congressional and gubernatorial elections, their oratory brimmed with forecasts of Republican victories in November.

The "All Republican Conference," a new body set up to speak for the GOP, met at Eisenhower's farm here, beneath a green-and-white tent on a pasture about 50 yards from the former President's house.

The GOP leaders fired salvo after salvo at the Democrats, blaming them for business woes, accusing them of power grabs, and charging the administration with "me too" foreign policies.

EX-PRESIDENT EISENHOWER and former Vice President Nixon at Republican conference attended by 100 GOP leaders.

Winnie Comfortable, Appetite Good

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill, immobilized by a fractured thigh, topped off his dinner in a hospital bed Saturday night with brandy and champagne. He dined on cream of chicken soup, an omelette, strawberries and ice cream, with champagne interspersed at reasonable intervals. Then he had coffee and a snifter of Cognac. He had a nip of brandy with lunch, too.

The 67-year-old warrior drowsed comfortably for most of the day after awaking from the long, deep slumber that followed his operation. Doctors pronounced themselves satisfied at the condition of the damaged thighbone, pegged together on the operating table Friday night.

Reds Guarded as They Stiffen Wall

BERLIN (UPI)—Fifty Communist riot-squad policemen strengthened the anti-fugitive wall Saturday in Berlin while eight border policemen armed with machine pistols stood by to see that they did not try to flee into the West.

The riot police built a low barbed wire entanglement designed to snare refugees approaching the high barbed-wire fence along the border. The snare was built near the border of the American sector's Lichtenrade district and the Soviet zone of Germany. The fact the police had to be guarded as they worked on the border was seen as proof the Communists could not trust their own security forces.

U.S. Fires 24th Pacific A-Test

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States Saturday set off the 24th announced shot of its Pacific nuclear tests series and rescheduled a high-altitude blast for July 4 in an attempt to recoup from an earlier failure. An underground test shot also was fired in Nevada.

The high-altitude shot will be a rescheduling of the June 19 test which failed when test instruments "super-heated" the Thor launching rocket.

The 24th blast in the Pacific series Saturday was in the low megaton range. This meant it unleashed the force of at least one million tons of TNT, making it one of the bigger firings of the Pacific series. The Atomic Energy Commission said the July 4 explosion would be attempted at an altitude of "hundreds of kilometers." If it follows the June 19 schedule, the device will be detonated at an altitude of about 200 miles over Johnston Island.

House Quizzers Grill Ex-Ag Aide

WASHINGTON (UPI)—House investigators Saturday questioned an ousted Agriculture Department official behind closed doors for the second time about his connections with indicted Texas financier Billie Sol Estes.

Chairman L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., of a House government operations subcommittee, said testimony by the official, William E. Morris, would be made public later if he is not asked to appear at a public hearing. He revealed no details of the closed session.

Morris, who also appeared before the subcommittee Friday, was fired by Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman several weeks ago after he failed to appear for departmental questioning. He was an aide to former Assistant Secretary James T. Ralph, also fired in the Estes case. In a recent Texas inquiry, employees of a Dallas department store testified that Estes accompanied Ralph and Morris when the two selected more than $1,000 worth of clothing. Ralph has denied that Estes paid the bill.

Castro Sends 2 'U.S. Agents' to the Wall

HAVANA (AP)—The firing squad went to work in Oriente Province again Saturday, executing two alleged counter-revolutionaries accused of being agents for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Cuban authorities said Julio Jose Wright Simon and Ardeales Garzon Avalos were executed after they were caught carrying military maps and explosives and fuses, assertedly to blow up two sugar mills.

EDDIE SET TO DIVORCE LIZ TAYLOR

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Singer Eddie Fisher has returned to the site of his marriage three years ago to Elizabeth Taylor and says he'll start divorce proceedings against her next month.

The singer slipped quietly into town to attend the opening of the George Burns-Carol Channing show at the Dunes Hotel.

Asked if he intended to start divorce proceedings when he opens a two-week engagement at the Desert Inn July 24, Fisher said: "From the way things look right now the answer is yes. Louis Nizer is attorney for both Elizabeth and myself, and we will follow his advice."

Four Die in Tahoe Air Crash

AL TAHOE, Calif. (UPI)—Four Fresno businessmen were killed Saturday when their Piper Tri-pacer aircraft crashed and burned shortly after take-off from the Lake Tahoe Airport, El Dorado County sheriff's office reported.

Deputies identified three of the victims as Dick Roth, the pilot, Edgar Madewell and James Manely. A fourth person was identified only as "Gene."

The victims were believed associated with the Fresno Executive Businessmen's Club. Reports from the scene said the plane got off the ground and a few feet into the air before crashing about a half mile from the end of the runway.

The Truckee office of the California Highway Patrol said it had dispatched units to the scene to assist in traffic control.

Parakeets Willing Birdseed for Life

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A lifetime supply of birdseed was assured Saturday for three San Francisco parakeets, for having brightened the later years of a retired nurse who died last March at the age of 70.

Miss Adelaide F. Clow provided $1,350 in her will for the birdseed. It was only a minor part of the estate which valued at $152,207, from stock market investments.

Demos Heckle Ike's Business Politicking

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Democratic leaders said Saturday that former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's exhortation to businessmen to get into politics comes a little late. They said big business has been in politics for years.

Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey said the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, National Association of Manufacturers and the American Medical Association — "the vocal chords of the wealthy doctors" — spend "enormous sums" lobbying in Washington. He said remarks by Eisenhower, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and other Republican bigwigs at their Gettysburg meeting exposed the GOP as "a know-nothing party."

Marriage Licenses Set Record for June

LOS ANGELES (CNS)—More than 5,400 marriage licenses were issued in June, setting a new record in Los Angeles County.

Last year's June total was 5,233, according to Ella Mody, who heads the local wedding license bureau.

Personnel were kept busy by the long lines at the courthouse Saturday until noon when the bureau closed.

Israel Set to Deport Dr. Soblen

TEL AVIV (UPI)—Bail-jumping Soviet spy Dr. Robert A. Soblen has requested political asylum in Israel, it was reported Saturday night. But reliable government sources said asylum would be denied and he probably would be deported shortly.

Informed sources said Soblen's attorney, Ari Ankorian, sent a letter to the Israeli Interior Ministry asking for political asylum for the ailing Soblen and asking the ministry not to deport him until his defense has a chance to present its case.

GOVERNMENT sources said Soblen, a psychiatrist convicted by the United States of spying for Russia, Government officials met Saturday to discuss his fate and a decision was expected within the next 24 hours.

Representatives from the Interior, Foreign, and Justice Ministries conferred after sources close to the government said Israel has assured the U.S. ambassador that Soblen will be expelled today—but not back to the United States.

Reliable sources said a decision would be reached before today's Cabinet meeting on the method of deporting Soblen, who fled to Israel from the United States to escape serving a life sentence for Soviet espionage.

The United States government has asked Israel to return Soblen, who jumped $100,000 bail when he slipped out of the United States, traveling on a forged Canadian passport.

PRESENT indications were that Interior Minister Moshe Shapiro would have Soblen expelled by using a law that would deny him residence in Israel.

Shapiro, these sources said, would find such a decision the easiest way of getting Soblen out of the country.

The alternative, they said, would involve the complicated and protracted legal steps of an extradition proceeding. The United States and Israel have never ratified an extradition treaty.

Soblen's attorney has petitioned the government to let his client remain in Israel under the "law of return," a minor part of the estate which allows a Jew to come to Israel and claim citizenship.

MD Crisis Pondered by Cabinet

REGINA, Sask. (UP)—The Saskatchewan cabinet met in emergency session Saturday to consider the crisis facing this western Canada province of 900,000 inhabitants by a threatened midnight "doctors' strike" against a socialized medical-care program.

All but a handful of Saskatchewan's 900 doctors served notice through the province's College of Physicians and Surgeons that they would supply only emergency service after the midnight deadline. But the government, only Socialist administration in Canada's 10 provinces, said it would put the medicare plan into effect anyway.

ALL BUT 23 of the province's 121 hospitals will be without doctors. The 23 announced they would provide emergency treatment only.

The doctors, who want to carry on as they always have without government intervention, say the medicare act would "conscript" them. They claim they are not violating their Hippocratic oaths because they will work in emergencies.

Incidentally, Bareis says, the plant would not produce salt. From every 4.8 gallons of salt water pumped from the ocean, the system would produce a gallon of fresh water, returning 3.8 gallons to the sea. The returned water, with a higher-than-average salt content, would blend with the ocean water until its salt content was normal.

Hoffa Challenges Jury, Asks Indictment Killed

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Teamster Union president James Hoffa asked Federal Court Saturday to throw out an indictment against him on grounds the grand jury was "improperly and illegally impaneled."

Attorneys for Hoffa filed a motion contending there was "systematic and substantial" exclusion of women and Negroes from the grand jury which indicted Hoffa.

The motion also contended that the names placed in the jury box did not represent a fair cross section of the community.

Hoffa was indicted on a charge of illegally conspiring to obtain more than $1 million from a Michigan trucking firm.

The trucking firm, Commercial Carriers Inc., of Detroit, was named co-conspirator in the case.

He was Mont Wayman Gage, 45, Buena Park, Calif., who with his wife and three daughters, was visiting relatives at Diamond, Mo. His body was recovered from the stream which is 9 to 12 feet deep at that point.

Governor for Solon Pay Hike

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Gov. Brown invited Richard Nixon Saturday to join in bipartisan support for a $5,250-a-year pay raise for California legislators.

Brown, in Hershey, Pennsylvania for the national governor's conference, forwarded a statement here confirming that he has agreed to sign a ballot argument in favor of Prop. 1.

The measure would increase the lawmakers' pay to $11,250 a year—or half that of congressmen. The state salary is now $8,000. An alternative proposal, Prop. 17, would peg it at $10,000.

BROWN announced his preference for Prop. 1, then said of his Republican opponent:

"If Mr. Nixon is, indeed, in favor of a pay raise for legislators as he says he is, I hope he will join me in endorsing the ballot argument in favor of this proposal."

The former vice president also happened to be in Pennsylvania — attending a Republican gathering at former President Eisenhower's Gettysburg farm — and there was no immediate reply.

Brown's statement came after some legislators proposed that the two candidates for governor team up to write the argument in behalf of the pay raise in the voters' November election pamphlet.

AMA Fights $6.5-Billion Tax Compromise Cut JFK's Aim, Health Bill If, When Needed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The American Medical Association served notice Saturday that it will oppose a bipartisan compromise to provide medical benefits for all the nation's aged as much as it did the original Kennedy administration version of the bill.

The compromise bill unveiled late Friday would invite states and private insurance companies to participate and would cover about 2.5 million elderly persons, President Kennedy's original proposal left out.

In a statement released Saturday, the AMA said, "It is clear from news reports that this new last-minute proposal is only an expanded version" of the original administration bill.

"It said 'hastily improvised changes' were made 'in an effort to attract votes in Congress.'"

THE AMA based its opposition on the fact that the new proposal still would be financed through an increase in Social Security taxes, a principle it has consistently opposed.

It also noted that the bill would not become effective until 1964 and said, "We can see no reason for Congress to abandon its customary rules and traditional procedures through hasty action."

If passed, the compromise bill would, for three years, provide basic health benefits for 17.5 million persons over 65, regardless whether they are covered by Social Security.

After 1967, persons reaching the age of 65 would have to be covered by general Social Security to be eligible for the health benefits.

Backers of the compromise said the necessary increase for a worker making $5,200 or more a year would be $13, with a similar annual cost for his employer. This would be the same as the cost of the original version, they said.

THE AMA disputed the figure. It said "a quick reading of the legislation shows the tax increase actually would be $27.50 a year for each worker and the same amount for his employer."

"This appears to be a strange time for the administration to recommend about a $2-billion payroll-tax increase when it, with the support of both business and labor, is committed to income-tax cuts because of the economic situation," AMA said.

Although most Republicans side with the AMA in its opposition to Social Security financing, five of them were among the supporters of the new compromise.

This apparently assured the fiercely contested proposal at least a vote in the Senate. The bill's backers planned to try to tack it to the welfare bill Monday.

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration is thinking in terms of a $6.5-billion tax cut if it becomes convinced such action is needed to keep the economy from sliding downward.

Sources close to him said President Kennedy's present feeling is that the time for a tax reduction has not yet arrived.

But they stressed that if the President feels real deterioration threatens the economy he will not hesitate to propose quick action.

This probably would come in the form of a simplified reduction in maximum rates for corporations and an increase in personal exemptions for individuals.

AT THIS TIME, the Kennedy advisers are talking about the possibility of lowering the present top of 52 per cent on corporations to 50 per cent. This would involve a $5.6-billion reduction for business.

Under this plan the present $600 exemption for individuals would be raised to $500. This would take millions of low-bracket income taxpayers off the rolls and would involve a revenue loss of about $900 million.

A tax reduction of this kind would fall within the $5.5 billion to $7.5 billion proposed by the United States Chamber of Commerce Friday. But the chamber proposed a much more complicated formula of rate cuts for individuals and a 47-per cent top on corporations.

THE FEELING within the administration is that revisions of this nature should await general tax revisions by the next Congress. In previously barring any emergency reductions, Kennedy announced he will recommend next year across-the-board revisions for individuals and corporations to be effective retroactively to Jan. 1.

Kennedy's advisers know very well that Congress, as well as the President, will have to be convinced of the immediate necessity before any tax reductions can be put into effect.

Republican leaders of both Houses have announced they will oppose any cuts that would blow a bigger hole in the new fiscal year's budget which already is threatened with a deficit that may run beyond $4 billion. They said such reductions must be accompanied by spending cuts.

To get emergency action there also will have to be some newly found comity between the White House and Democrats like Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va.

BYRD, WHO HEADS the Senate Finance Committee, is against cutting taxes at this time. But Kennedy's men believe he might change his mind if he were convinced that the economy was heading for a tailspin.

Swift Red Chinese Gunboats on Patrol

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) — Live-artillery drill in the direction of Quemoy that Nationalist military sources believed was part of an anti-sea invasion exercise.

The Chinese Communists have moved thousands of troops into the coastal area in recent weeks. Both Nationalist and U.S. military officials believe it is a defensive move against any Nationalist invasion of the Communist mainland.

JFK and Lopez Caution Meddlers

Mexican people was not over.

A throng of about 1,000, shouting "Viva Kennedy," assembled around the tall marble shaft topped by a golden angel, in the Paseo de la Reforma.

FROM THERE he stepped into a bubble-top limousine and was whisked to the Independencia housing development where he scored a new hit with thousands of Mexico City's humble working class. The low-cost development was built two years ago by the Social Security Institute for 15,000 persons.

A 100-member mariachi band struck up tunes, and a whirlwind of multicolored confetti and balloons cascaded about him as in Friday's triumphal procession which American officials said was the greatest ovation of any of Kennedy's visits to Latin-American or European capitals.

The President toured the development, then walked for a block, going from person to person, shaking hands with men, women and children, and drawing smiles and laughs from the crowd of several thousand.

There, as in three previous speeches in the capital, he stressed the theme that economic progress goes hand in hand with political freedom. He said political freedom can lack significance to men and women, unless it also permits them "economic participation in the life of the country."

The crowd cheered as he wound up his talk with the cry: "Viva Mexico! Arriba (upward) Mexico!"

Polaris Subs to Go Into Mediterranean

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The port of the Western Alliance, United States expects to it was learned Saturday.

Each of the atomic-powered submarines carries 16 ballistic missiles with warheads equal in destructive force to more than half a million tons of TNT.

Assignment of several of the undersea missile-launching craft as a submarine striking force of the U.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean will be different from the action announced last month to "commit" Polaris subs of the Atlantic Fleet to NATO.

DEFENSE Secretary Robert S. McNamara informed North Atlantic Treaty foreign and defense ministers at their May meeting in Athens that the five Polaris subs then on station in the North Atlantic were forthwith "committed" to NATO. He said others would follow.

Military authorities have pointed out that the Athens gesture was of more immediate political and psychological significance than practical military importance. It came at a time when there was deep controversy over NATO's need for its own nuclear-missile force and over France's intention — which America opposes — to build its own independent atomic deterrent.

AS A PRACTICAL matter, authorities have said, no change was made in the real status of the Polaris subs "committed" to NATO. They already were operating beneath the seas at secret stations in the North Atlantic, as key elements of the U.S. Fleet.

They were under command of Adm. Robert L. Dennison, Atlantic Fleet commander, and were "committed" by the Athens announcement to the same admiral in his other capacity as supreme Allied commander for the Atlantic.

The Soviet targets they would retaliate against if Europe were attacked already were assigned. It was learned that no change has been made in these targets.

About 37,000 Lockheed workers will vote at 9:30 a.m. in Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles. They are members of the International Association of Machinists.

If Ronald Lee Stevens, 22, of Buena Park is subjected to a little backseat driving today—honeymoon or not—don't blame his bride.

Stevens, of 8335 Santa Fe Drive, was to be married Saturday.

He was booked in city jail on his wedding eve and there his troubles snowballed. A state-wide check showed 18 traffic warrants outstanding in San Francisco and yet another in Downey.

The total bail for all the warrants was set at $437.50. Early Saturday morning Stevens' fiancée and her parents showed up at the police station and paid the $437.50. He was married later in the day.

This year's Garden Grove Strawberry Festival netted almost $8,500, a record high.

The festival's executive committee donated $7,000 of these earnings plus $3,000 from last year's fete for the city's children's zoo. The balance will be for operating the 1963 edition, set for May 16 to 19, retiring chairman Floyd Carman said.

Eight top level promotions within the County Fire Department were announced Saturday by Chief Keith E. Klinger.

In the reorganization two men will move up from division assistant chief to division chief.

Lathon B. Brewer, 6449 San Juan Ave., South Gate, will be placed in charge of the research and planning division. George E. Brunton, 14423 S. Horst Ave., Norwalk, will be head of fire fighting services at the Los Angeles headquarters.

Susan M. Forgie, daughter of Mrs. Marion Forgie, 2215 Radnor Ave., was graduated from the University of California at Berkeley, as the top award winner in her class in the school of business administration.

According to reports received from the Berkeley campus, Miss Forgie, who graduated from Poly High in 1958, and later attended State College, was given the Student Achievement Award of the Wall Street Journal.

Initial sessions of the 13th annual tennis school for boys and girls will begin Tuesday in harbor area playgrounds of the Los Angeles Recreation and Park Department.

Instructor Al Fierman will conduct classes at 11 a.m. at Peck Park Playground and at 1 p.m. at Daniels Field in San Pedro and at 3 p.m. at Banning Playground in Wilmington. Five weekly 90-minute sessions will be conducted.

Orange County's taxable worth for the new fiscal year starting today will reach an all-time high of at least $1.1 billion, up about $400 million over the fiscal year ended Saturday.

In most cases, that means cities, the county and special districts can raise more money without increasing tax levies. That's the procedure in most cases, too; budgets generally are up but tax levies are either static or down slightly.

Supervisors expect to get the assessment roll from Assessor Hugh J. Plumb on Monday, and then begin sitting as a board of equalization to hear complaints about assessments.

Plumb's office revalued properties in Santa Ana and Costa Mesa for this fiscal year's levies; they increased slightly. It was part of his routine reassessment practice of revaluing properties every four years. His office "works" specific areas, not the whole county at one time, and each district is revalued each four years.

Orange County Dist. Atty. Kenneth Williams said Saturday he will ask the District Court of Appeals to reconsider its decision setting aside a lewd vagrancy conviction of Esker O. (Larry) Oxley, the county's former finance director.

He decided, he said, after the Superior Court's appellate division refused to intervene in the case.

Williams had petitioned the appellate division's Superior Court judges Franklin G. West, Raymond Thompson and John Shea to challenge the District Court of Appeals ruling freeing Oxley.

The high court reversed Oxley's conviction last fall on a lewd vagrancy charge involving alleged improper advances to a Santa Ana police vice squad officer.

The high court held that Oxley was improperly convicted of lewd vagrancy since there was no showing that he himself was a lewd person, although the act on which the state based its prosecution was described as "offensive."

Nixon Goes to July 4th Danish Fete

REBILD, Denmark (UPI)—Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon will attend the golden anniversary of a unique American Independence Day celebration here July 4.

The former Republican presidential candidate said he will speak simply as an American and stress the joint heritage of Denmark and the United States, U.S. Embassy and Danish sources said.

This is in the spirit of this celebration, which has been held by Danes and Americans since 1912.

Nixon will be accompanied to Copenhagen Monday by his wife Pat and two daughters, Tricia, 16, and Julie, 14. He makes the first of two speeches after a reception and lunch.

THAT SAME night, Nixon will address a dinner at nearby Aalborg.

Nixon has a strenuous schedule ahead of him on his four-day visit.

On the afternoon of his arrival Monday he will be guest of honor at a U.S. Embassy reception in the embassy residence at Rydhave, north of Copenhagen.

The next day, Nixon and his party will drive through North Zealand, visiting ancient castles, among them probably Kronborg at Elsinore. Then the party goes to Jutland by ferry and on to Rold Skov, an inn close to the Rebild National Park.

THE VILLAGE of Rebild is on the outskirts of Denmark's biggest woodland, the Rold Forest.

The 50th anniversary celebrations July stem from the homesickness of a group of Danes who met in Racine, Wis., in 1905.

From this grew the Danish-American Association and then a Chicago brewer, Dr. Max Hennius, had the idea of buying a plot of land for the independence celebrations near his childhood home.

THE MONEY was raised, the land turned into a national park and presented to King Christian X in 1912. He, in turn, decreed that on July 4 in perpetuity the land should be considered "a piece of America."

At least six charter flights from the States are expected and ships crowded with Americans have been arriving during the past few weeks.

Show Will Feature Actors' Children

Stars will be Mickey Rooney Jr., Carol Costello, daughter of Lou, and Beverly Hills, daughter of Joan Davis. Other kin of show business greats are under consideration.

Veteran Bill Popular With Lawmakers

By GEORGE J. MARDER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A sleeper bill is coming awake in the election-conscious 87th Congress.

It is a measure to give veterans of World War I government pensions of $102 a month.

Total cost over the years is estimated at $11.5 billion, with an initial outlay of $1 billion the first year.

Chairman Olin E. Teague, D-Texas, of the House Veterans Committee, has labeled it a give-away and says the bulk of the money would go to the better-off and well-to-do veterans, with only a little being shared by those in real need.

The measure long has been kicking around the committee which turned it down after a series of hearings. Teague, a veteran of World War II and wounded several times, was very much against it and a majority of the committee backed him.

THAT PUT IT—so far as the legislative picture is concerned — somewhat in the class of President Kennedy's medical care for the aged bill which also is bottled up in committee.

But the veterans bill has tremendous political appeal. So far members of the House have been voting on such revision, with a withholding plan on interest and dividends. This isn't calculated to win any congressman votes.

Next to come up was the President's trade bill which has even less appeal. No congressman can expect to attract votes in his locality because he went for the tariff-cutting legislation. Fact is, an "against" vote in some instances might be more potent politically than the other way around.

BUT THE veterans measure the boys back home. Its backers! There is something few are taking advantage of that feeling to bypass the Teague committee. They wrote to each member of Congress urging support for a petition which would discharge the committee from further consideration of the bill and bring it directly to the floor for a vote.

They also had veterans and their families write to the law-makers. Result: there has been a rush to get names on the petition, with the number approaching the 219 needed for it to work.

Even those wary of the measure concede that it looks like the petition will go over the top. If it does, the bill is "almost a cinch to pass, for it will mean a House majority has signed on the dotted line."

And it is bound to pick up more support, once it is on the floor and in the open. The names on the discharge petition are supposed to be confidential while the signing campaign is on. But there would be nothing secret about the vote on the floor.

LEADERS wonder how many legislators would want to stand up and be counted against a veterans pension bill.

The veterans of World War I organization insists their group warrants special treatment because they didn't get the G. I. bill advantages given veterans of World War II. They argue that their members are now elderly and in need of greater government help.

France Sends Legionnaires to New Posts

By ALAIN RAYMOND

ALGIERS (UPI)—Independence for Algeria will disperse the French Foreign Legion to posts from Madagascar to Corsica. Some of the tough Legionnaires already have complained about their new soft surroundings.

The hot and dusty town of Sidi-Bel-Abbes, 46 miles south of Oran in Western Algeria, has been the Legion headquarters for 78 years. The Legion itself, made famous in battle dispatches and in novels like "Beau Geste," is 132 years old.

With Algeria about to be turned over to the Algerian Nationalist Government—men the Legion fought for more than seven years—almost all the 17,000 troops of the Foreign Legion will be withdrawn from Sidi-Bel-Abbes and sent to the outposts of the dwindling French colonial empire.

THE FIRST Infantry Regiment will go to the new Legion base near Merselles, France. Its Training Regiment will be stationed in a medieval fortress on a hilltop on the French Mediterranean island of Corsica. The First and Second Cavalry Regiments will guard French oil territory in the Sahara.

Other regiments will be sent to Diego Suarez, on the island of Madagascar, and to Djibouti, French Somaliland. It is considered possible a small detachment will remain in Algeria at the Mers-El-Kebir naval base near Oran. The base will remain under French control for 15 years under the Algerian peace settlement.

About 300 Legionnaires already are in Corsica. Eventually, 700 Legion families will be stationed there. Reports from Corsica said the Legionnaires are downcast in the abrupt change from Algeria's dust and violence to Corsica's lushness and peace.

"LOOK AT that smooth water, those black-eyed girls in blue jeans, the aroma of thyme and eucalyptus," one veteran said. "It's going to kill us here. The Legion needs the hard time, the desert, the battle."

For Sidi-Bel-Abbes, the departure plans of the Legion came as a shock. Many have said they will leave when the Legion does.

Troopers already are dismantling their famous Battle Museum for shipment to their new headquarters in France. It contains relics such as the gloved artificial left hand of Legion Capt. Danjou, who fought 2,000 Mexicans with a force of 62 Legionnaires in a battle near Vera Cruz in 1863.

DANJOU'S men held off the Mexicans for nine hours. The hand was displayed to modern Legionnaires at their last parade in Sidi-Bel-Abbes in April.

Another well known feature of the Museum is the Bronze Memorial to the Legion Dead—a globe supported by four troopers wearing the old-style uniforms of the "Beau Geste" era.

Moving Legion headquarters to France for the first time will not mean that Legion troops will operate from there. Under the 1931 ordinance of King Louis-Philippe establishing the service, it must "serve outside the continental limits of the kingdom" in the operational sense.

But the legion has had men in France for many years, mostly for recruiting purposes. Thousands of young Germans, Italians, Russians, Englishmen, and Americans have passed through the grim Fort De Vincennes in the eastern suburbs of Paris to sign up for the minimum term of five years and a future of danger, adventure and often death.

JOHN McNAMARA
Directorial Hit

McNamara Show Has Record Run

The play that has broken all records for paid admissions and attendance in Pasadena Playhouse's 45-year-history, "Everybody Loves Opal" starring Zazu Pitts, was directed by Belmont Shore actor-director John McNamara.

"This was my fourth directorial chore for Miss Pitts," said McNamara, "and I hope I do many more. I only wish the world was familiar with her stage talent, rather than the one-dimensional character she has always played on the screen and on TV."

McNamara said he was now making a pilot film for a projected TV series of mystery comedies in which Miss Pitts plays a bungling amateur detective. "It's called, 'Murder, So Help Me!'"

McNamara has been under contract to CBS for the past year. He has appeared in "Portrait in Black" and "Immolation of Life" with Lana Turner, "The Absent Minded Professor" with Fred McMurray, "Pork Chop Hill" with Gregory Peck, nearly all the major series shows on TV and has directed shows in Long Beach.

127 Japanese Upper House Seats at Stake

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese voters choose 127 new members of the Upper House Sunday. The election represents a test of support for Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda's economic policies.

No one doubts that Ikeda's Liberal-Democrats, together with minor conservative groups and independents, will retain their majority. The chief point of interest is how much the Socialists can gain.

Half the upper house is elected every three years. It lacks the law-making powers of the lower house, so there is little public interest.

Nevertheless, for Ikeda the election comes while his program to double the national income by 1971 appears to be bogged down.

The Socialists point to a recent rise in prices, a stock market slump, and the trend in many key industries toward overproduction.

Ikeda, admitting certain dislocations, says they are temporary situations.

Ask End to Greek Emergency Measures

ATHENS (AP)—The Greek government has asked Parliament to abolish some of the emergency measures taken to combat communism in the years following World War II.

A communique said the state is strong enough now to deal with "the dangers of unrest" without the need of emergency measures.

Famed Atom Smasher Closed at Berkeley

BERKELEY (UP)—Scientists threw a master switch and shot down one of the most famous and productive atom smashers in history.

The 60-inch cyclotron at the University of California's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory cranked out much of the foundation of the atomic age.

Weighing in at 220 tons, the smasher was the world's biggest and most powerful when it went into operation 23 years ago today.

Within its first year of operation, scientists used the cyclotron to create element 93, neptunium. They came up soon after with plutonium, the major fuel of atomic bombs. Five more elements followed — astatine, curium, berkelium, californium and mendelevium.

The cyclotron worked night and day for months producing plutonium in minute quantities.

NEW FRONTIER BAPTISM

Dressed Pool Plunge New Washington Status Symbol

By MERRIMAN SMITH
WASHINGTON (UP)—Backstairs at the White House.

The time has come to examine the New Frontier swimming pool syndrome—in depth. The shallow end of the pool, please.

Nothing since Caroline Kennedy first used her father's telephone has captured the imagination of columnists, comics and critics as the practice of leaping, falling or being shoved fully clothed into Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy's home swimming pool.

The Robert Kennedys entertain frequently and somewhat informally at their graceful country place in nearby McLean, Va. Dinner sometimes is served near the pool and on occasion a man or woman takes the plunge.

INFECTIOUS hilarity has been known to follow with fully clothed guest after guest plummeting into the pool. There is no current status symbol in Washington to match it—an evening dress or dinner jacket utterly limp and smelling faintly of chlorine from Bobby Kennedy's pool.

In fact, there are some rather sporty reports around town that both Perle Mesta and Gwen Calfritz have bought special pool dresses, but no one has asked them to jump.

Without an iota of exaggeration, the following conversation took place at a Washington party only a few days ago:

FIRST lady: "I hear you were at Bobby and Ethel's the other night."

Second lady: "Yes, it was a wonderful party."

First lady: "Did you go in?"

Second lady: "No, darn it, I stood by the pool for an hour and not a soul noticed me."

First lady: "How sad."

THE TOWERING Washington social status of having been dumped fully clothed into the Robert Kennedy pool may, however, be quite perishable. It will be good for effective upmanship only until word gets around that an entirely new upper crust exists—the IIP (incredibly important people).

The IIP is a man or woman who has been pushed into the Presidential pool at Glen Ora.

The Bobby Kennedy dunkers tend to be a rather talkative lot and the society writers seem to find out about the immersion before the subject has dried out. The IIPs, on the other hand, keep faithfully quiet about their glorious experience because to widen their circle would be to cheapen the honor.

A TRUE IIP is no swim-and-tell. No dashing over to the Red Fox Tavern in Middleburg and telephoning the nearest society editor. The true IIP, Glen Ora division, soaks and suffers silence, warmed by the deep social assurance of knowing one has treaded (water) where JFK dwells.

Nehru Attack on U.S. Brings Aid Cut Demand

L. P. T. Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Prime Minister Nehru's recent speech denouncing the U.S. and Great Britain for what can best be described as our neutral attitude towards Kashmir has added fuel to an already well started fire on Capitol Hill.

"Intransigent India" began one Senate speech this week. Indeed a look at India's posture in the last 12 months justifies the description. While deploring the fact the United States would begin nuclear testing the peaceful government of Mr. Nehru invaded Portuguese Goa; while deploring Communist China's aggression on India's northern borders, the Indian government has negotiated for arms—MIG jets from the communist Russians; while welcoming America's First Lady's visit as a gesture of eternal friendship Nehru has deliberately given increased power to Krishna Menon a man whose every utterance is anti-American.

SO AS THE Foreign Aid Bill comes up in Congress this week sentiment runs strong to heavily reducing our appropriation to India. Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri, chairman of the Middle East-South Asia subcommittee says, "There's just a point where you want to say, 'look here if we're going to finance your economy you too might make a little effort.' Mr. Symington had originally suggested a 25 per cent cut in aid to India, a compromise of 10 per cent is now in committee.

"We will, however, still be spending a good deal of money in India—some $775 million," says the senator.

Why, ask many legislators, are we giving any money to an India which makes increasingly nasty statements about its benefactors?

"The answer," says Symington, "goes back to our philosophy of aid. The theory is that communism flourishes only in lands where there is extreme poverty." Certainly the theory worked for Europe. The Marshall plan, by making Europe prosperous, has demolished the strength of the Communist Party.

IT IS MORE questionable whether in as vast and backward a land as India the results will be as apparent. We are helping to industrialize a land where whole villages have never even seen an axe, where in spite of an ancient complex culture plowing is mostly done by hand, where the 12th century peasant would be more at home than any of us.

Those arguing for our aid program say, "if we don't the Russians will." We have moreover an obligation to the other western powers now giving aid to the sub-continent to continue our cooperative efforts. . . . The British and the Canadians under the Colombo Plan, the West Germans and the French through special agreements are sharing the burden of bringing India into the 20th century. The Indian Five Year Plan is considered excellent by economists. So good that those working on Latin American aid plead with the governments of South America to produce as thoughtful and feasible a plan as that of the Indians.

BUT IN SPITE of reasoned planning aid givers in India are often discouraged. Last year the West German government built a steel mill after training Indian engineers in Germany they turned the mill over to the Indians. Not six weeks after the complicated mechanism of gears had been stripped. This reporter met the chief German engineer on his way back to India to start over. Incredible as it may seem, the frustrated man was having difficulty re-entering India. He had stopped off in Pakistan and was thus suspect.

Currently our own technicians are trying to benefit from the German experience. We say we will build a desperately needed steel mill only if American engineers run it until the moment they are confident that the Indians are fully trained. The Indians want to specify a time—two or three years—which we refuse to do. They then say—"you want to colonize us, you are treating us as inferiors." We answer, "No we just want to be sure our expensive equipment isn't ruined." At the moment no agreement has been reached.

BUT IT IS interesting that the Russians are quietly running the mill they built for the Indians. The Soviets send engineers that speak Urdu or Hindi. They settle them into Indian villages. They adopt the standard of living of the region and are thus unobtrusive.

We can't do this. Americans are accustomed to such a vastly higher standard of living we can't expect our engineers to melt into the Indian way of life.

COOKBOOK

Lost Art in Ice Cream?

Maybe the average housewife is so accustomed to buying ice cream and sherbets at the market that she doesn't know how to make them, says Mildred Flanary, in charge of the annual Independent Press-Telegram Cook Book Contest.

"For some reason we have received very few recipes in the classification of ice creams, ices and sherbets," the food editor declared. "But surely there are many recipes for delicious ice treats that housewives would be willing to share with others."

There are 40 different classifications in the contest and while entries are heavy in some, there are nine lacking enough to make good competition. Besides the ices, the ones in which few entries have been received include: flaming foods, beverages, egg dishes, dishes made with wine or beer, game cookery, left-overs, potato dishes and quantity cooking.

Three cash prizes will be awarded in each classification and the grand prize recipe will win for some person either a Gaffer & Sattler range or a dishwasher-dryer.

Deadline for submitting entries is midnight July 22. The prize-winning recipes and many others will be published in the eighth annual edition of the Cook Book published early in September.

Recipes should be mailed to Mildred Flanary, Cook Book Contest, Independent Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif.

Car Kills Child in Harbor City

HARBOR CITY (CNS)—A 7-year-old girl was killed Saturday night when she ran into the street in front of her Harbor City home and was struck by a car.

The victim, Joan Hallie, 1245 W. Anaheim St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Harbor General Hospital at 6:20 p.m.

The driver, Frederic Harding, 36, a machinist, 18812 Bellings Ave., Gardena, was not held.

Peru Election Victor Faces Fraud Charges

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Victor Raul Haya de la Torre piled up the most votes for president of Peru on the basis of official returns completed Saturday but charges of fraud still might bring victory to his closest rival, Fernando Belaunde. Both campaigned on left-wing platforms. The count was completed 19 days after the national election but it still must be approved by the national electoral jury. The military brought charges of fraud and irregularities in seven districts where Haya piled up a big vote. On the basis of the official count, Haya fell short of the 33.33 per cent of the total vote needed for election. If the jury holds returns from the seven districts invalid, Belaunde might emerge with the necessary percentage.

Astronaut Sees 7-Orbit Flight

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Lt. Col. John A. (Shorty) Powers, spokesman for the Project Mercury manned space program, said Saturday the next orbital mission might go as many as seven orbits.

Previously the National Aeronautics and Space Administration had announced the flight would shoot for from three to six orbits.

Powers, addressing the Texas Associated Press Broadcasters Association, said "anything over three orbits" will be a bonus.

"We have the capability for six or seven orbits without any modification of the Mercury capsule," he explained, "and we'll go for the full seven if all systems work perfectly."

The next flight has been set for "late summer," believed to be late September or October 1.

Powers showed first films of Astronaut Scott Carpenter's three-orbit ride of May 21 to the news executives and guests, attending their state convention.

Powers said NASA was currently modifying the Mercury spacecraft for the 18-orbit missions which will wind up the Mercury part of the U.S.

space venture in about a year, from now.

Asked how he figured the United States stood in the space race against the Soviet Union, Powers said:

"As far as manned effort is concerned there's no doubt Russia is well ahead. They've already done the 17-orbit all-day flight and we won't be ready for it for about a year."

"But as far as total space research is concerned," he added, "there's no doubt that we are well ahead."

Col. Powers said he personally didn't believe any of them, "but we're sure open to any new concepts or ideas along this line."

"You just don't operate a program as vast and technical as this without having some malfunctions," he said.

The "Voice of the Astronauts" said one of the biggest needs NASA had for training currently was a simulator that gave complete space conditions such as pressure, noise, heat G (gravity) conditions, and the like on the ground.

"We've seen quite a few of them," he said, "but we're sure open to any new concepts or ideas along this line."

Turkey Raisers Reject Controls

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The first group of farmers to vote on the issue has rejected the Kennedy administration's cure for depressed farm prices.

As a result, the power of the federal government will not be used to limit the production of turkey meat. Government controls were ready for imposition had the balloting gone the other way.

Although turkey growers have been suffering from the lowest prices in two decades, the Agriculture Department announced that the growers have spurned the tools offered them by the administration for forcing prices up.

Pacifists Landed in Honolulu

HONOLULU (UPI)—Three pacifists who sailed the Ketch Everyman II to the U.S. nuclear test-ban zone around Johnston Island were brought back to Honolulu Saturday aboard the Coast Guard cutter Matagorda.

Dr. Monte Steadman, San Francisco, skipper and spokesman for the group, said he thought they had "accomplished part of our objective" by being forcibly evacuated from the nuclear-test area. Their 25-foot boat is being towed back to Honolulu by the Coast Guard tender Ironwood. It was expected to arrive Monday.

U.S. MARSHAL Charles Gerlach said the boat has been placed under "technical arrest" but its three crewmen were free to come and go as they pleased.

However, they will have to answer a contempt charge in federal court July 9 for violating an order forbidding them to sail inside the 530-mile extended test zone.

They were not inside the zone Friday when Gerlach, aboard the Matagorda, served them with the order. But Steadman said he then sailed the boat into the forbidden area and at that point was stopped.

"That was where we were told the Everyman II was under technical arrest," said Steadman. "We asked if we were arrested and were told, 'No, but your boat is.'"

TO AVOID BEING dragged aboard the Matagorda, Steadman and crewmen C. George Bennello, Berkeley, Calif., and Franklin Zahn of Pomona, Calif., left the Everyman voluntarily and moved into the cutter's sick bay where they were confined.

All three men said the Coast Guard was "extremely courteous, and the accommodations quite pleasant."

U.S. Atty. Herman Lum said the Everyman II would be impounded when it arrives Monday, though its crewmen will be permitted to collect their personal belongings.

Disney's Swiss Family Tree in Adventureland and some other new attractions will be opened later this summer.

Shutdown Slated at Republic Steel

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Republic Steel Corp. announced that the entire steel-making operation at its plant here will be shut down for a week, beginning Monday.

An estimated 2,000 of the plant's 2,700 employees will be laid off during the suspension. Only the company's iron-making furnace will operate during the shutdown, Republic said.

City Council to Hear Pay Hike Requests

By GEORGE WEEKS
Long Beach budget-making will reach the critical stage this week, beginning Monday with appeals by eight employee groups for substantial salary increases.

Largest of the eight, the 2,700-member City Employees Association, will appear first at a special City Council session scheduled for 9 a.m. CEA is seeking an 11 per cent raise plus extra wages for night work and the payment of one-half of accumulated sick leave at the end of each year.

Most of the others have made comparable requests. In addition, City Employees Local 112 has proposed a flat $35 monthly boost for "blue-collar" job classifications.

OTHER GROUPS scheduled to be heard are the Police Officers Association, Fire Fighters Association, Municipal Engineering Association, lifeguard division, traffic guards and employees in the automotive division.

Councilmen indicated they expect to give most of the morning to listening. Whether they will reach a decision Monday was uncertain.

In general, the employee requests are more than three times greater than City Manager John R. Mansell's recommendation. His budget includes $625,695 reserve for a 3.5 per cent general increase effective Sept. 1. Employees in a few classes well below the average in comparable public agencies and private employment would get an extra 5 1/2 per cent.

BUT THE city manager's proposals depend in part on the adoption of new revenue measures. Nearly all of these are disputed. Council members have not set a date for considering them.

The new tax proposals are the only other key element remaining to be settled in the proposed $30,923,701 operating budget for tax-supported functions.

The biggest revenue item is a license levy of 3 cents per barrel on oil production. According to the latest estimate, it would yield $513,696 in nine months of the new fiscal year—a calculation based on an Oct. 1 effective date for the tax ordinance.

Although it hasn't been publicly debated, the oil levy is reported under heavy attack from some segments of the industry. It would be the first production fee of its kind for Long Beach.

THE ONLY other special revenue measures recommended in Mansell's budget are an increase in business and professional licenses to yield $125,000, a $90,000 license fee against apartment house owners and a 4 per cent tax estimated at $100,000 for transient room occupancies. The room tax would be reserved for a special advertising and promotion fund.

Although the new fiscal year began today, the city charter allows the council to deliberate an additional three weeks before adopting a final budget.

U.S. Wages Said No Bar to Trade

By GEORGE ERES
The United States can successfully compete against low-wage countries and is doing so, according to Dr. Paul Sultan, professor of economics at Claremont Graduate School, Claremont.

Dr. Sultan said there is considerable evidence to support the view that high wages in the United States are not pricing the U.S. out of the world market.

But, he pointed out in an interview with the Independent Press-Telegram, there is the possibility that we could be hurt "if wage increases exceed productivity gain."

DR. SULTAN cited the case of Japanese transistor radios as an example of the ability of the U.S. to compete.

He reported that Harry Gough, of San Francisco, regional vice president of General Electric, stated GE was not going to build a plant in Japan to take advantage of low wages there to build transistor radios. The company, noting an $8 cost differential in their product and the Japanese product, called in engineers and developed a radio that can compete in the price market.

"We are exporting more goods than we are importing from the U.S.," said Sultan, and "we United States."

are not in a desperate situation in cost-price structure because of our remarkable productivity. Statistics, based on the congressional hearings of last December, show we have been competing successfully."

SULTAN warned, however, that labor should be very cautious about guarding against a wage-price spiral.

"As of the moment we are successfully competing and as long as wage increases do not exceed productivity gain, the argument against high wages in America as pricing us out of the world market is not accurate."

He said that many industries are building plants abroad. "American industry has invested some $7 to $8 billions in Europe and that amount is increasing. There are two reasons for this. In the Japanese product, called a vantage of lower wage rates and secondly to get plants established behind tariff walls abroad. This is the reason for goods than we are importing from the U.S.," said Sultan, and "we United States."

COED STUDIES IN FIVE LANDS

State College Sophomore Returns to Complete Foreign Service Course

With a host of U.S. students going abroad for study, a pretty Long Beach State College sophomore has reversed the process.

Brown-haired Barbara Pierce, 19, has had the major share of her education far from her native land.

The daughter of Mr. and

Mrs. H. M. Pierce of 255 Nieto Ave. has studied in five foreign countries and speaks four foreign languages.

IN SWITZERLAND she did her lessons in French. In Peru it was Spanish; in Holland it was Dutch. During 2 1/2 years in Turkey, she was taught in English by her parents.

She studied in a South American adobe hut, a Dutch castle and a Swiss chalet.

The 5-foot-3, brown-haired coed who was born in Long Beach traveled with her family while her father worked at many of the world's famous oil fields as a petroleum engineer. Her sister, Leslie, a Rogers Junior High School student, was born in Peru.

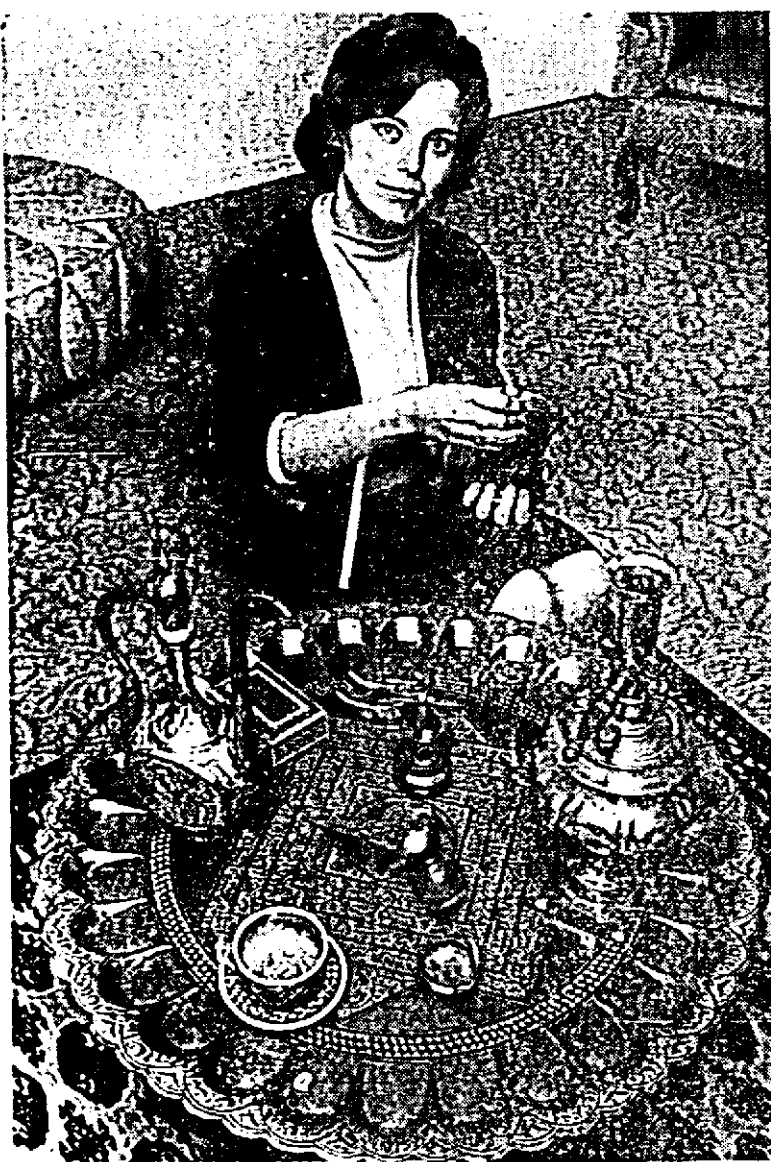

THE FAMILY returned to Long Beach last year when Pierce went into semi-retirement.

Barbara's grade school education included schooling in Peru, Turkey and Iran. She spent her junior year in high school studying in Switzerland and completed the 12th grade in a Dutch boarding school while her parents were living in Emden, Germany.

Due to her itinerant education, Barbara still doesn't have a high school diploma although she will start her second year of college in September. She had to pass the tough Oxford tests for college entrance.

THE STUDENT who believes that every American abroad is "a small diplomat on his own" is worried about losing her command of languages. She has taken French and German at LBSC where she is employed during the summer as a secretary.

The coed is studying for a post in the U.S. foreign service and hopes to be sent to the Far East. "Travel is in my blood," she says.

LOOKING OVER trinkets she has collected in her travels, Barbara Pierce has no yen to stay long in one place.

4-Day Key Club Sessions Open

More than 2,000 young and adult men dedicated to community service will convene in Long Beach today for the 19th annual convention of Key Club International.

Sen. Barry Goldwater will be the featured speaker at the four-day convention, to be held in Municipal Auditorium. He will speak at 8 p.m. Monday.

Key Club International is a high school boys' service organization sponsored by Kiwanis International. The Key Clubs perform the same service work in the high school and teen age community that their Kiwanis sponsors do in the adult community.

Co-chairman for the convention are Spencer Covert of Dominguez High School and Terry Smiley of Long Beach Polytechnic High School.

Clyde Walker of Inglewood represents Kiwanis International on the host committee.

OTHER SCHEDULED speakers in addition to Goldwater are H. Andru Turk of Gainesville, Ga., president of Key Club International; I. R. Witthuhn, Milwaukee, Wis., president of Kiwanis International; Rev. Bob Richards, two-time Olympic champion pole vaulter; Karl Knecht, trustee of Key Club International, and motion picture and recording star Pat Boone.

Other Key Clubs assisting in the program, to which representatives from the 57,000 members in 2,400 clubs in the United States and Canada, will come, are Gardena, Jordan, Lakewood, Millikan, Warren, and Wilson, in addition to Dominguez and Polytechnic.

ELECTION of international officers and trustees for the 1962-63 school term will be held Wednesday.

Special posthumous recognition of two of the early leaders of Key Club International will be made during the convocation. To be honored are Frank C. Vincent, who originated the Key Club idea in the Sacramento Kiwanis Club in May, 1925, and Theodore M. de Polo, one of the first presidents of the Sacramento Key Club, who is credited with setting the pattern of youthful service to the community.

Beach Combing
With Malcolm Epley

THE BEIGE and buff color scheme of the new Long Beach Arena — the mighty oval building on the beach now nearing completion — leaves me with a mixed reaction.

Usually my tastes are conservative, and on that basis, I certainly can't kick about the arena colors.

But I find I expected something a little bolder. Perhaps, when the job is done and the surrounding area cleared of debris and equipment, the structure will make more of the impression I anticipated.

I can see that too much color could make the huge building undesirably garish, and no doubt Architect Kenny Witg knows his color business well. So I'm reserving judgment.

LIKE THE COLORS or not, you'll have to admit the great structure, even though yet uncompleted, is already doing big things for Long Beach's convention business.

Howard Jones, the convention bureau mgr., has found it a great asset in landing some important events for the future.

For example, last week Jones went to Miami, Fla., and on the basis of the availability of the arena, landed the 1963 National Square Dance convention.

He succeeded in the face of stiff competition from Dallas, Tex. When you lick the Texans, brother, you've accomplished something.

Jones says the Square Dance affair will be one of the largest conventions ever held in Long Beach and certainly one of the most colorful.

a big transit shed for the huge California Drycleaners Convention and Trade Show when it appeared the new arena would not be finished in time.

Other activities booked into the bldg., which reflect the broad cross-section use for which it is designed, include the U.S. National Figure Skating Championships next February, the huge Pacific Hardware Association Trade Show booked for L.B. after an absence of two years, major automobile shows, and an important collegiate level basketball tournament.

It's safe to predict that the arena, which we're finally about to open after years of struggle and pain, will perform marvels in keeping Long Beach in the forefront as a locale for big events of coastwide, national and international importance.

THE TOP of the big oval is flat as a pancake and makes quite a sight from the air, according to people who have flown over it recently.

No particular plan is considered for this immense top area, but here's one idea:

In huge letters of luminous paint, place on it the words: LONG BEACH, the INTERNATIONAL CITY.

This would make an outstanding impression on sky travelers.

ANOTHER suggestion, offered by a wag who knows it will never happen, is to put a race track around the perimeter.

Frank Vessels' quarter horses would make quite a picture racing around the edge, but where would the spectators and the tote boards be located?

L.B. Vessels on July 4 Gala Visit

The Long Beach-based shore minesweepers USS Cove and USS Cape will visit Redwood City Monday through Thursday to participate in the Independence Day celebration there.

The only two of their kind in the Navy, these vessels are experimental, designed to be built in almost any boatyard with "off-the-shelf" components.

Each of the 112-foot minesweepers carries a crew of three officers and 18 enlisted men. They are constructed of wood and non-magnetic metals to protect them from magnetic mines.

A leader in training handicapped children in Finland is in Long Beach this week to renew friendships made here eight years ago.

Salmie Kotkilahti of Helsinki, Finland, is the guest of Municipal Court clerk Ruth M. Bauchet, 289 Gaviota Ave., as she was in 1954 when she attended a two-week international conference of teachers of the handicapped here.

Engle, Richards Display Courage in Customs Fight

U.S. SEN. CLAIR ENGLE and State Sen. Richard Richards have earned a public vote of confidence for their courage as well as their good sense in supporting a decision to locate the new U. S. customhouse in the harbor area.

Their view is courageous because it goes against interests in downtown Los Angeles. To illustrate the hazard of such incivility, the Los Angeles newspaper which serves as mouthpiece for those interests printed a bitter editorial attack this week on the two senators. This attack was, of course, merely the L. A. newspaper's way of acknowledging its critical setback in the Senate hearings in Washington last Wednesday. At those hearings, powerful testimony was given once again in behalf of the harbor-area location of the customhouse.

SEN. ENGLE SAID MORE than a year ago that the Los Angeles civic center is no place for a customhouse. His view was vindicated by U. S. Customs Commissioner Philip M. Nichols Jr., who decided in favor of the harbor area after fair, impartial, and exhaustive investigation. Sen. Engle's view was also supported by pro-downtown witnesses, themselves, at last Wednesday's hearing.

Miss Margery Shostack, appearing on behalf of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, said: "Perhaps there are problems in putting the customhouse in the civic center which we didn't foresee when we first backed that site." She added: "But the customs should be kept downtown."

Leonard Webster, president of a customs broker firm, also opposing the harbor area site, stated: "I think everyone now agrees that the civic center site is not suitable."

What makes the civic center site unsuitable? It is too far from the harbor, there is terrific traffic congestion, and land costs are too high. However, these things are true, not merely of a civic center site, but of any downtown Los Angeles site. They are factors which have weighed heavily in the selection of the harbor area site.

SEN. RICHARDS COULD EASILY have remained out of the customhouse fight on the ground that it is a question to be settled by the federal government. But he stepped forward in behalf of good public policy to praise the choice of the harbor area site as "excellent, and the only logical choice that could be made."

For expressing this opinion he is described by the Los Angeles mouthpiece as Tweedledum echoing Tweedledee. This frail, trite sarcasm does not invalidate the truth of what is being echoed. This particular echo has been heard so often that it seems to have driven the Los Angeles mouthpiece into a state of hysteria.

De Gaulle Hails Der Alte Royally

WASHINGTON—Gen. Charles de Gaulle is pulling out all stops in his entertainment this week of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. He is determined to make the show bigger and better than those accorded either Queen Elizabeth II of Great Britain and President John F. Kennedy. He wants to prove that the dominant powers of Western Europe are France and Germany and to stress that point for the benefit of American and British observers. The program includes the flashiest of French parades, a solemn "Te Deum" Mass at the magnificent cathedral of Rheims, and a festive evening at the French Opera. Only one item on the proposed ceremonial agenda was vetoed by the Germans. De Gaulle had wanted to take Adenauer to view the beaches of Dunkirk. The Germans balked at that and vigorously said: "Nein."

IF HUSBANDS AND WIVES followed the Navy's logic, they'd quit having babies. Adm. Hyman Rickover told a bemused House Appropriations committee recently. He had been asked to comment on the Navy's nuclear shipbuilding program.

"The Navy claims that nuclear surface ships are too expensive," Rickover said. "They cost about one and one-half times as much as a conventional ship. This is given as the main reason for not going sooner to nuclear surface ships."

"While an increase of 50 per cent is considered a reason for not going to such naval ships, I have not heard any naval aviators advocating that we should not use naval aircraft even though their cost has gone up about 2500 per cent. Actually, most everything has gone up in cost. Even the cost of having babies has gone up. I believe it is now about 1.7 times what it was in 1950. On that basis, we should stop having babies, but I see no visible evidence of this. I believe that ultimately the Navy will come around to nuclear surface ships."

BILL SUMNER

JFK Farm Bill Blitz Exerted Too Much Political Pressure

WASHINGTON — The administration's campaign for its farm bill was smoothly plotted and generated and seemed to be moving along with the relentless efficiency one has learned to expect from it.

Yet it lost, as have a few other administration projects which followed the same campaign style. And while attempting to analyze the surprise defeat of the bill is probably futile and time wasting, possibly it would be a valuable exercise for the President.

The farm bill blitz seemed to have everything. There were arm-twisting performances. Deals were offered. Promises made. The outcome was expected to be close, but there was an air of confidence on the House floor. Republican strategists such as Minnesota's Albert Quie quite frankly stated they were on the losing side.

So how really can you explain the desertion from the ranks of 48 Democrats? And the solid (all but one) Republican vote? It seems to me that Minority Leader Halleck is given far too much credit for staging this upset. Much of the defeat was built right in the bill and the elements of defeat increased as debate continued.

IT IS THIS last that seems to expose the administration's greatest flaw in such matters. Apparently, in its high powered planning, there is little thought given to men's honest convictions. There has to be pressure, but it is difficult to believe that there are not men sitting in the House who do, in fact, vote for conviction.

This has either escaped the Kennedys or is regarded as of little importance by them.

The basic issue presented in the farm bill was whether farms could continue under subsidies without more rigid controls to cut down on the cost to the taxpayer of the tremendous over-production.

Honest men could argue for weeks over such an issue, but, unfortunately, it became clouded. Amendments were included in the bill as it was marked up in committee. Some 20 to 30 amendments were accepted (by the committee) on the floor during debate. All of them were designed to free one section or another from the rigid production quotas of the original bill.

The man who might say to himself that there must be some brake on production would have to reach the conclusion that a gigantic snow job was in operation. Why, for example, should the south be exempt from feed grain quotas? Why should this area be allowed to turn over acreages idled by cotton or tobacco quotas to contribute to a feed grain surplus while the Midwest was held under rigid control?

Unfortunately for the administration, that was a good question. The answer was plain. It was a deal with the South which seems to be so important in any piece of legislation. But this bit of political horse trading, along with several others, enabled men to vote against the bill without troubling their minds about the basic issue.

And the political arm-twisting the administration seems so adept at apparently backfired in some respects. Rep. Otis Pike, a New York Democrat, wrote to his constituents "my arm aches from the twisting it has taken lately."

PIKE's newsletter was placed in the Record by Halleck. In it, he complained about the pressure exerted in regard to raising the debt ceiling. He stated, in regard to the farm bill, that he had received "both phone calls and a visit from a friendly representative of the Post Office Department. He didn't want to talk about the eight new applications for post offices which are pending in the district; he wanted to talk about the farm bill."

Pike thought it odd that the man who came to talk about the farm bill came from the Post Office Department and not the Department of Agriculture.

"Do you suppose," he wrote, "it has anything to do with those pending post offices?"

More than likely it did, but Pike voted against the bill.

Prayer Decision a Reminder of Historic Oak Grove Pact

WASHINGTON — Near Orange, Va., just south of Washington, there is a grove of ancient oak trees under which was held a meeting 174 years ago which led to last week's Supreme Court decision banning state prayers in public schools.

It is quite a beautiful grove of oak trees, now made into a park by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and the American public has almost completely forgotten what went on there. The Supreme Court justices who wrote the opinion banning state prayer, however, had not.

It was near Orange, Va., that John Leland, a crusading Baptist minister, sat down with James Madison, later president of the United States, and worked out the First Amendment to the Constitution which reads in part:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

who helped pioneer the First Amendment, had migrated to Virginia from Grafton, Mass., not far from Salem Hill where he saw witches hanged. It was a time when Baptist Roger Williams was banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony, and when Quakers were hanged on Boston Common because they sought to worship in their own way. They were hanged and banished by the Puritans who had come to New England to seek religious freedom but failed to grant it to others.

In Massachusetts, Leland's marriage to Sally Devine was not officially recognized because it was performed by a Baptist preacher, and, if he had moved to Connecticut, he could not have been sure of owning property because the controlling Congregationalist church sometimes seized the property of non-Congregationalists.

Before Leland arrived in Virginia, another Baptist, James Ireland, had been horsewhipped, jailed, threatened, pulled from pulpits, ducked in ponds, and driven out of town. Leland was a huge, hulking man and fared better. He preached 3,000 sermons throughout most of

Drown Bid for GOP Office Tests Nixon's Inside Power

THE MOST fascinating political set-to on July's calendar is the head-on clash for the chairmanship of the Los Angeles County Republican Central Committee between incumbent J. A. (Jud) Leatham and Jack Drown, Long Beach magazine distribution agency executive and present secretary of the committee.

Chief fascination lies in the fact that the election poses yet another and major test of the gubernatorial nominee Richard M. Nixon's control over working party organizations. Both Leatham and Drown have pledged unconditional effort toward electing Nixon and the whole GOP ticket but Drown's pledge has the power of more than two decades of personal devotion to Nixon whereas Leatham bids from a pre-primary yesterday of neutrality.

Because the man is Drown, it is obvious that Nixon wants Leatham dumped. It follows, as obviously, that the real issue in the July election is whether Nixon is going to be able to name his own team. It may be unfortunate for Drown that this issue has not been broached in his candidacy.

The issue which Drown and advisors chose to float his candidacy on was his charge that "for the first time in more than 20 years, the Los Angeles County Republican organization emerged from the primary election with a serious deficit."

No sooner was this Drown balloon afloat that Leatham shot it down. Leatham said that not only is there no deficit, but it appears that an audit will show a surplus of about $50,000, and that the figures will look very good when compared with 1958, and 1960.

Charles Soderstrom, treasurer of the county committee, called Drown's accusation "completely false" and described Leatham as "perhaps the ablest, most dedicated, hardest working leader we have known."

GOP COMMITTEE members from Long Beach area Assembly districts also checked on the financial status. One reported contact with the county controller who also reported a surplus condition.

If Drown has no defense to this rebuttal (he was unavailable for comment at week's end) he must come up with other issues. His announcement of candidacy intimidated others—for example, that his election would build "a strong, vigorous and unified county committee built on the sound financial basis necessary to insure the confidence of those who contribute to our efforts." In short, the fat cats are more likely to come through for Nixon through Drown, and they may lack confidence in Leatham.

LEATHAM DEFENDS his neutrality not only as a proper position during a party primary but also as the girding for unification of dissident elements after the primary.

He says he has enough promises of support from Assembly district leaders to make him feel assured of reelection. When he announced he would seek the post again he advised that he would arrange a meeting with Nixon "next week" to aim for effective committee cooperation.

The only "next week" development was Drown's candidacy. Leatham said he conferred with "some Nixon officials" and has been waiting for reply. Although he grants his neutrality may have been "abrasive" to both Nixon and Shell people in the primary, he made this unstinting pledge after the vote: "I worked hard and long in Dick Nixon's presidential campaign in 1960 and intend to work even harder and longer for his election this year. I will do this whether or not I am reelected."

Well-Treated at Seattle Fair

EDITOR: There has been so much written adversely about conditions at the Seattle World Fair, that we wanted to tell about how much we enjoyed it and how well we were treated. We have been to the Chicago World Fair, the one in San Diego and also the one on Treasure Island in San Francisco.

WE LEFT Long Beach June 2 without reservations of any kind, stopped along the way to visit friends and relatives, all telling of the dire consequences of arriving in Seattle without advance reservations. We stopped in Portland, went to the information bureau there in which they have the Expo Lodging set-up, told them what we wanted and within 10 minutes had our reservations made.

We got accommodations on Queen Anne Hill, a very lovely section of Seattle, brand new with all cooking facilities, a double bed plus a let-down double bed in living room, all for $16.00 per night. We saved from $15.00 to $20.00 per day on parking our car, as we could leave it there and walk to the fair. However, after walking as much as one does at a fair we were very happy to ride home on the bus which was only 20 cents. We had signed up for four nights but extended it to five.

AS TO THE FAIR, of course one has to stand in lines for anything that is popular. We stood in line three hours to get to have lunch in the restaurant up in the Needle, but it was well worth it. We stood in line one hour to get into the Science Bldg. and it too was well worth it. People stand in many lines at Disneyland and one never hears a word about that. We feel that it is a very wonderful fair and if people would just make the effort to see it all as we did, they would not be complaining. Also, we feel that we were not gouged by prices at any time.

Agrees With High Court Ruling

EDITOR: Why so much dismay over the Supreme Court ruling that it is unconstitutional for an official prayer in public schools?

I am a great believer in prayer. But we can pray in our private homes. And we have our church schools. I believe in teaching of religion but not in public schools.

Religion should not be forced on any one. I am against the whole concept that so many parents have today, that the school teacher should act as the religious adviser substitute for parents, thereby relieving them of their duties.

The home and the church are where the children should be taught their prayers, or in parochial schools.

Never should any type of religious ceremony be allowed in public schools. Religious freedom is too precious a heritage to allow even the minute infringement upon it.

Answers Johovich Attack on Hosmer

EDITOR: Mr. Johovich's criticism of Congressman Craig Hosmer's vote against the administration Farm bill shows only one thing. Mr. Johovich shares Secretary Freeman's belief in dictatorship over farmers. The administration wants a law which says, "We will tell you farmers what to do and see that you do it."

It's very simple. Bribe if you obey, bankruptcy if you don't.

Obviously Congressman Hosmer doesn't believe in dictatorships. Mr. Johovich apparently does.

By Charles F. Bailey and Robert Thompson-Davis

The recent world soccer championship played in Chile has helped focus attention on the increasing popularity of soccer as an international sport. Soccer is called "Association Football" in England and also soccer, an abbreviation of Association. Most countries, along with England and France, refer to soccer as "football," with some spelling variations: Spanish (and Russian)—futbol, German—Fussball.

Portuguese—futebol, Swahili—futboli, Czech—fotbal, Norwegian and Danish—fotball. Other languages eschew the English word for their own: Italian—calcio (kick), Polish—piłka (ball), Indonesian—sepak bola (kick ball), Hawaiian—popopeku (ball kick), Greek—poposphairon (foot sphere), Hebrew—kadur regel (ball foot), Arabic—kuratlaqadam (ball the foot).

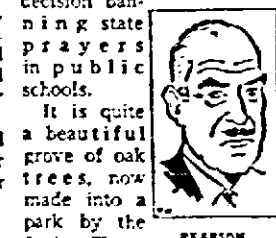

The American variety of football is considered too violent by most other nations. But even this surpassed in roughness by Gaelic football, referred to in its own land as caille (game ball), and, to say the least, it is quite bromar (lively).

Thoughtful Planning Many Years Ago Gives Long Beach Ample Water Today

That refreshing drink of pure water which you may have just taken was available because, thankfully, Long Beach had farsighted men at the helm years ago.

Nature has brought this area of Southern California the finest in climate and living conditions but apparently she overlooked the fact that an immense population center was to develop between the foothills of the mountains and the ocean.

The area is blessed with pleasant weather the year around. Too pleasant, in fact, to provide the water necessary to meet the needs.

But Long Beach residents face no problems of water. They may sprinkle their lawns or gardens day in and out; may shower or bathe, do the laundry and housework using all the water they desire without reservations.

Farsighted Leaders

Some areas of the nation under go hardships each summer due to water shortages—and some of those places aren't too far from Long Beach.

This city might well feel the pinch of water shortage today had not those farsighted city leaders made plans years ago to meet the needs of tomorrow. And, we today enjoy this water at a cost far lower than many other cities must pay.

The oldest city utility, the Water Department was started as a function of the city July 1, 1911 when the city of Long Beach had 18,000 residents.

The city at that time purchased two private firms that had been supplying well wa-

BRENNAN S. THOMAS

Water rates are set by the commissioners and approved by the City Council.

Rates Remain Low

From the start, the Water Department has tried to provide Long Beach residents with the lowest water rates possible. It was never in business to create a big profit. That is why the rates remain low in comparison to other cities.

Water is costly, it can't be denied. The city uses 32 wells to provide 70 per cent of the water needed. The rest is purchased from the Metropolitan District and it comes from the Colorado River.

The well water is far from free. Pumping from great depths is costly. Then in addition, there is a tax charged by the Water Replenishment District for pumping from the wells in the district. Last year the tax was $5.75 per acre foot, and the Water Department paid a tax of $220,000. This year the rate will be $6.63 per acre foot, and the Water Department is budgeting $260,000 for its tax. The money is used to purchase water from the Metropolitan Water District and spread it underground at Whittier Narrows.

Proud of Record

The water board members are proud of the record of service provided this city in furnishing a vast water supply at an extremely low cost. Predecessors paved the way for this huge utility to meet the needs and the current board is looking well into the future in their thoughts and planning.

The fine new building visitors will tour is another source of pride of the department. It was built without taxing the department budget or city funds. The money came from land sold for the new San Diego Freeway, thanks to the thoughtfulness years ago in obtaining the land for water rights.

While desalinization of sea water and reclamation of waste water undoubtedly will help solve the water shortage in years to come, there is no indication that such progress will be reached in the near future.

Must Look Ahead
Therefore, the Long Beach Board of Water Commissioners must plan for tomorrow, next year and years to come. The growth of Long Beach is certain to continue and the demand for water will grow accordingly.

The current Water Commission is composed of five businessmen who are cognizant of the water needs in Long Beach.

Glen A. Gerken, the president, has been a member of the board four years. He is a prominent Long Beach Realtor.

Ross E. Hall, the vice president, has been a board member six years. He is the former owner of Century Lumber Co.

Fred S. Dean is the senior member in point of service, having been on the board 11 years. He is president of Dean's Electronics and a director of the Metropolitan Transit Authority.

Oliver W. Speraw, a member eight years, is district manager of Walker & Lee, Inc., Realtors.

Everett Houser, now on his second year, is a well known Long Beach attorney.

Thomas Guiding Hand

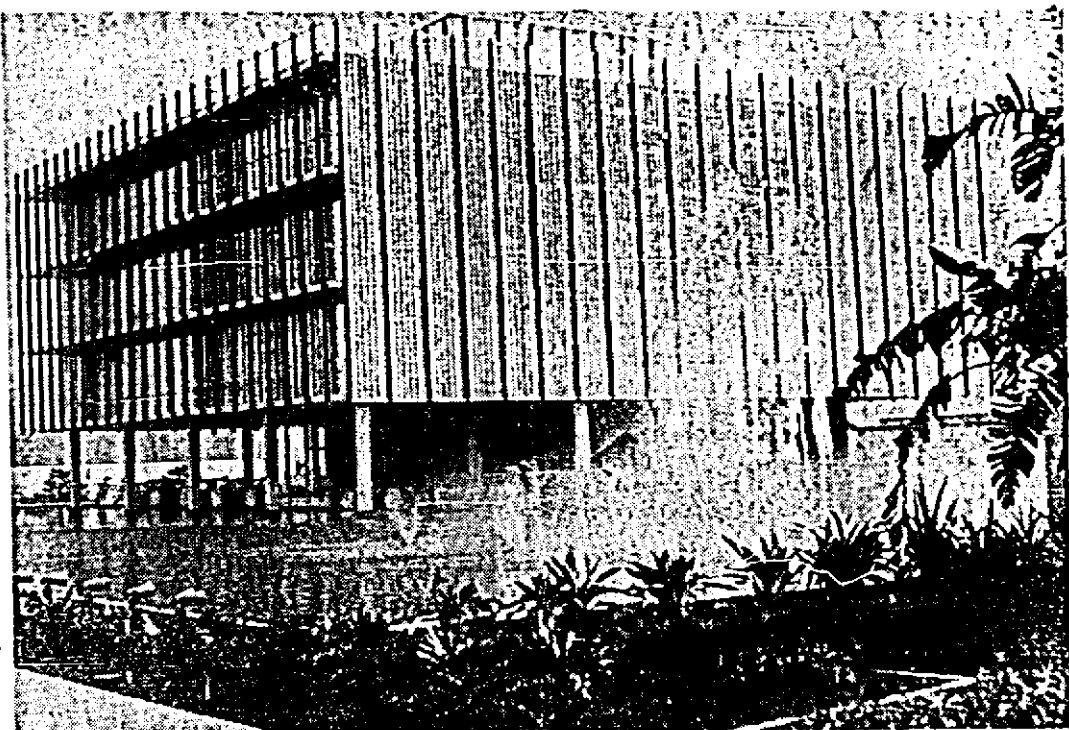

The board, like previous boards for many years, depends largely upon the guidance of Brennan S. Thomas whose life for 38 years has been dedicated to the water problems of Long Beach. The past 17 years he has been the general manager, directing the department through the historic growth of Long Beach.

Water Dept. to Observe Open House

To help you get better acquainted with the Long Beach Municipal Water Dept., and help celebrate its 51st year of service, open house will be observed by the department at its fine new office building.

The open house will be at the administration building at 1800 E. Wardlow Road, Friday, July 6, from 6:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday, July 7 and 8, from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The Board of Water Commissioners, headed by President Glen A. Gerken, and the Water Department staff headed by Brennan S. Thomas, general manager and chief engineer, will be the hosts.

With no cash on hand, the department made its way.

Water Levels Fall

As the city grew, the water levels in the wells dropped. Between 1924 and 1929 there was a drop of 53 feet.

City and civic leaders, recognizing the need of bolstering the water supply of the future, recommended buying land for more wells and joining in Metropolitan Water District of Southern California.

The election Feb. 17, 1931 gave full approval to these suggestions and created the Board of Water Commissioners.

The decision at that election really determined the future of Long Beach for without the present water setup, Long Beach could never have realized its great growth, city officials now stress.

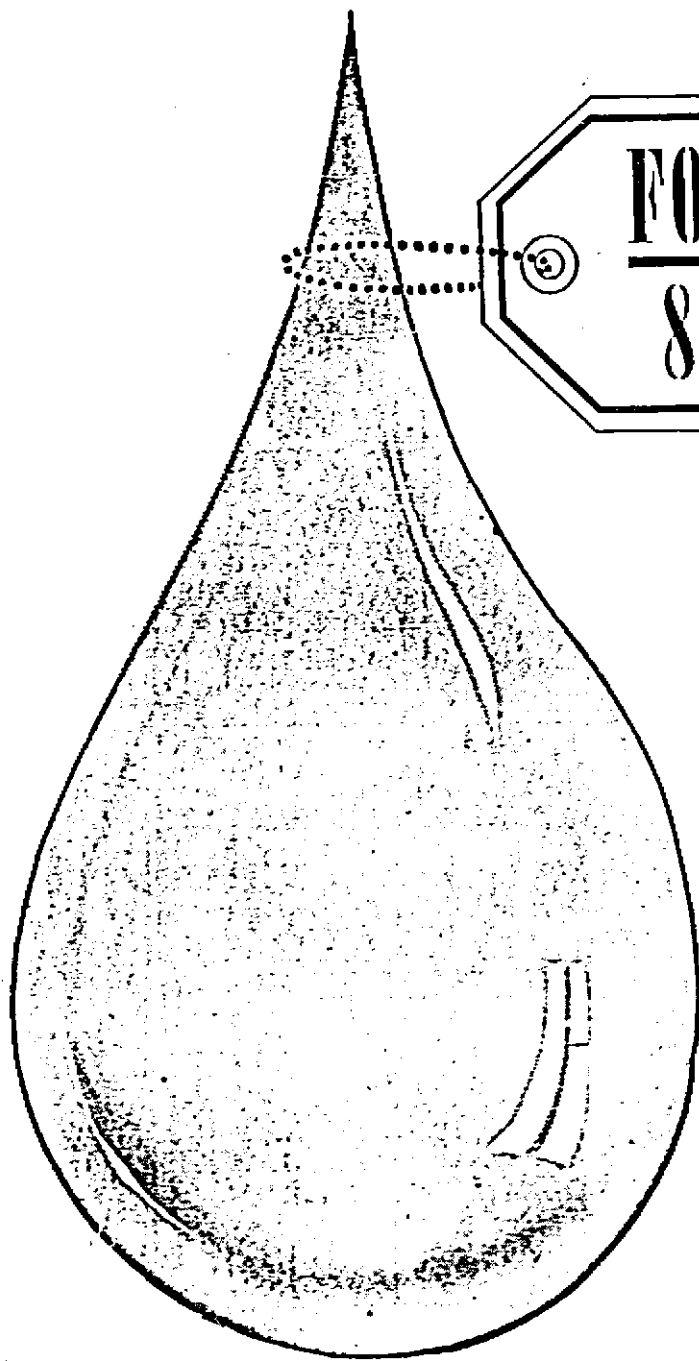

The department purchased 355 acres of land for well development which is known today as Heartwell Park. It is just south of Carson Street and extends from Lakewood Boulevard to Pioneer Boulevard.

Thomas Is Manager

The Water Commission was given, by the voters, complete and exclusive power to supervise, control and regulate and manage the department. It appoints the general manager who is chief administrative officer and he serves at the pleasure of the board.

Brennan S. Thomas, who has been with the department 38 years, has been the general manager and chief engineer the past 17 years.

Many of today's fine improvements which permit delivery of water to more than 82,000 customers yet with 35 fewer employees than in 1950 when there were 55,000 customers, have been conceived and worked out by Thomas and his staff.

Magoo Takes on New York Show

By EARL WILSON

New York—"What kills me about people in Hollywood," says Jim Backus, "is that when they say 'You're going to spend three months in New York!' it's like I was going to Rangoon..."

Jim, the "Mr. Magoo" of TV, and his wife Henny, have settled down in Manhattan for Jim to take over "Talent Scouts."

"We all went out there from New York," Jim heartily points out. "They are the people who sit in the Brown Derby and say 'I miss the concert, I miss the good conversation.' After all, New York may be sticky in August—but Burbank—that's a charming place in August, too!"

Jim's able to go away back to the early radio days in New York—back before there was an AFRA union—"You had no idea what your check would be"—and that's what amuses him about some of the big-salaried Hollywood stars now.

"THE BEL AIR fire, you know, was really a funny fire..."

"Because it was a chic fire and nobody was hurt. The Red Cross set up a field kitchen but nobody showed up because they didn't serve vichyssoise."

"Our house was saved because we were practically on the golf course. There were people who fled and got blankets and sat there on the edge of the golf course watching their homes burn down. Well, two guys played right through on the golf course in spite of the fire."

"And their only comment was, 'Would you mind not sobbing, Lady?'"

JIM SAYS HENNY had the right idea about saving valuables. "Throw them in the pool! Then they can't burn. I threw in a drip-dry suit." When Jim finally got going in New York radio after coming here as a kid from Cleveland, he found he could do a whole show—including rehearsal—in an hour and 15 minutes, and earn a fast $21.

GLAMOR GRAD STILL A STUDENT

Sandra Church Plans Night College Course, Days on Brando Movie Set

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress Sandra Church, one of this year's more glamorous high school graduates, isn't through with education yet.

"I expect to enroll at Columbia University in the fall," says she, after finishing a year of high school work in three months.

Lots of bright students have done that—but none while playing Marlon Brando's wife in a movie.

A few years ago, Sandra was a junior at immaculate Heart High School in Hollywood. A friend sent her photo to the Theater Guild which was looking for a replacement for Janice Rule in the Broadway company of "Picnic."

After "Gypsy," her project was a three-month trip to the Orient.

"My mother and my agents were horrified," recalls Sandra. "But I couldn't think of any movie or stage role that would compensate for my trip to the Orient—so I went."

SHE TRAVELED alone, visiting such places as Nepal and Kyoto, Japan, where her great aunt, Mary Florence Denton, was a Presbyterian missionary for most of her 90 years.

Sandra says her next project is Europe. She alienates herself from show business when she travels.

"It's very easy to do because I'm mostly alienated even when I'm in it," she explains. "I go to parties and people want me to sing. I just won't sing unless I'm on stage. I never read the movie columns, or gossip columns of any kind. I do read the notices for the Broadway openings."

"There's too much happening of real importance in the world to bother with trivia."

SHE ATTRIBUTES her attitude about show business to the fact that she grew up in it.

Sandra was born in San Francisco but moved to Los Angeles as a child after her father's death.

YOUNG STAR AT STUDIES

Sandra Church, studying her textbooks in Hollywood, plans to go on to college while she continues her acting career. In her early 20s, she has just graduated from high school which she left a few years ago for a role on Broadway.

Good U.S. Image Hard Sell Job

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Hard-est thing to sell in Hollywood, says producer Joe Pasternak, is something that will give America a good image overseas.

Pasternak is a Hungarian immigrant who is rated one of the top all time movie producers in Hollywood. His name on a movie from Deanna Durbin days to his current "Jumbo" means entertainment and showmanship.

But he's up against a roadblock with a proposed television series called "The Fairest Lady of Them All."

"I WANT to do a series with the Statue of Liberty as the hostess and tell the stories of immigrants who have come to America and made good—a Knute Rockne, an Albert Einstein, an Andrew Carnegie or a Helena Rubinstein."

"And there will be stories about some who goofed—Al Capone, for instance. I don't want to be maudlin, just entertaining, but I do want the world to know what America means to us who came through Ellis Island," says,

Pasternak. But his opposition comes from networks and advertising agencies which tell him: "flag waving is not commercial."

30,000 MILES IN NINE MONTHS

Two Plan Trip to Straits of Magellan

By VERA WILLIAMS
The only trouble with planning a trip to the Straits of Magellan is that everyone wants to go along. So say Rod Henselman and Robert Ferris as they

MAP 30,000 MILE TRIP

brush up on their Spanish, discard unnecessary articles and take occasional "dry runs" for the 30,000 mile, nine-month trip they will undertake in September. Henselman, 5781 Campo

Ferris, 626 N. Pacific Ave., Seal Beach, former photography instructor at Wilson, just back from a year's trip to Tahiti on the 48-foot schooner Duchess, hopes to get first-rate pictures. He is taking along still and movie cameras and a tape recorder for the purpose.

THEY'LL MAKE the trip in Henselman's 10-foot, three-quarter ton Ford pickup camper, which has shown its prowess in a lot of camping trips, principally to the Henselman cabin on the Rogue River in Oregon.

The core of the project will be visits to such places as the educational center in Bello Horizonte, Brazil; the International Development Services farm assistance center in Guatemala; the International Cooperation Administration rural home project in Cachancipa, Colombia; and the Costa Rica Industry Center. They hope to visit not only the centers Walk, social studies and English teacher at Wilson High School, on his sabbatical leave, plans the trip so he can teach Latin American history, geography and current conditions upon his return.

They'll travel the Pan-American Highway to the Strait of Magellan at the southern tip of South America—but they realize the highway looks a good deal better on the map than it does on the terrain. Part of the time they'll have to beat their way through the jungle. Part of the way they'll have to travel by boat.

"WE EXPECT to live on the land, as much as we can," says Ferris. "We'll have fruit and vegetables. We'll fish. A lot of the lizards are pretty good eating."

"So are rattlesnakes," adds Henselman. "Rattlesnake meat tastes like chicken."

Ferris isn't married. What will Henselman's wife, Frances, assistant public librarian in charge of the Administration Division, do while he is gone? "I'll work for a new main library building," she says.

THERE DEFINITELY isn't room for you to go along—even if you promise to catch lizards and the rattlesnakes—but to make you envious this is the itinerary thus far worked out: Long Beach to Mexico City via Monterrey. Through the Tehuantepec Peninsula to Yucatan, visiting Mayan ruins, Guatemala City and environs, including Lake Atitlan, Antigua, Chichicastenango. All Central American countries and their capitals. From Panama portage by boat to Buenaventura, Colombia.

Up the Cauca Valley visiting the industrial cities of Medellin and Cali and the village of Cachancipa. Santa Fe de Bogota to Ecuador, including Quito. Side trip to the Galapagos Islands.

Peru, exploring Lima, Arequipa and Iquitos on the headwaters of the Amazon. Down the Atacama desert and the central valley of Chile. Cross Andes by the Uspallata Pass to Argentina, visiting Tucuman, Mendoza and Cordoba.

Buenos Aires, south through the pampa regions visiting Bahia Blanca and Comodoro Rivadavia. South with side visits to the lake regions west of Patagonia in the foothills of the Andes.

Punta Arenas, most southerly city of the world.

PUC DELAYS ACTION ON SALE PERMIT

City May Bid for Water Firm

Public Utilities Commission action on an application for approval of sale of Fairacres Water Co.—last privately owned water company in the city—has been postponed at the request of the city of Long Beach.

PUC put over to Aug. 2, action on the application of W. R. Quinney and Joe Quinney, his wife, owners of Fairacres, 5602 Atlantic Ave., to sell to Earl P. Kent Jr. for $60,000.

The PUC put off the decision after Henry Jordan, of the Franchise Bureau, sought the delay at the request of the Water Department. Jordan said since Fairacres was up for sale, the city wanted an opportunity to survey the concern with an eye to purchase.

request by Jordan was the first official pronouncement that the city was interested in the property. Fairacres serves approximately 725 customers in the area bounded roughly by South Street, California Avenue, Locust Avenue and Market Street.

The concern has three water wells, one of which is inactive at the moment.

WHILE FAIRACRES is the last remaining privately owned water company in the city, there are three small mutual water companies which continue to operate their own wells.

These mutuals—operated by the member-users of the water—are:

Northgate Garden Water Co., serving 150 customers in the area north and east of Long Beach Boulevard and Artesia Street at a flat monthly fee of $2; Orchard Park Water Club with 110 customers paying $1.50 a month each in the area roughly between Louise Street, 52nd Street, Long Beach Boulevard and the west city boundary and Cherryvale Water Users Association with 27 members who pay a flat $2 a month and are in the area north of Curry Street between John and Cherry Avenues.

FAIRACRES and the mutual users have one distinct advantage on city Water Department users—the rate. City water users pay a 60-cent-a-month minimum fee even if they don't use any water and average a $4-a-month metered bill. There are no meters on the mutual or Fairacres water users' homes. They can run water all month at the flat fees of $1.50 and $2.

These concerns operate under what Jordan calls "grandfather rights." They were in existence before the territories came into the city.

Boating in Safety Stressed

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Today marks the kickoff of National Safe Boating Week. Just why we must emphasize this week any more than another is a matter of conjecture, because boat safety for cities along the Southern California coast should be the mainmast for all boaters every week—and every day.

There is no time for relaxing in our drive for boating safety. Yet, the practice of boating safety in itself is not hard work. Once a person swings into habits, those chores become routine and soon we find it fun, particularly in view of the fact that the lives we are saving may be those of ourselves and our friends.

MILLIONS of Americans are finding a new world of fun on the nation's waterways. Here in California we rank second in numbers of boats registered. Only Michigan surpasses us. And if the hours spent in boating were added, no doubt California would rank ahead of all states, namely because boating here is possible almost sure is higher, but as Mrs. Sybella Coughnour, secretary of the Orchard Park Water Club, states: "The lower pressure is more than made up for by the lower cost of water." She also believes her well water is cooler and "tastes better."

While rates in the mutuals and Fairacres are low compared to municipal rates, there is the question of upkeep. Whenever something goes wrong, the association members must assess themselves for costs or take the cost from the treasury, if it is available. Such was the case in the Cherryvale Water Users Association recently. A pump went out and members assessed themselves $25 each. There was a break in a line in the street. Money in the treasury paid for that.

CITY spokesmen, while looking on the mutuals as "horse-and-buggy-days" operations, state there is no attempt to take over the areas, but some mutual members feel the city "would like to take over."

THE CITY now serves some of the residents in the areas served by the mutuals and the private concern, but there is no campaign on to attract customers, a spokesman said.

The Mutuals and the private concern cannot extend their territories. As one city spokesman said, "the only way they can go is up. If multiple-story structures are built in these areas they will increase users, otherwise they are limited."

While the Water Department said a spokesman does not push for expansion to these areas, it does look askance at the fact that the "grandfather-rights" districts all are served by Water Department hydrants for fire service.

"They pay nothing for this water service."

The usual reply is: "We pay taxes for fire protection, don't we?"

Sailor Guilty in Car Death

SAN DIEGO (UP)—A submarine sailor was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $400 Friday after pleading guilty to a charge of misdemeanor manslaughter in the traffic death of a Long Beach man. He is Michael G. Boney, 21, of the Submarine Blueback. He was charged in the Dec. 7 death of Paul F. Wandrey, 51, on U.S. Highway 80. The jail term and $225 of the fine were suspended by Municipal Court Judge Donald Smith.

Veteran Producer, Writer Dies at 80

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Barney Gerard, veteran writer and producer for the stage and motion pictures, died of cancer Saturday. He was 80. From 1908 to 1926, he wrote and produced the "Follies of the Day" on Broadway. The shows introduced such personalities as Vina Delmar, Eddie Dowling, Leon Errol, George (Gabby) Hayes, BOATERS EVERYWHERE may regard this as a most incredible picture. Yet it is an official U.S. Coast Guard photograph, taken in San Francisco Bay not too long ago. The boat, if it can be called that, was a 12-foot, flat-bottomed craft with a well in the middle for an outboard motor. There were 12 men aboard and only two were wearing life jackets. They were construction workers and made such a trip—nine miles—through some fairly nasty water twice daily. This picture is printed as a reminder that Safe Boating Week starts today.

Boating is fun if the skipper knows what he is doing and if his boat is properly equipped. Chances are that he doesn't know what he is doing unless he has taken some form of training since he bought a boat and donned a captain's hat.

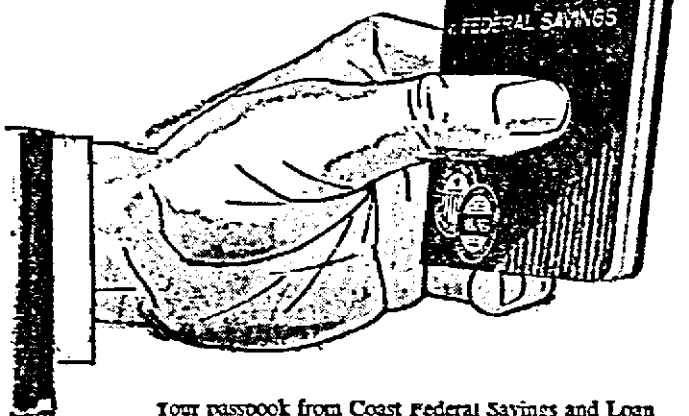

YOU CAN acquire such training out of books, but only practice gives real ability and confidence. Any boater who wants to be a successful and safe skipper, Elizabeth Thursday when the Cunard Line in 1922.

no matter what size the boat may be, needs a course in small-boat handling. U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary and papers in ample time for U.S. Power Squadron courses prospective boaters to register are available each fall and ter and prepare for a most winter here and at surround-interesting session.

New Commodore for Cunard Line

LONDON (Sunday) (UP)—liner sailed from Southampton today. The Cunard Line announced ton for New York. He succeeded Capt. Donald Capt. John William Caunce M. MacClean, who retired as commodore of the Cunard Saturday. Caunce had been Fleet. Caunce took command captain of the Queen Mary as commodore of the Cunard flagship Queen since 1969. He joined the successful and safe skipper, Elizabeth Thursday when the Cunard Line in 1922.

Building, Car Industries Economic Bright Spots

By JACK LIFLER
NEW YORK (AP)—Despite an uncertain stock market and talk of recession possibilities, some bright lights gleamed on the economic scene in this last week of the first half of 1962.
Two of the shiniest spots were the construction and automobile industries.
Even so, the economy was not moving at as fast a pace as when it began the year.
President Kennedy, commenting on the question of an income tax cut this year to spur business, said at his news conference:
"We will continue to watch the economy. There are good signs in the economy and signs which are not so good."
CONSTRUCTION activity bounded to a record high in June, the Commerce Department reported. Total spending for new construction put in place reached an annual rate of almost $63 billion, up $2.2 billion over the May rate.
The annual rate for private projects was $45.1 billion against $41.5 billion in May. Public construction's rate totaled $17.9 billion, compared with $17.3 billion a month earlier.
For the first six months, new construction totaled $27.7 billion, a gain of six per cent over the $26.1 billion outlay in the 1961 period.
As an indication of the future, contract awards in May totaled $4,008,718,000, a gain of 14 per cent over a year earlier. Automobile sales in the middle 10 days of June were the best for the period in seven years. Dealers delivered 205,841 American-built new passenger cars, a rate 17 per cent above a year ago. However, this was 4 per cent below the mid-May pace.

CAR PRODUCTION for the year passed the 3.5 million mark this week. Output for the week recovered to an estimated 127,000 cars after settlement of a strike against a Ford Motor Co. stamping plant which put assembly lines out of action. Production last week was down to 107,575.
New statistics from the Commerce Department—covering the month of May—showed small climbs for employment, personal income and industrial output.
On the other hand, new orders received by durable goods factories were unchanged from April, and retail sales were off a little from record-breaking April.
Machine tool orders, a widely followed economic barometer, posted a substantial gain in May. Bookings from domestic customers reached the highest point since July 1959.

STEEL PRODUCTION last week dipped to its lowest level in more than 16 months with output of 1,563,000 tons off 1.5 per cent from the previous week.
Most steel executives expect demand to continue its decline in July. As a result, some steel plants will extend the time of vacation close downs.
Sensitive since the Kennedy administration forced it to roll back a price increase, the steel industry winced under two new developments. The Justice Department subpoenaed the expense account records and private telephone numbers of executives of major companies. This was a part of a New York grand jury investigation of alleged price fixing. And Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., said industry leaders will be summoned before the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee for questioning about prices, profits, costs and productivity.

THE UNITED Steel Workers of America signed a new labor contract with major aluminum producers which was similar to that reached with the steel industry last spring. It provides for improved fringe benefits but no wage increase.
Elsewhere on the labor front, Eastern Air Lines remained grounded by a strike of flight engineers in a dispute over the number of men required in the cockpit of a jet airliner. Pan American World Airways obtained a court injunction which prevented the engineers from striking for 10 days.
A breakdown of negotiations between railroads and scene: Republic Aviation Corp. union representing 200,000 train workers in the "feather-bedding" dispute raised the possibility of the first national rail strike in more than 20 years.

Cost-of-living prices in May remained unchanged from April after three consecutive monthly increases, but the Labor Department predicted a rise for June.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Edict on Prayers Appears to Be an All-Exclusive Ban

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE
WASHINGTON (UPI) — American parents learned last week that it is against the law for their kids to recite official state prayers in public schools. This is so, the U.S. Supreme Court said, because no governmental body can legally establish or sanction an "official religion." To do otherwise, it said, abridges the First Amendment of the Constitution which governs traditional separation of church and state, even though the prayers are non-compulsory and non-sectarian. The historic 6 to 1 edict appeared broad enough, if enforced, to ban all religious observances in the schools, even Easter pageants and the singing of Christmas carols.

IN THE EXPLOSIVE debate that followed, President Kennedy offered parents what he called an easy remedy: "We can pray at home and attend our churches with more fidelity and thus make true religion and prayer much more real to our children."

He declined to say in a nationally televised press conference whether he thought the court was wrong. Instead, he cautioned that if America is to maintain its constitutional system, the people must support the court, "even if they disagree with it."

Many congressmen and churchmen fulminated. Many legislators introduced constitutional amendments to overturn the ruling, but there was no hope for final action in this crowded session.

The test case arose in New York state where Jews, non-believers, Unitarians and the Ethical Culture Society challenged a state board of regents prayer. The court's guiding opinion was written by Justice Hugo L. Black. He said that while the prayer was non-compulsory, there was nevertheless "an indirect coercive pressure when the power, prestige and financial support of government is behind a particular religious belief."

NEW TROUBLE FOR Kennedy loomed in the Orient. He warned Red China it would court war if it attacked Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist Chinese bastion on Formosa. He took his position—a reaffirmation of that taken by President Eisenhower seven years ago — after the mainland Communists began massing combat divisions and guns opposite the Nationalist-held offshore island of Quemoy and Matsu.

The President said the purpose of the buildup was not clear—whether it was offensive or defensive—but that the U.S. position "must be clearly understood." He declared that any attempt to use Quemoy and Matsu as a bridgehead to Formosa or the Pescadores would bring "necessary action."

He also warned Chiang that the U.S. wants no military action in the Formosa area. Chiang has been threatening to invade the famine-ridden mainland but has pledged he will not act without U.S. consent. This he won't get, unless attacked.

Kennedy scored a smashing victory in Congress when the House passed his tariff-cutting foreign trade bill over powerful Republican opposition.

THE MEASURE GIVES the President broad powers to negotiate tariff reductions not only with the new European Common Market, but with other free countries, thus promoting a stronger free world economic front against Russia. Nikita Khrushchev, meantime, bitterly attacked the common market as a form of "economic war on other countries."

The President and Mrs. Kennedy flew to Mexico for a three-day goodwill visit that featured political talks on Latin America and lavish ceremonial functions. Mexican President Adolfo Lopez Mateos' government has openly condoned Fidel Castro's Communist take-over in Cuba. On his arrival, Kennedy called for "peaceful revolution" in the Western hemisphere, with emphasis on social and economic change instead of tyrannies and bloodshed. Anti-Kennedy rallies cooked up by Mexican leftists fizzled out.

In other news spheres, Kennedy berated House Republicans and some Democrats who killed his farm bill. He said the action would cost the taxpayers a billion dollars and he urged the voters to give him a bigger working margin in the next Congress.

HE SIGNED INTO LAW a bill extending present excise taxes but ending, effective Nov. 15, the present 10 per cent tax on railroad and bus fares and reducing the 10 per cent airline tax to 5 per cent.

The Atomic Energy Commission exploded the largest underground nuclear shot in U.S. atomic weapons history at its Nevada proving ground. It was the 39th in a series. Atmospheric tests continued in the Central Pacific.

The house of delegates of the American Medical Association met in Chicago and gave overwhelming support to the AMA's unyielding battle against Kennedy's medical-care-for-the-aged bill. But the members did not refuse to participate in the program if it becomes law.

Convicted Soviet spy Dr. Robert A. Soblen, 62, jumped $100,000 bond in New York and fled to Israel where he was arrested. Soblen was due to surrender to begin serving a life sentence. Israel was asked to hand him over.

The United States Steel Workers of America (AFL-CIO) signed new contracts with major aluminum companies which omitted wage increases in exchange for some fringe benefits. Secretary of Labor Arthur H. Goldberg praised the union for "a constructive, non-inflationary settlement."

State Lets Contract for Guard Armory

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state has awarded a $449,501 contract for construction of a National Guard armory in Ventura.

The contract, awarded to Barringer and Botke of Santa Paula, calls for construction of the armory, an equipment shed and off-street parking facilities.

Well Deserved Honor for Angel Comeback Kids, Acclaims Rig

from Rigney, Wagner began keeping both feet on the ground when he swung the bat. After 72 games, he led the league in home runs and RBI and his average has been in the .290s all year.

That Wagner and Moran should even be around to qualify for an All-Star game vote is a tribute to Rigney and general manager Fred Haney.

When the Angels were assembling for the first time in Palm Springs a year and one-half ago, Moran and Wagner were fighting for jobs with Toronto of the International League. Rigney told Haney he thought the Angels could use Moran.

"I was ready to quit baseball," said Moran. "My wife and I figured we had seen the last of the major leagues."

"This is a goal I've been after for a long time," admitted Wagner.

League team. A 338 hitter, Davis polled 150 votes, Stan Musial of the Cardinals 95.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Felipe Alou smashed two home runs and Willie McCovey and Orlando Cepeda clouted one apiece Saturday as San Francisco protected its National League lead with an 8-3 victory over Philadelphia, the Giants' seventh win in eight games.

Wills' Dandy Saves Sandy

the second inning. Wills backhanded Thomas' hard hopper in the hole, turned and rifled a throw to first that nipped Thomas by a half step.

The only other semi-scare for Koufax came with two out in the sixth. Ashburn sliced a line-drive to shallow left, but Tommy Davis was in perfect position to make the squeeze.

THE CROWD may have sensed that there was history in the making as early as the first inning. Koufax, never faster, struck out the side on nine pitches.

He added two strikeouts after Wills' great play in the second inning and fanned seven of the first nine Mets to face him.

Ashburn drew the first walk to start the fourth inning and was quickly erased on a double play. Frank Thomas walked and was stranded in the fifth and Mantilla walked, only to be wiped out by a double play in the seventh.

KOUFAX was aware of his feat from the beginning and thought seriously of his chances from the third inning on. "I had such good stuff about it," said the jubilant Koufax.

Koufax said he lost his control in the latter stages "as the pressure mounted and I threw more curves than normally. Actually, it wasn't my control that worried me. It was the pressure."

A "friendly feud" with Mets third-base coach Solly Hemus didn't bother Koufax a bit. The clowning Hemus reminded Koufax of his no-hitter from the third inning until the ninth. "You still got it, Sandy," was the gist of Hemus' needle.

KOUFAX felt the greatest pressure as he pitched to Elio Chacon in the eighth inning. With the count 3-2, catcher John Roseboro called for a curve, but Sandy shook him off and wanted to throw a fast ball.

"Until that time, I was more concerned about winning the game than pitching a no-hitter. But with a 5-0 lead, I realized that I certainly wanted this no-hitter."

"I followed John's sign and threw the curve. It missed, but I got out of the inning OK."

Between the eighth and ninth innings, Roseboro and Koufax freely discussed the no-hit prospects. "Let's get this thing," Roseboro told Koufax. "I'll be calling for a few more curves."

AS photographers kept pleading for "just one more," Koufax insisted that Wills get into the picture. "Come on, Maury, get into the picture," said Sandy. "You're the guy who saved it for me."

Wills told him, "Don't worry about it. I owe you about 10 more like it."

Willie Davis, as usual, was among the clubhouse comedians. "Now stay out of Hollywood," he shouted at Sandy. "We can Koufax got the message."

The Dodgers scored four times and drove loser Bob Miller (0-6) to the showers in the first inning. A two-run triple by W. Davis highlighted the 9-man inning.

Roger Drysdale (13-4) and Don Drysdale (13-4) hook up in the final game of the series this afternoon. It's Long Beach-Lakewood Day at Dodger Stadium, sponsored by the Independent Press-Telegram.

IN ADDITION to 11-year-old Rand Rasmussen, batboy for a day, some 5,000 fans from the local area are expected to attend.

Wynn Throttles Tribe--No. 296

CHICAGO (AP)—Veteran Sox to a 7-0 five-hit triumph over Cleveland Saturday. Notching the 296th success of an illustrious career, the 42-year-old right-hander fanned eight men to run his lifetime strikeouts total to 2,261, giving him eighth place on the all-time list—four more than Eddie Plank.

Wynn received all the support he needed from another oldtimer, 35-year-old Charley Maxwell. Maxwell, obtained from Detroit earlier this week, slammed a three-run homer off Mudcat Grant in the first inning and for the second successive game provided the key blow in helping the Sox whip the Indians.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Tom Cheney of the Washington Senators, who has developed from a part-time reliever into a starter, allowed only five hits and struck out 10 in blanking the Minnesota Twins, 1-0, Saturday night.

Cheney, in bringing his record to 2-2, had to outpitch Minnesota's Jim Kaat, who matched him in a scoreless duel for six innings.

The Senators scored the game's only run in the seventh when Jim King walked, went to third on two infield outs and tallied on Ken Hamlin's third single.

Minnesota's pitcher, Jim Kaat, was 1-0 in his first start since being traded from the Detroit Tigers to the Twins.

Cheney's record is 2-2, with a 1.00 ERA. He has pitched 10 innings in his last three starts, allowing only five hits and striking out 10.

Dodger Batboy Contest a Sparkler

By GEORGE LEDERER

DEAR BOSS: I would like to be Dodger batboy contest editor next year because, well, I seem to have trouble picking winners and I think this would be a wonderful opportunity. I have never been a contest editor, but I promise to work at it faithfully, honest I do. I hope I win because I like to read the budding literary giants of our community, such as:

THE EXECUTIVE TYPE
"An inside view of Chavez Ravine and an opportunity to meet Buzze, Walter O. or Fresno or hear some Stengelse would add up to a day I wouldn't forget if I were 'batboy for a day.'"

BREAKFAST OF A CHAMPION
"I brought the paper in to look at the standings. I read there's my chance to be Dodger batboy. My mom was fixing breakfast. I told her I was going to be Dodger batboy and did she look puzzled. She read the article and said OK, write, and I did."

THE SOCIALITE

OPPORTUNITIES WANTED
"Petraing to your ad in The Independent, Press-Telegram on being Dodger 'batboy for a day.' I thought that this would be an excellent opportunity to start my training and further my knowledge of the game due to the fact that I have seriously thought of playing big league ball."

POST SCRIPTS
"P. S. I didn't count the two-letter words."
"P. S. My name is Robert, age 10½. I live at . . . I know I am only 10½, but I've been a Dodger fan for a long time." (Hopeful contest editor's note: That can age anyone in one paragraph.)

NEGATIVE APPROACH
"I am pretty sure I don't have too much of a chance to win because I'm sure there are plenty of boys that would jump at the chance, like I'm doing to be even just in of batboy for the Dodgers, P. S. Please excuse my sloppy writing; I'm in a hurry."

HONEST
I want to be batboy because I like to carry bats and balls around."

THE OLD SCHOOL
"Why I want to be batboy: First, to see and be near Wally Moon. Second, to start at the bottom and work up on a team I expect to be on four long years from now. Baseball I love. It replaces classy cars, fancy clothes and my best girl."

THE FAMILY MAN
"If I am the winner, when you notify me, tell me if the other members of the family can go."

THE POET
"Alston, Koufax, Drysdale, Reiser, The Sherrys, Perranoski, Wills and Becker, Podres, Moon, Howard, Moeller, The Davises, Fairly, Gilliam and Spencer, These, plus the Dodgers first in the race, Are why I want the batboy's place."

INELIGIBLE
"I would like to become acquainted with the players. . . I lack one qualification: I'm not a boy."

BATMAN
". . . I want to pick up a bat and say that I picked it up. Some day with hard work I hope to be one."

You see, boss, that's why I'd like to be Dodger batboy contest editor. And, with your permission, I'd like to get a head start by mailing each of the above authors a souvenir for their help.

Man to Man

By JERRY WYNN

Willie Hartzman began riding horses at a tender age only their breed read "by merry-go-round out of amusement park." But even then, he was proficient at grabbing the brass rings.

Today, one of California's foremost jockeys and winner of five major stakes races at Hollywood Park this meeting, Willie Hartzman still is grabbing the rings ... solid gold ones.

The 5-foot-1½ inch, 105-pound horsekeeper was a Long Beach resident until a few years ago, and his family still lives here.

How do you account for your tremendous success at Hollywood Park this year, Willie?

"I've been lucky getting good horses, and everything's been going my way. It's hard to pin down. Every year you ride, you get more confidence in yourself. That's important."

Hollywood Park's two biggest races, the Derby and Gold Cup, are nearing. Which mounts will you have?

"In the Derby, I'll ride Doc Jockey, but I don't know about the Gold Cup yet. It may be Cadiz, I won the Californian with him. Doc Jockey is a real good horse. He'll be right there. I kind of grew up with him since he began racing. I've rode him every time he's won."

Which was the best horse you have ridden?

"Round Table, I guess. He was the all-time money winning champion."

What made him a champion?

"What does Shoemaker have that other jockeys don't have? It's the same thing. They're champions."

What do you consider your finest victory?

"The Preakness with Royal Orbit was the biggest race I ever won. It was in 1959."

The winner received $139,000 and there was a gross of $178,000."

Who would you rate as the top three jockeys?

"Shoemaker, Longden and Neves."

What per cent do you feel the jockey influences the winning of a race?

"Ten per cent. But it all depends on the horses. If a horse is difficult to ride, it could be greater. Some horses are problems. I'm riding one now, Grover."

Are you conscious of danger in a race?

"No, we don't look at it that way. It's the same for us as it is for you riding your car on the freeway. You just ride."

It is said that jockeys are all millionaires. Is this true?

"No. The top ones like Shoemaker made a couple hundred thousand a year. But they work pretty hard. Of 1,000 riders working today, 80 per cent don't make over $6,000 a year, and another 10 per cent made $20,000 to $25,000. The other 10 per cent make money. It's the same with golfers and ballplayers."

Do you play other sports?

"I was on the gym team in high school. But now, I get all the exercise I need riding."

Would you want your son (Hartzman also has three daughters) to become a jockey?

"Not necessarily. Being a jockey's a rough life. It's not as easy as people see it. I want my son to have a college education, and then he can do what he likes. Don't get me wrong. I'm not knocking being a jockey. It's been good to me."

Hartzman objects to being called Willie and insists on Bill. Does it make any difference to you?

"No, it doesn't bother me a bit what they call me as long as they don't call me late for dinner."

Do you have any hot tips for the 22 better?

"Keep betting. We need the money."

MOSCOW (UPI)—Russian athletes, tuning up for their meet with United States track stars July 21-22 at Palo Alto, Calif., dominated the opening program of a two-day international meet Saturday in Lenin Stadium.

High jumper Valery Brumel and broad jumper Igor Ter-Ovanesyan, who have competed in the U.S., won their specialties with good efforts.

Brumel high jumped 7 feet, ½ inch to defeat countryman Viktor Bolshov, and Ter-Ovanesyan won the broad jump with a leap of 23 feet, 11 inches.

Brumel holds the world record of 7-4½, Ter-Ovanesyan 27-3.

Tamara Press of the Soviet Union, who won the women's shotput in the 1960 Olympics, finished first with a toss of 57 feet, 6½ inches.

The meet has attracted over 500 athletes from 20 countries.

Vladimir Trusenev of Russia, world discus record holder at 202-2½, threw only 184-4½. Edwin Ozolin won the 100-meters in 10.4, a mark his coaches called "sensational." Record is 10.0.

Though he netted 1,017 points, the time was two-tenths slower than he clocked while chasing Johnson to the world decathlon mark of 8,681 points.

In the discus, normally his poorest event, Yang could throw only 133-4½. This was about five feet below par for him.

Paul Herman of Westmont College was second with 5,557 points and led the struggle for two places on the American team that will face Russia June 21-22.

Bunched closely behind him were Steve Pauly of Oregon State, 5,365; Phil Mulkey of

CROMWELL IN COURT FINALS; HARTER LOSES

BURLINGAME, Calif. (UPI)—Top-seeded Jerry Cromwell of Long Beach advanced to the finals of the National Junior Hard-court tennis championships Saturday by outlasting Reed Witt of Larkspur, 6-4, 5-7, 6-1.

Cromwell will meet Gary Rose of Orinda today in the boys 18 singles finals.

Bouncy Jane Albert of Pebble Beach whipped Kathy Blake of LaJolla, 7-5, 6-1, in the 16-and-under finals and won a three-set comeback over Kathy Harter of Seal Beach to gain the girls 15 singles finals.

THERE WERE only two reversals of form from the AAU championships.

In the high jump, Gene Johnson triumphed with a leap of 7 feet, ½ inch while AAU champion John Thomas not only failed to challenge Johnson, but yielded second place to Poland's Edward Czernik on fewer misses to capture the runnerup spot.

The other American sea-saw came in the shotput as Dallas Long, who holds a pending world record bid of 63-10½, took the event with a toss of 63-9½ and AAU champion Gary Gubner wound up second with 63-5.

One of the top marks came in the 1,500-meter dash, won by Jim Beatty of Los Angeles in 3:41.9 (equal to 3:58.9 mile). Beatty led for a half-mile, fell back and took over again in the final 100 yards. Team-mate Cary Weisinger was second in 3:42.5.

ROBERT HAYES of Florida A&M won the 100 meters by four feet over Roger Sayers of Omaha in a good 10.3, while Jerry Tarr of Oregon edged Hayes Jones of Detroit at the wire in the high hurdles, both in 13.6.

Ulis Williams of Compton, Calif., won the 400-meters with a tremendous burst in the final 20 yards, nipping teammate Ray Saddler. Both were clocked in 46.7.

Tales of Baseball's Merry-Makers

Bo Belinsky's recent 5 a.m. escapade has resulted in old-time baseball men recalling the gay times of the game's notorious playboys down through the years.

Strangely enough, the majority of the better-known fun-lovers were pitchers. Rube Waddell was rated the king of the early merry-makers. Then there were Bugs Raymond, Amos Rusie, Flint Rhem and Grover Cleveland Alexander. Rabbit Maraville and Hack Wilson were a couple of the "leaders" who weren't pitchers.

There are humorous stories galore about their escapades. Rhem, of course, was the one who went off on a two or three-day bat and when he finally showed up, he had an elaborate story concocted of how he had been kidnapped and held prisoner while being forced to drink whiskey.

Then there was the time Joe McCarthy, when he was managing the Cubs, attempted to get Hack Wilson to give up drinking.

To impress Wilson on the deadly effect of alcohol, Joe once placed a worm in a glass and then poured in some gin. The worm died immediately. "If that stuff does that to a worm, can you imagine what it does to you?" Joe lectured. . . but to no avail. Hack wasn't "sold" and kept right on drinking.

After one all-night session, Hack showed up at the park the next day rather woozy. Boom Boom Beck was pitching that day in a park with an old tin fence in the outfield. In fact, that's how Boom Boom got his nickname. The hits would make a big boom when they hit the fence.

BOOM BOOM WAS GETTING belted pretty good that day and Hack didn't help things by messing up a routine fly ball. After the play, Hack strolled back to his regular station and then proceeded to close his eyes for a couple of needed winks before the next man came to bat.

However, when the ball was returned to the pitcher, the angry Boom Boom cut loose with a hard throw that sailed over Wilson's head and hit the fence with a tremendous crash. The startled Wilson opened his eyes, frantically looked for the ball and after retrieving it fired a strike to home plate as Boom Boom threw up his glove and retired to a cooling shower.

One of the classic episodes in baseball history involved my old friend Jack Rothrock and the immortal Grover Cleveland Alexander when both were members of the St. Louis Cardinals' famed "Gas House Gang."

Shortly after Rothrock, the first Long Beach-developed player to reach the major leagues, began his rookie season, the Cardinals opened a crucial series. Alexander was scheduled to pitch the second game and to make sure he would stay sober the night before the game, manager Frankie Frisch hit upon an idea.

HE CALLED IN ROTHROCK and told him he was spending the night with Alexander in his room and that he was to make sure Alex stayed sober.

After supper, Frisch got Jack and Alex together and marched them up to Alexander's room. Frankie and Jack then inspected the room for any liquor that might have been hidden away. They even searched Alex. But they didn't find any and Frisch left—locking them in the room.

It was still too early to go to bed, so Jack asked Alex if he wanted to play cards. The answer was no, so Jack began playing solitaire.

"Alex was very restless," Jack recalls. "He would sit a few minutes in a chair, reading a paper or a book, then get up and prowling all over the room. After an hour or so, I noticed he was getting uneasy and his speech was getting awfully thick."

"Alex, you're drunk. Where are you getting the stuff? He just laughed at me. I began looking for it. I went over every inch of the room. I even inspected the toilet, thinking he might have a bottle down there attached to a string."

"FINALLY, I GAVE UP AND went back and sat down and watched every move he made. You can imagine how I felt seeing him getting drunker and drunker . . . and laughing at me all the time," Jack goes on.

"Suddenly it dawned on me that everytime he got up and walked around, he always wound up stopping at the window, leaning against the side and looked out."

"I jumped up and ran over to the drapes and sure enough, taped on the backside of them was a fifth of bourbon with one of those glass tubes they use for drinking in hospitals. Every time Alex leaned over to look out the window, he'd take a big swig out of the bottle."

"I poured what little was left out of the bottle, but it was too late. By then he was uproariously drunk."

"I had visions of Frisch sending me back to the minors the next day for failing to keep him sober, but that grand old guy himself saved me. Despite an awful hangover on a brutally hot day, he went out and pitched a two-hit shutout!"

HAROLD E. MAAS
Retires July 6

DAVID F. BURDETTE
Plans to Fish

2 Veteran Firemen to Retire

Retirement of two veteran firemen with a total of 63 years, 2 months and 23 days of service on the Long Beach Fire Department was announced Saturday by Fire Chief Leonard V. Foster.

Chief Foster said Battalion Chief Harold E. Maas and Captain David F. Burdette would both retire July 6.

Capt. Burdette has been a member of the department 32 years, 11 months and 20 days and Chief Maas for 32 years, 3 months and 8 days.

CHIEF MAAS has been in charge of the northern section of Long Beach since his promotion to battalion chief May 7, 1951. He will be succeeded by Captain Kenneth Hoffman who will be promoted to battalion chief.

Chief Maas is presently vacationing at Lake Tahoe where he owns property.

Capt. Burdette plans to fish and to continue to raise epiphyllums, cactus orchids.

CAPT. BURDETTE, whose last 12 years on the department has been in the Fire Prevention Bureau, had a word of caution for the public.

"Remember the injury and death potentials of flammable liquids. Treat them with caution."

South Korea Calls for Short Skirts

SEOUL, South Korea (UP)—Short skirts will be the fashion for Korean women starting today. They were recommended, not by a fashionable design house, but as a result of the austerity campaign being waged by the national reconstruction movement.

The government says women should start adopting short western style skirts as part of their wardrobe because they would mean an economy of cloth.

FIRE HAZARD

Angeles Forest Areas Closed for Dry Season

PASADENA (UP)—Fire hazard areas in Angeles National Forest will be closed to the public today until the fall rainy season.

Supervisor Sam Jarvi said that the closures would be made in high value watershed slopes for public safety and fire prevention.

"All major highways, roads and major recreation areas in the forest will remain open throughout the year," Jarvi added.

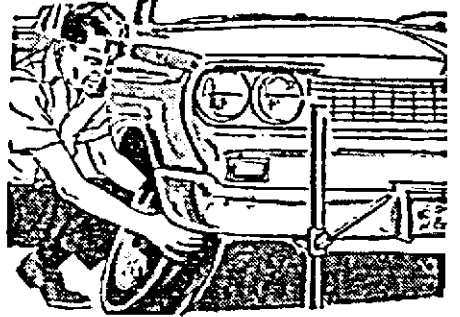

Maps of the closed areas are available at all U.S. Forest Ranger Stations in the forest.

Beckman Instruments, Inc., of Fullerton, has received a $300,000 contract from Pratt & Whitney Aircraft, a division of United Aircraft Corporation, for an analog computer system which will help solve design problems on rocket engines.

The system, which will consist of two all-transistorized analog computers and related electronic components, will be designed and built by Beckman's Berkeley Division at Richmond, Calif.

For some World War II veterans that deadline is going to come on July 25, 1962. For others it may be July 25, 1957, which is the outside limit.

"IF VETERANS do not know just how this cutoff date applies, VA's Southern California Regional Office, Contact Service will be glad to discuss the problem," Webster said.

For the greater Los Angeles area, veterans can go to 1380 S. Sepulveda Blvd., to the

City Planner First to Buy in Westmont

The first new home buyer in the City of Fountain Valley's very first subdivision, the 1,100 home Westmont community near Huntington Beach was an honored one. The buyer was the city's planning director, Stanley Mansfield.

Mansfield was formerly employed by the city of Baldwin Park and came to Fountain Valley in the new community's expansion that was launched with the Westmont groundbreaking only two weeks ago.

The Mansfields have three daughters and have selected one of the most popular of the Westmont homes with the big convertible "Bonus Room." as their reasons to buy in the new Westmont community.

MANSFIELD, like many others, was on the waiting list when the Westmont homes officially were offered to the public just last week. The homes with the big convertible bonus room had previously set new sales records in the growing Huntington Beach area.

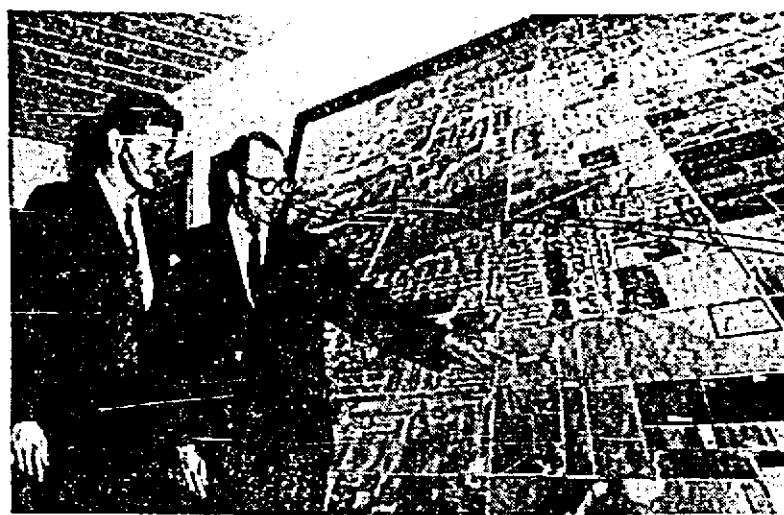

Built-in kitchens, family rooms, wood shake roofs, paneling, wallpaper, tile, and the oversize lots are all listed by developer, George M. Holstein and Sons as outstanding features. The Westmont prices start at $18,200 with low GI, FHA, and conventional terms.

To reach Westmont from the Long Beach area, drive East on Seventh St. to Hwy. 39. Turn right about three miles to the models on the left of the highway.

LeBarr to Lecture on Salesmanship

Psychologist G. H. LeBarr will lecture on "Scientific Salesmanship" at 7:30 p.m. July 17 in the Hotel Lafayette Supper Room.

LeBarr, a member of the San Francisco Real Estate Board, will demonstrate with living subjects ways to "size up your prospects." He also will show a colored film on the history of California, especially intended to be informative to realtors and brokers. There will be no admission charge.

FIRST HOME BUYER

Planning director Stanley Mansfield selects site for his new home with sales chief, Ray Haffdahl, on the opening of the new big Westmont "Bonus Room" development in the new city of Fountain Valley. Located adjacent to both park, new school and shopping site, the Westmont homes are the first to be built in the Huntington Beach area city and Mansfield is new city's first home buyer.

Boat Door Has Great Appeal to Golden West Estate Buyers

BOAT DOOR POPULAR

A lift-up boat door in the rear of the garages at some models of Golden West Estates in Huntington Beach has great appeal. It makes it easy to store the boat between ocean trips.

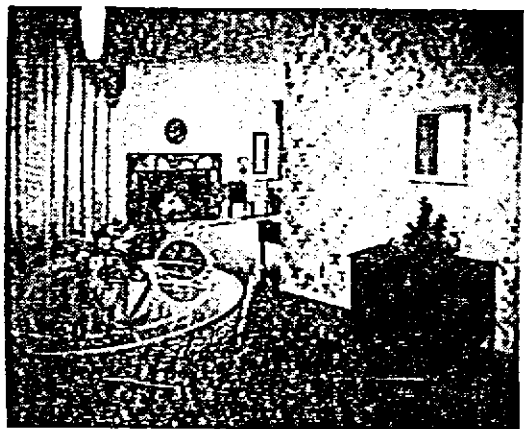

Winning high popularity at Golden West Estates in Huntington Beach are models with an extra "lift-up" boat door in the rear wall of the garage, said Jim McCarthy, vice-president of McCarthy Co., co-builders with Sant Construction. The extra door permits homeowners to move a boat or trailer into the back yard for storage or maintenance work. Simply by lifting the boat door, the homeowner can convert the garage to a cabana for the pool area.

The special boat door is a feature of Golden West's fast-selling three-bedroom patio plan, which includes a front entranceway patio plus a separate side patio. Both patios are accessible from the rooms, two baths, large family-dining-living room, and an oversized room complex. The family two-car garage. Features in-room in this plan is entirely complete fast bar, lustrous natural ash

Golden West offers 35-year, 5 1/2% terms with down payments from $875, VA terms with no down payments, and conventional terms with down payments from $695. Buyers may use Golden West's lay-away plan to build up to their down payment. Trade-ins are accepted.

Home Buyers in Pacific Sands Are Provided Cabana Club

Home owners turned out en masse to attend the first community meeting held recently in the clubhouse of the newly completed Pacific Sands Cabana Club.

The Cabana Club and recreational area is being built for Pacific Sands home owners as part of the private residential community, located one minute from the ocean in Huntington Beach. Membership is free, with no initiation fee, to new home buyers, according to the builders.

Enthusiasm ran high among the over 300 persons attending the combination "meeting your neighbor" and business meeting, reported Pat Yeiser, community coordinator for Pacific Sands. Opening of the recreational facilities is scheduled for the week of July 4. Also, we will have a day camp at Irvine Park. In both cases, buses will pick the children up at the Clubhouse and return them again at the end of the day."

NOTING THE INTEREST in the nearly completed meet-size swimming pool and wading pool, Lent then introduced the club swimming director and life guard, Norman Holiday. The director announced that there would be swimming lessons every morning for the children and a time for adult instruction was being set up.

Other activities outlined by the director included tennis tournaments, use of the club with Pot Luck supper, teen all year "round," said Lent, birthday parties, bridge clubs, dances and community "activities and hobbies to suit lessons and parties. Senior parties. "We plan to have every taste and every age something exciting going on group."

Over 300 persons attended the first community meeting of the new Pacific Sands Cabana Club and were welcomed by Pat Yeiser (seated), community coordinator for Pacific Sands in Huntington Beach.

Welcome Aboard!

Or ARE You?

By IOLA MASTERSON
L. P. T. Women's Editor

Did you know that there are roughly 140,000 registered pleasure boats floating around our 11th Coast Guard District these days? And, as a resident of one of the "boatingest" cities in the entire district your chances of being a guest aboard one this summer are excellent.

But . . . do you know how to be a ship shape ship mate? To get some authentic ideas on guesting protocol while at sea, members of the Long Beach Yacht Club were polled for opinions. Here are a few of their common sense answers to keep landlubbers from feeling all at sea at sea.

WEAR CLOTHING suitable to life aboard a little ship. Remember that boarding most small vessels requires a certain amount of gymnastics. Slacks, capris or shorts for women are recommended. For both men and women, be SURE to wear some form of soft soled flat shoes. Highly varnished decks do not take kindly to the abuse of hard soles or high heels. The other reason is to give you maximum balance and sure footing for your own safety.

A net to keep feminine hairdos from blowing is handy. And remember, it may be hot ashore but once away from land those breezes can be chilly, so take a sweater or jacket.

If you're bidden for a weekend cruise, don't bring everything you can think of just because "it might come in handy." Storage space, even on bigger vessels, is limited. Take just enough to see you through. Ask the captain or first

Independent Press-Telegram Women

LONG BEACH, CALIF. SUNDAY, JULY 1, 1962 SECTION W

FOND FAREWELL . . . which isn't as fond as it looks . . . is given departing guests by Hope and Bob Cunningham. Obviously their "friends" have just said a merry thank you for the cruise, waved goodbye and left Cunningham to hose down their cruiser, remove all the litter after voyage. Boating guests, volunteer your services for the clean-up!

OIL, OH LADY . . . have care how you step into that skiff. Enacting wrong way is Flo Anderson, given what aid such procedures allow him by Dean O'Hare. Flo, long-time boater (her late husband, Dr. Manley Anderson, was commodore of LBYC), would step directly into the center, preferably backwards, weight aimed straight down. Weight directed sideways will give dinghy push away from you. This frequently results in unexpected ocean swim, called dinghy dunking.

The Commodore's Corner

Safety Afloat Is Skipper's Obligation to Guests

Commodore William R. Hardcastle

Just as guests aboard a pleasure boat owe certain courtesies of behavior to their hosts . . . so does the skipper owe courtesies to his guests.

According to Commodore William R. Hardcastle of the Long Beach Yacht Club, the most important of these, by far, is the "courtesy" of safety.

Commodore Hardcastle points out that the law requires certain safety equipment . . . but good seahorse sense will tell the truly conscientious skipper that many added requirements aid immeasurably to safety.

THE COMMODORE advises that it is every skipper's responsibility to know the characteristics of his own boat, be thoroughly versed in boathandling procedures.

The careful skipper must use good judgment with respect to weather. According to the U. S. Coast Guard, the main cause of boating mishaps is inexperience;

when the wind blows the rescue crews are kept busy.

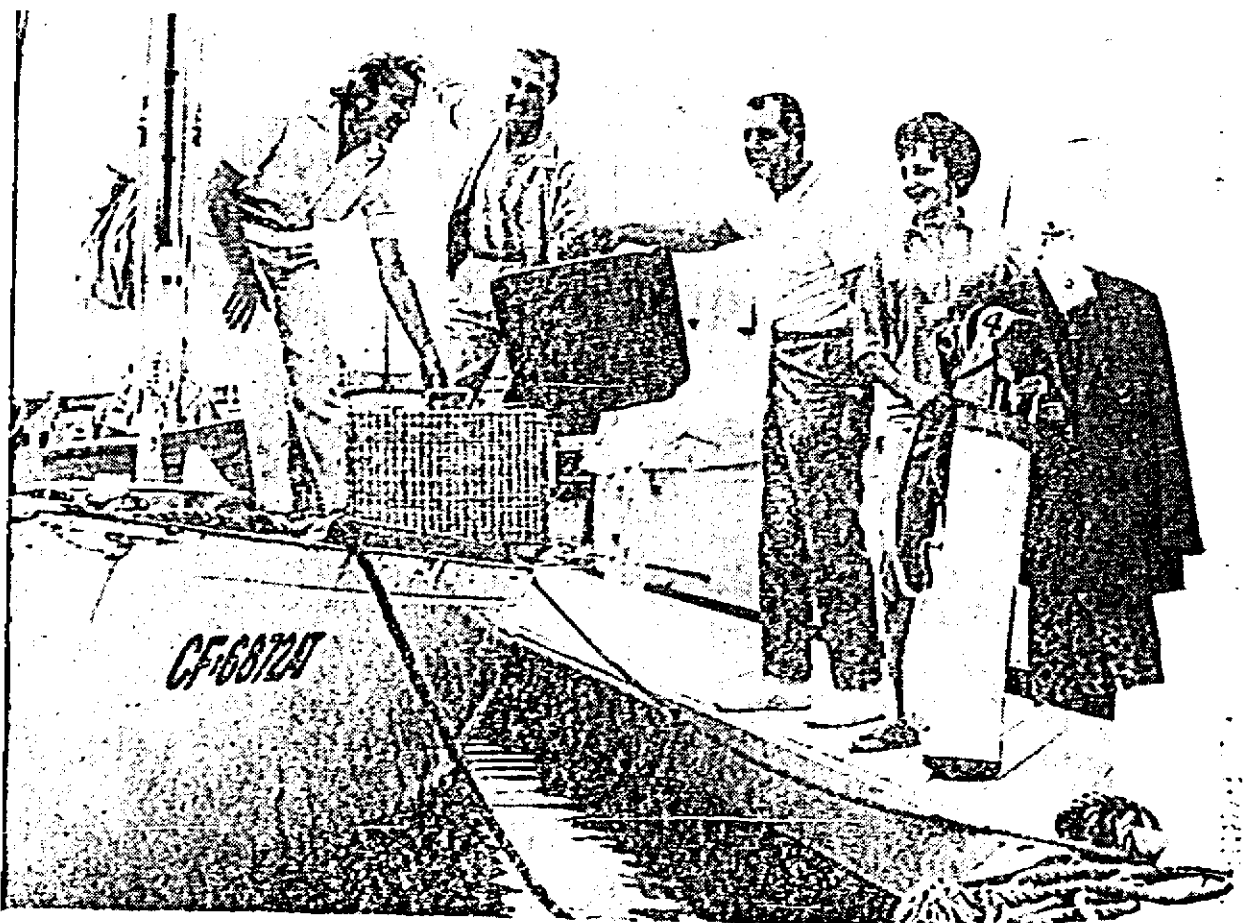

Guard against negligence. Boat owners must make it their business to learn the ropes before they take to the wheel.

PLEASANT, successful way to learn is to attend free classes, conducted spring and fall, by U. S. Power Squadrons. Or to enroll in training offered by the U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary.

Notices of these courses appear in newspapers, are posted in boating stores, marina and dock areas in advance of enrollment dates.

Hardcastle cautions, "It is far cheaper to pay tariff on licensed charter boat than risk your life and lives of your family on the invitation of someone whose qualifications as a pilot you don't know, or whose boat you aren't qualified to judge."

TODAY Safe Boating Week begins. A good time to take those words of wisdom seriously.

THEY'LL HAVE a wonderful weekend in Catalina, this foursome of Blanche and Phil Wiedrick (left), seen welcoming Ken and Zeletta Cummings aboard. They will, that is, if there's any room left at all for passengers after mass of luggage is stowed. Knowledgeable yachters (as Wiedricks, Cummings are) would limit gear for weekend trip to minimum, the less bulky the better. Avalon has course, but will they really golf?

Make 'Welcome Aboard!' Ring True

mate, your hostess, what clothing you'll need and keep what you tote down to that amount. This also goes for bulky musical instruments, camera gear and the like. Be a miser in your use of water. Don't let

'Boatese' -- Tongue of The Sea - Farer

It is easier to be a happy (and helpful) sea guest if you understand the language you'll encounter . . . a vernacular all its own.

Port . . . that's the left side of the boat.

Starboard . . . the right side of the boat.

Forward . . . this one's simple. It is a generalized term for any portion of the boat up front, from wherever you are.

Aft . . . the opposite of forward.

Stern . . . the rear of the boat.

Bow . . . the front end of the boat.

Beam . . . width of the vessel. When the skipper says she's wide in the beam he is not necessarily referring to his wife.

Line or sheet . . . around the house you'd call it a rope.

Hatch . . . it's a square or round hole in the cabin roof or deck with a removable cover on it to enable those inside to get outside.

Deck . . . that which is underfoot.

Below . . . inside and usually down a step or so.

Head . . . that room into which you retire to powder your nose.

Galley . . . where the cooking is done.

Companionway . . . stairs, steps (or whatever) connecting various levels in a boat.

Dinghy . . . any little boat used as an auxiliary to a larger boat for purposes of going ashore. Also handy for cruising around bays, visiting other anchored boats.

Hull . . . outside and bottom portions of boat which keeps the water out.

Single screw or twin screw . . . a single propeller (one engine) or double propeller (two engine) powered craft.

Mainsail, jib, spinnaker . . . various size sails used by various sized sailboats.

Stays . . . supporting wires extending from top of mast to deck.

Tiller or wheel . . . you steer craft with it.

Bright work . . . the wood that is varnished, not painted, on a ship.

Rag hangers (or laundry men) . . . power boaters nickname for sail boat people.

Stink potters . . . sail boat man's name for power boat men.

There is one more. It's the definition to cover the total craft given by Robert Elms, commander of the Long Beach unit, United States Power Squadron. As Bob puts it:

"A boat is a hole in the water surrounded by wood in which to pour money."

mainland lap usage carry over at sea. The amount available is limited to what is stored aboard. Your conscience is the only meter.

IF YOUR CHILDREN are invited along, too, have them well indoctrinated before setting sail. No running on deck; no tinkering with a "what's this" gadget . . . it may turn out to be a delicate piece of electronic equipment; no climbing in the rigging or around the decks without specific permission from the captain. Even WITH his permission, you'd be wise to keep them inside the rails for their own protection.

You adults who smoke, DON'T when the skipper is starting his engines and never, never when fuel is being taken aboard. A cigarette carelessly fluffed or left in an ashtray unattended can lead to serious trouble. A fire or explosion at sea is most fervently to be avoided.

Provided your cruise includes any meals afloat, don't be shy about offering to help provide part of the fare and certainly offer your services in the preparation and clean up.

Clean up chores extend beyond the galley, too. After a pleasant boat ride, be it for a couple of hours or a couple of weeks, offer to help your host hose down the boat, re-apply the protective canvas covers and with whatever else comprises "battering down the hatches" after your return dockside.

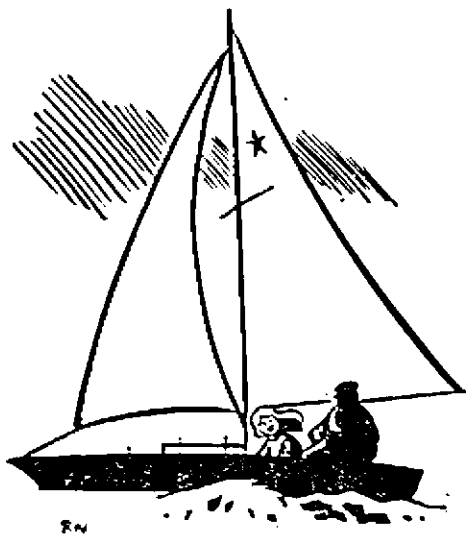

If you MUST throw anything overboard, heave it downwind . . . not into the wind . . . or you'll have the whole mess right back on the good skipper's deck. If you are disposing of cans at sea, punch holes in both ends to insure their sinking. If it's a bottle, fill it with water for the same reason. Incidentally, don't dump anything unless you're well out to sea beyond the currents which will sweep debris back onto a nearby beach.

MOST OF THE foregoing was once summed up best in an amusing, tongue-in-cheek article in Sea and Pacific Motor Boat Magazine entitled The Ten Commandments for Boating Guests, here reprinted with permission from the editor:

I. Honor thy Captain at all times.

II. Tread not upon his deck in hard shoes. Instead, garb thy feet in soft sneakers so that ye scuff not the deck paint or varnish.

III. Smoke not thy cigarettes, pipes or cigars while ye Captain warmeth his motor. Such behavior is likely to make ye Captain explode. Also ye boat itself.

IV. Smoke not thy cigarettes, pipes or cigars while ye Captain takes aboard fuel for ye engine. Such behavior is likely to make all explode, including ye gasoline station.

V. Offer thyself for duty when food is prepared in ye galley, also when dishes are washed, pots scrubbed and galley cleaned. He who sits and watches at sea will surely watch ashore, for ye Captain will not bid him welcome again.

VI. Offer not thy suggestions for navigating ye craft. Such words from a guest are like cackling of ye gull to ye Captain, who will no doubt turn wrathfully and give thee the bird.

VII. Drop not upon ye deck such things as cigarette ashes, beer cans, stale sandwiches and stale bait or fresh caught fishes.

VIII. Spit not ever to windward, for such behavior shall return to plague you.

IX. Empty not thy stomach upon the deck when sickness strikes thee. Instead, bend ye thy head well over the leeward and contribute thy bile to the sea. The Captain wishes none of it.

X. Hurry not away from ye boat after ye voyage is finished. Instead, remain to aid thy Captain in polishing ye deck, washing ye craft, and scrubbing down all manner of salt and dirtiness. For this effort thy Captain will bless thee. Without this effort thy Captain will damn thee from his craft forever.

DEAR ABBY

Dad Is Nicest Name of All

DEAR ABBY: In this day and age, what should one call his father? Dad, Pop, Papa? Does "Father" denote more respect than Papa? We'd like your opinion.—TWO SONS

DEAR SONS: I have had a clipping for many years. The author is unknown to me. I'd like to share it with you:

"If he is prominent and wealthy and you stand in awe of him, call him 'Father.' If he sits in his shirt sleeves and suspenders at ball games, call him 'Pop.' If he tills the soil and labors in overalls, call him 'Pa.' If he belongs to a literary circle and writes cultured papers, call him 'Papa,' with the accent on the last syllable. If, however, he makes a pal of you when you're good, and is too wise to let you pull the wool over his loving eyes when you're not, and if, moreover, you're sure no one else you know has quite as fine a father, you may call him 'Dad.'"

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a nut who insists that I continue bleaching my hair like I did 25 years ago. He says he fell in love with a blonde and he doesn't want to live with a gray-haired old grandmother. Abby, I am sick to death of sitting in beauty parlors. It is expensive and ridiculous. My natural hair color would be a salt and pepper, which would give the "frosted" effect which is fashionable today.

ABBY

But this bull-headed, blonde-loving husband of mine says NO. What can I do?—BLONDIE

DEAR BLONDIE: Get a good blonde wig and watch your husband flip his when he gets the bill.

DEAR ABBY: There is a young married girl in our neighborhood who is very pretty. All she has to do is look at a man and he is under her spell. Well, she has come over here several times right after supper and has asked my husband to go with her to try to hunt up her husband. They are gone two and three hours at a time and I don't like it. (They never seem to find her husband.) I don't want to appear jealous but I'd like her to leave my husband alone. How? Or am I being childish?—JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: Your instincts are probably good. Why invite trouble? Next time your neighbor recruits your husband for a man hunt—join the hunt.

DEAR ABBY: I often wonder what the relationship is between newlyweds who begin their married life with twin beds. Do these partners go through life never knowing the ecstasy of dropping off to sleep encircled in loving arms? Or the comfort and peace derived from the closeness of a loved one in the night? When my wife and I are forced to accept a motel room with only twin beds, we use only one.—MARRIED TO THE SAME WOMAN FOR 35 YEARS

How's the world treating you? For a personal unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

WILD WAVES SAY . . .

By Lola Masterson

I, P-T Women's Editor

BEARDING the lion in his den almost every day, except in this case the lion is a mule, is Betty Daniel, exuberant chairman for the annual horse show.

Determined to prove that mule and practice can get you anywhere, she has decided that this year she, too, will be among participants. So, like clockwork Betty and a sidekick by the name of Louella work out at the Harold Dakan ranch in Westminster.

When the horse show goes on Sept. 7 at Los Alamitos track, Betty will demonstrate mind over mule.

All is not as derring-do as it sounds. Louella is a star in her own right, so Betty will be going "on stage" with an old pro. The old pro, incidentally, is slated to make her next appearance at the Sheriff's Rodeo in Los Angeles. Louella, not Pat.

TIME TURNED backwards, 25 years to the dot, Wednesday night when Jean and Howard Mann were honored at a silver wedding anniversary party. It was given in the very spot where they were married, the garden of Jean's aunts and party hostesses, Forrest (Mrs. Samuel) Peters and "Roy" Wilkinson.

It was not a wedding anniversary reception as such . . . but a warm hearted and nostalgic gathering of the Manns' long time friends, a good many of whom were present when the "I do's" took so well.

UNDERSTAND Dr. Walt Fure kept a terrific diary of his and Gladys' just completed two and a half month tour of the Orient. So good, in fact, avid readers of same insisted on having a copy, so Walt had several made up. They tell me the information contained would be wonderfully useful to anyone planning to travel in the Orient; that it is plain good reading even if your farthest journey plans only extend to Laguna.

YOU CAN call Esther and Lyle Gardiner the hamiest residents in town and they won't even hit back. That's because currently they are, you see, Esther left Wednesday in her station wagon bound for Chicago, New York and Vermont (where she will be a delegate-at-large for World Roundup of Girl Scouts) and it was a just installed ham radio set. Her call letters are WAGUBU while Lyle's are K6IPJ. These two will be hamming it up, coast to coast, every day until her return.

WITH A quick pat of a rabbits foot and nary a stricken look backward, Ina Harris departed for Seattle by plane this week, sans Willie . . . a departure of another type. She took daughter, Marcia, and twin sons, Bill and Bob, entrusting the ranchito to Willie, and eldest son, Richard.

"IT'S STRICTLY legitimate when my secretary sits on my lap," brags "Doc" (Erwin) Newton. On the surface this sounds as phony as a Billy Sol Estes, "Who me?" But as it turns out, "Doc's" wife, Betty, will be his secretary in his new public relations offices in Hollywood. After Betty gets through sitting on his lap at the office each day, both will return to the old home- stead on Wardlow Road where they will continue to live. They're committed to commuting.

OFF FOR hot, muggy country—the East Coast—went a quartet of Sigma Kappa alums this week, all due in Washington, D.C., now for national convention. Verna Nelley and Bonnie Elliott, actives at State, left Monday for New York to rendezvous with Loretta Kaiser, then proceed to the capital. After convention the girls will visit in Philadelphia.

Winona Averill left Wednesday with plans to see Williamsburg before returning and Barbara Barnes jetted off Saturday. On return flight she won't quite make it all the way back. Fred will meet her in Las Vegas where they'll spin a few wheels for a few days.

IF THE TRUTH be known the consequences will be paid. Three gentlemen of our town were tricked by their wives into innocently attending a recent taping of the TV show "Truth or Consequences" and before they could say "Not on your life" they were featured performers. You can see the show for yourself Monday at 11:30 a.m. on Channel 4.

Gimmick you'll see is the three men meeting, all separately, a girl they each used to date during high school days at Wilson and hadn't seen since. Their "old flame" is Adell (Leonard) Masterson.

Without their knowledge each wife bet $50 that her husband would still remember Adell. Wives won. Which proves there's still a fling in the old boys yet.

SUMMER returnee is Van Heath who winters at Smoke Tree out of Palm Springs. Now she views sea, not sand, from her ocean front home. Husband, Ronnie, comes and goes with complete irregularity; a traveling man, for sure, since becoming executive vice president of Signal Oil last year.

From here on there'll be music and lots of it on the peninsula. When Van travels between her two abodes she's faithfully trailed by her Hammond organ (moving of its precious and unwieldy products and speakers carefully supervised by the studio). And none of that all Bach and a Beethoven wide for her. She plays pop and jazz organ. Have a hunch Van's portion of beach front will prove one of the most popular perk-to-sun and be entertained at the same time spot anywhere.

New Handbag With a Beat

By MARY ELLIS
L. P-T Fashion Editor

Teen-agers have drummed up a new bag of tricks.
It's a notable totable with a bongo beat!

Yep, the latest teen sensation is a bongo drum that doubles as a handbag—or a beach bag, depending on whether the gyrating miss is land-lubbering or sea-going.

Made by Sheri Originals of Hollywood, the bongo—a handmade import from Mexico—is fashioned of genuine goatskin pulled taut over the finest wood drumhead.

Reason: to insure the finest tone quality.

AT LEFT, Wilma Hastings model Diane Davis gives bag's inside story, demonstrating how a flip-top opening (on the underside) gives vent to space for all those teenage "purse-onals" ... suntan lotion, comb, lipstick, coke money and fraternity pins.

Help Timid Child to Develop His Talents

By RICHARD BARBOUR

Do you have a timid child? A shy, quiet, retiring young 'un? There are many like that. Usually we ignore them. We pay attention to noisy, aggressive kids instead. It is a mistake. Timid children usually try to succeed. They work hard. But they underestimate themselves. Their fears keep them from accomplishing very much.

They do what we ask them to do. They get up on time, keep their rooms clean and are very obedient. They smile when we smile at them. They're model kids in many ways. But inside they're miserable. They're sure they're not as capable as the noisy youngsters around them. They think that they're odd, or strange. They don't make many friends. They are lonely. They can eat out their hearts, with nary a murmur.

Usually their worst times come during their teens. They aren't invited to parties. When they do go they sit alone. They aren't asked to go steady. The opposite sex ignores them. They suffer and suffer through long, unhappy days.

WANT TO help your timid child? Here's how. Take a canvass of his talents. Find the things he can do exceptionally well—sports, dancing, writing, composing, playing a jazz instrument, or whatever. Then help your timid one to practice until he's a whiz. See to it he gets chances to demonstrate his ability in ways that count. Then the other kids will begin to look up to him. Gradually he'll realize that he is just as capable as they are. He'll enjoy a new popularity. His basic timidity may never leave, but it will not be so painful. He'll be happier, I promise.

'Friends' to Reopen Classes

Art Page Editor

Friends of the Long Beach Museum of Art jubilantly announce the resumption of art classes for children.

Last September, after much thought and preparation, the Friends initiated children's classes at the museum. More than 200 youngsters participated under the dynamic direction of Mrs. Dorothy Lanier.

However, in January the museum space was needed for other purposes, so the classes were discontinued. Ever since, the Friends have been searching for another suitable location.

Now, with the co-operation of Long Beach State College art department, the problem is solved.

Art classes will begin July 9 in Fine Arts Building 3, Room 111 on the LBSC campus. Lynda Penner, USC graduate, will instruct youngsters in various media — collage, mobiles, wire sculpture, painting and print making.

THERE WILL be two sessions of three weeks each, with classes meeting on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The first session will run from July 9 to 27, the second from July 30 to Aug. 17. Enrollment fee for each is $15. The schedule will be: 4 to 6 year-olds, 9 to 10 a.m.; 7 to 9 year-olds, 10:15 to 11:15 a.m.; 10 to 12 year-olds, 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Classes will be limited in number.

Pre-registrations may be mailed to Mrs. Seymour Gottlieb, 11923 Foster Road, Los Alamitos; registrations will be taken Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. in the college classroom. Mrs. Alfred Schmidt, 3031 Kallin Ave., or Mrs. Marvin Tischer, 5506 Oleta St., will supply further information.

THE FRIENDS will be active today, too, when they serve as hostesses for the 2 to 4 p.m. reception which opens July exhibitions at the Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. The public is invited to the informal affair.

One of the exhibits, 96 photographic panels illustrating architecture by Richard Neutra, has been organized by the University of California at Los Angeles.

LONG BEACH Art Association today marks the beginning of its second year in its Villa Riviera Gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd., with a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. to open a new exhibit, "Art for Sale." Original paintings will be offered at prices not to exceed $30. The show will continue through August.

THE WEST COAST premiere of an exhibition, "Elements of Modern Art," from the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum in New York City will be shown in Laguna Beach Art Gallery through July.

Oils, relief constructions, drawings and watercolors have been assembled to answer the questions of viewers confronted with the new language of contemporary painting.

In the collection are works of Georges Braque, Marc Chagall, Andre Derain, Paul Klee, Max Ernst, Lyonel Feininger, Alberto Giacometti, Morris Graves and artists of equal stature.

'THE MUSIC MAN'

Joan Strickland (right) gives some motherly advice to young Robbie Doherty as leading lady Marion Alford and little Terri Henley listen in this scene from "The Music Man." The fast-paced Meredith Willson show, first production of Long Beach Community Music Theater, will continue its run this evening and Friday, Saturday and next Sunday nights in Long Beach City College auditorium. Young Doherty's singing of "Gary, Indiana" is a highlight of the show in which Macdonald Carey stars.

'Creative Exhibiting' Marks Museum Show

By VIRGINIA LADDO

Selections from the Permanent Collection — oil paintings and sculpture — at Long Beach Museum of Art, along with a retrospective of Richard Neutra's architecture make a fine exhibit.

Opening today, they will run through July 29. The works are displayed with thoughtfulness, taste, and imagination; the show reflects trends in painting in this area over the last five years.

Three paintings in the foyer suggest, succinctly, as many approaches to subject matter. Ray Duttcher's "Birch Tree" is romantic expressionism. The glade seems to have a soul, or presence, of its own; the brush strokes are vigorous, sensual and in vibrant color. "Spring in the Park" by Frode N. Dann is classical. Nature is organized in geometric patterning; color is harmonious, quiet, serene. The extreme of intellectual approach is abstract classicism, shown in the hard-line composition of John McLaughlin's "Untitled," limited to white, yellow, and gray.

THE UPSTAIRS landing area is hung with five paintings. All different approaches to nature. Unforgettable is Dean Spille's "The Duke of Windsor, in Two Positions, Clips Roses in His Garden." Irene Koch's "Standing Against the Sky" suggests the movement of a figure in active, curving strokes. Weeds or insects seem active in Vic Smith's calligraphic "Anniversary." The oranges, greys, and blacks in Marilyn Prior's "Desert Forum" are elegant and powerful. Nancy Walz's "Still Life With Apple Plant" is a controlled color orgy.

The view of the large gallery centers on Lorser Feitelson's colorful classic abstraction and is punctuated by three sculptures: Rosenthal's "Nest of the Crab" in welded metal; Larry Shep's "Tabl," a voluminous ceramic sculpture; and Ed Rugel's "Femina," carved classically in wood.

Wilets' Play to Open in L. A.

"Lilith," by Long Beach playwright Bernard Wilets, will open a month's engagement Thursday at Cabaret Concert Theater in Los Angeles.

Idea for the play was suggested to Wilets by Eleanor Shibley, a leading light at Off-Broadway Theater. Lilith is often considered to have been Adam's first wife in the Garden of Eden.

Penny Gillette will play the title role; Jerry Gibrath is cast as Adam. Choreography is done by Ben Jonson.

L. B. to Welcome AGO Delegates

Mayor Edwin W. Wade has designated Tuesday as American Guild of Organists Day in Long Beach.

More than 21,000 organists will be represented by delegates at the guild's national biennial convention July 2 through 6. Gene Driskill of Long Beach is general chairman of the conference for which Long Beach, Los Angeles and Valley District chapters are hosts. Convention headquarters will be at the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles.

Tuesday's Long Beach events will begin after an 11 a.m. recital at Mary, Star of the Sea Church in San Pedro featuring Luigi Tagliavini from the University of Bologna and the Conservatory of Music at Bolzano.

FOLLOWING a luncheon at the Reef Restaurant, delegates will go to First Congregational Church, Third Street and Cedar Avenue, to hear a lecture and demonstration by Hector Zeoli of Buenos Aires.

At 4:30 p.m., Clarence Ledbetter, internationally-known concert organist, will play a recital to which the public is invited. Ledbetter, organist and choirmaster at the National Presbyterian Church in Washington, D.C., is the son of Mrs. Cressie Ledbetter, 9107 E. Walnut St., Bellflower.

In 1950 he was sponsored by the Long Beach AGO Chapter in the Young Artists Competition. Later, he studied in Europe, then was organist at the American Church in Rome and made seven concert tours.

FOR THE EVENING session, at 8:15 p.m., the convention will move to St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Seventh Street and Atlantic Avenue, for a joint recital to be presented by Lenore Owsley of Auckland, New Zealand, and Kazuko Sacron of Tokyo, Japan.

Miss Owsley is organist at St. Patrick's Cathedral in Auckland. Miss Sacron has completed studies at the University of Oregon, and will return to Tokyo after the convention.

The joint recital will be open to the public.

Annual Film Festival at LBSC Saturday

"The Bolshoi Ballet," award-winning film starring dancer Galina Ulanova, will be the feature offering at Long Beach State's 11th annual Film Festival Saturday.

The 99-minute color production, to be shown at 7 and 9 p.m. in the LBSC Little Theater, will climax a day in which 15 other films will be shown continuously from 1 until 6 p.m.

The productions, grouped to provide a program of about one hour's running time, will be screened in six locations adjacent to the art building complex.

AMONG prize-winning films to be seen are "Day of the Painter," (1960 San Francisco International Film Festival); "Under the Black Mask," (Bergams) Italy, International Film Festival; "Neighboring Shores," (1960 Venice Film Festival); and "Glass," (U. S. Oscar winner).

A registration fee of $1 will permit film patrons to attend all programs including the evening's full-length feature.

Also scheduled is a dinner at 6 p.m. in the campus dining hall. Reservations are $2. Registrations for the film showings will be accepted on the day of the event in the art department patio. Reservations for dinner must reach the art department office not later than Tuesday.

Major & Minor Notes ROLAND HAYES RELATES DIFFICULTIES OF CAREER

By RACHEL MORTON

L. A. TIMES STAFF WRITER

A phenomenal thing happened in Carnegie Hall on the evening of June 3. Before a packed audience, a man of 75 years came upon the stage, a colored man, and sang a program of German lieder, French songs and Negro spirituals. This man was the great singing artist, Roland Hayes. And so movingly did he sing that one reviewer wrote, "There are few performers that can send a writer reaching beyond mere superlatives to the concentrated evocation of the poet's vision."

It is reported that hundreds waited patiently back stage after the concert to greet him. The concert was a benefit to set up scholarships in six southern Negro colleges. Roland Hayes has dedicated his whole life to benefiting mankind with his glorious art and with his humanitarian efforts for the less privileged.

IN THE DAYS when I lived in Carmel I saw a lot of Roland Hayes. He was a slender, younger man then, with ready laugh and keen wit. Once when dining with us he asked permission of me to sing the grace. That was something! Once I said to him: "When you sing the spirituals especially, 'Lil Boy, How Old Are You?', the audience seems not to breathe at all. You must be very religious."

He answered, "You know how difficult it was to have a career. How do you think I could have succeeded with my color skin if I had not had a great faith in God?"

WHEN HE first sang in Berlin in 1924, antagonism was strong. An open letter in the newspaper from the people of the United States warned of the "calamity of a black man coming into Germany and defiling the great names of music and the poetry; a man, who at best, can only remind us of the cotton fields of Georgia."

As he stepped upon the stage, he was greeted by a volley of hisses which continued for 20 minutes. "I walked to the curve of the piano and stood there quietly," he relates. "Then there was silence and I sang Schubert's 'Du bist die Ruh' (Thou Art Peace). This song broke the back of the animosity and they responded warmly to the rest of the program."

Roland Hayes, as I heard him sing, was a consummate artist. His voice was fused with a spiritual quality that was soul-inspiring. His diction in any language was perfect and his light tenor voice was masterfully controlled.

Steinberg to Conduct Bowl Opener

Hollywood Bowl's 41st season which opens Tuesday will feature "Music for Everyone," including symphonies, vocal and instrumental soloists, "Pops" nights and the internationally famed Ballet Folklorico from Mexico.

William Steinberg will conduct the Los Angeles 100 musicians in the opener, and will have as soloist Grant Johannesen, gifted young American pianist who will play two works new to the Bowl repertoire.

The music director of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra will begin with the "Leonore" Overture No. 3 by Beethoven. He will offer the "Wanderer Fantasy" by Schubert; Dindley's "Symphony on a French Mountain Air" and the colorful symphonic poem, "Pines of Rome" by Respighi.

THURSDAY Henryk Szeryng will play Bartok's "Concerto No. 2," Mozart's "Haffner Symphony," and Saint Saens' "Symphony No. 3" for organ in honor of the convention of American Guild of Organists in session during the week.

Johnny Green will conduct music by Sigmund Romberg for the initial "Pops" concert of the season Saturday. Hit tunes from many of Romberg's Broadway successes will be sung by Jean Fenn, soprano; Chris Lachona, tenor; and James Tippey, baritone. The Roger Wagner Choral will be an added feature.

They Proved Young Marriage Can Work

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:
I wish to take issue with you about young marriages. I know you've said, and others say, time and time again, young marriages haven't a ghost of a chance. Well, I'm the ghost I guess. 'Cause ours worked.
I was just 16 and not dry behind the ears, but I'd lost my parents and had no home. By the time I was of age I was the father of three and now we are the grandparents of three times three. We are still deeply in love. I'm not about to peel off either. We go, my wife and I, to a senior citizen center where we dance and delight in telling how long we've been tripping on each other's toes. We can laugh with each other over most anything. And neither of us looks more than's proper, at another.
Heck, Molly. My ears aren't dry yet. —BY GUM

DEAR BY GUM:
Congratulations: You did it!
But my mind's the same. Life is too brief to bow under great responsibilities too soon. Enjoying youth fancy-free seems to me a special privilege not to be given up easily.
But looks like you've enjoyed it all. Write me again —and again. —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:
My girl friend and I are bound to be old maids. We practically are right now and I'm getting hysterical about it.
Just the other day I told her what a fuddy-duddy she was and she up and showed me cause to call me one.
Our trouble is that we live with just girls. We work with just girls. We rarely contact men and we seldom go out, except with girls.
We are modern and, I think, somewhat sophisticated young ladies. Most of us are between 22 and 23.

Oswald Jacoby East Stops Two Suits

South was one of our well known experts, but experts don't always play correctly and South failed to make his six spade contract.
His play was simple. He ruffed the second heart, played a few rounds of trumps, cashed dummy's ace and king of clubs, ruffed a club, ran the rest of his trumps and of course, the club-diamond squeeze did not come off because East discarded after dummy.
South's play would have worked had West been long in both minor suits; the correct way to play would also work in the actual situation in which East was long in both minors.

SEE IF you can figure out the winning line of play which would work as long as either defender held four or more cards in each minor suit.

Here it is. Simply run off all trumps but one and discard down to the ace-king of diamonds and four clubs in dummy. East will have to discard down to six cards. If he hangs on to four clubs you cash dummy's ace and king of diamonds and your third diamond will be good. If he hangs on to three cards in each minor suit you ruff one club and dummy's fourth club will be good.

Of course, it is up to you to figure out just what combination East has held on to, but you should be able to do that.

I am 22 and I don't want to be here at 23. You work miracles. Work one for me, please?
—THE DUD

DEAR DUD:
Your outlook needs a little male dominance. Too many women are very unbalancing—even for a man.

I suggest you change your place of abode. You, and maybe one other girl, get new quarters—perhaps in an apartment building where single men also reside. Join in with the coed activities of your city. Refuse to spend your life, Quaker fashion, on the women's side. Mingle with men. It's exhilarating.
—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:
I have a parent complaint. Mine should be told what problems they are. I talk to other fellows and they have the same troubles with theirs.

Now for instance. My folks won't let me drive the family car. Now, how do they expect me to rate the racier gals if I don't.

Mine make me dry dishes. Dad doesn't have to. Oh, no. He sits in HIS chair reading the paper while I'm out with Mother drying dishes. I hate dishes. I hate towels. I hate putting damp dishes in cupboards. It is positively embarrassing, that's what it is. I'd sure welcome it if you'd lay into parents like mine.

—CLAUDE

DEAR CLAUDE:
Personally, I proclaim your parents are to be pitied. You sound like a smart aleck that doesn't know enough to dry a dish, let alone get dry behind the ears.

I doubt if this will hurt you, for I fear you are too thick-skinned. But if there is any intelligence drifting around upstairs you'll agree that it's far better to listen to reason than to rebel.

Your parents are plenty smart to keep you and the car apart.
—M.M.

Amelia Earhart Blazed Trail Today the Sky's No Limit

EDITOR'S NOTE: One moment her voice crackled over the radio. Then silence — a silence that has grown over 25 years into one of the world's most intriguing mysteries. Amelia Earhart disappeared, but her memory lingers on. Her impact on American woman was—and still is—strong. So today the L. P-T Women's Section pays tribute to one of America's great women.

By MARY ELLIS

The trim, lean gal with the twinkle in her eye and the wind-burned face gave more of a lift to American women than Maidenform ever dreamed of. And though she did more to popularize tailored slacks for females than Marlene Dietrich, leggy aviatrix Amelia Earhart was strictly feminine—an all-woman woman.

Until her untimely disappearance 25 years ago Monday (July 2, 1937), she was a gal with a goal.

PAUL L. BRIAND JR., Air Force officer and Amelia's biographer, said simply:

She was "the girl who simply wanted to do something because she wanted to demonstrate the equality of her sex with that of the opposite in a field of constructive endeavor."

From the time she was born in Atchison, Kan., until she got close to her first airplane at old Daugherty Field here in Long Beach at Willow Street and Long Beach Boulevard, she floundered around in search of a career.

But from the day she saw Earl Daugherty put his plane through its paces, she was bent on becoming a pilot.

SHE STAYED in Southern California and learned to fly with Frank Hawkes, another Long Beach boy and former Poly High School student, who was destined to set many aviation records.

And fly she did—all over the place. Among her many achievements: she became the first woman to fly the Atlantic Ocean in June, 1928. Also, she flew the Atlantic solo—the first time by a woman—in May, 1932.

"Lady Lindy"

In August, 1932, she set the women's transcontinental non-stop speed record. And then in 1935 she flew solo from Hawaii to Oakland.

DESPITE ALL her flying time, she still remained strictly feminine, and at one time remarked to President Herbert Hoover:

"I shall be happy if my small exploit has drawn attention to the fact that women, too, are flying."

The former Boston school teacher, social worker and nurse's aide, was now all pilot—but she decided that in addition she would become a housewife.

She married George Palmer Putnam

in February, 1931, and remained happily married to him until her disappearance.

MRS. HERBERT HOOVER, wife of the then president, once described Amelia as "poised, well bred, lovely to look at, intelligent and sincere."

And Purdue University thought enough of her to put her on the faculty.

Purdue President Dr. Edward C. Elliott, in making the appointment, said:

"Miss Earhart represents, better than any other woman of this generation, the soul and courageous spirit of what may be called the new pioneering."

"At no point in our educational system has there been greater need for pioneering and constructive planning than in education for women."

AMEILA WAS a shrewd business-woman and an astute student of American women—but she was a gal who never lost her sense of humor.

She often pointed out that "fun is the indispensable part of work."

Though a staunch supporter of home and family for women, she said:

"Women need the critical stimulus of competition outside the home. Nowadays they must realize at the outset that a woman has to do the same job better than a man to get as much credit for it."

FRECKLE-FACED, wind-blown and auburn-haired, Amelia began her last great adventure in 1937 with her able navigator and fast friend, Fred J. Noonan.

"Gas is running low . . . been unable to reach you by radio . . . we are circling but cannot see you . . ."

These were the last desperate words of aviatrix Amelia Earhart on July 2, 1937.

They were heard by listeners on tiny Howland Island in the loneliest wastes of the Pacific Ocean.

DID AMERICA'S most famous woman pilot and Noonan lose their way and blunder to their deaths in the sea?

Or did Japanese militarists rescue the two Americans only to take their lives later?

Could her much-publicized, record-setting world flight have been a secret espionage mission for the U. S. Government?

None of these questions has ever been satisfactorily answered. There are staunch supporters of all phases of the mystery.

RECENTLY Fred Goerner, Navy veteran and San Francisco newsman, announced his belief that Miss Earhart and Noonan came down safely, then were taken to Saipan by the Japanese.

He has declared that testimony from 19 reputable islanders indicates a white man and white woman were flown to Saipan Island some time in 1937 or early 1938. Goerner said they answer the descriptions of Noonan and Miss Earhart, and that Japanese military police interrogated them as spies.

Goerner believes that after much questioning they were imprisoned, that the woman died of dysentery at some later date and that the man was beheaded a day or so after her death.

THE NAVY VETERAN dived into Saipan Harbor and recovered a generator from a plane, but it was Japanese.

He also recovered bones and teeth from a grave on Saipan, but they proved to be those of natives.

He still hopes eventually to solve the mystery of what happened to Amelia and Noonan.

THE WOMAN who wanted to do things for women just disappeared in her bright red plane. And that is all that is really known.

A memorial—Amelia Earhart Light—was built on Howland Island.

During World War II the Japanese shot the top off the lonely lighthouse. It has never been restored.

On the foundation of the lighthouse is a plaque inscribed simply: AMELIA EARHART.

He 'Saddles' Venison for a Gourmet Ride

Harold A. Neibling, M.D.

By Mildred K. Flanary
L. P-T Food Editor

Combine the dignity, the depth, the subtle humor and the consideration of a gentleman with the marvelous knowledge and prudence of the surgeon, and they all add up to Chef of the Week, Harold A. (Hal) Neibling, M.D.

His conversation is noted for quality rather than quantity, too.

Starting about even, between East and West, Neibling was born in Kansas City, Mo., and lived there intermittently until 1944. Completing grammar and high school there, he enrolled in Parkville Missouri College.

In this case, the old saying, "like father, like son," doesn't apply all the way. His Dad was a corporate lawyer, while Neibling chose to become an "emdee." They were alike, however, in that Neibling Sr. was president of Kansas City Bar Association, and Neibling Jr., today is president of Long Beach Chapter, American Medical Society. He had formerly served as both secretary and treasurer.

RECEIVING his medical degree at Northwestern U., he continued on to the University of Minnesota for his MA in medicine. Following his internship at Kansas City General Hospital, Neibling went to the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., as first assistant to chief of staff.

The Neiblings had spent many winters with relatives in Long Beach. He knew the city and liked it, so, in January of '49, he and his family decided to make it their home.

In 1955, however, he decided to close his offices here, and for the next two years was chief of general surgery with the 95th General Hospital in Southern Germany. In 1957 he returned to Long Beach.

A member of both the Long Beach and Los Angeles Surgical Societies, he also holds membership in the American College of Surgeons. He belongs to Sigma Xi honorary science research fraternity, and is a past president; Long Beach Dinner Club.

WERE HE to be given his druthers of going big game hunting or on a fishing trip, he'd have to flip a coin. He HAS been on safari in Africa, but whether his aim was for fun or game is not known.

Living on the boy as he does, however, and with a sizeable boat to boot, fishing comes in for its own. Members of the Southern California Tuna Club, his wife, Marjorie, son, Harold, 20, and daughter, Nancy, 15, join in the sport.

Though our "chef" CAN cook, he doesn't—that is, unless he's preparing a hind quarter of venison as he's doing today.

SADDLE OF VENISON
Pour over a well-aged saddle of venison the juice of 1 lemon, and 1/2 cup olive oil. Let the meat marinate for 3 hours. Lard the venison in even rows with strips of larding pork 2 inches long. For a small saddle, two rows of larding on each side of the top will be enough. Let the ends of the strips project into rows.

Crush 1 teaspoon juniper berries with 1 teaspoon salt and rub the mixture into the meat. Lay the venison, larded side down, in a roasting pan, add 1 onion, sliced and separated into rings, a 3-inch curl of lemon peel, and 1/2 cup vinegar, and pour 1/2 cup simmering melted butter over the meat.

Roast the venison for 15 minutes in a moderate oven (350°F), pour over it 1 cup hot sour cream, and roast it for 45 minutes more, basting frequently. Add 1 cup more hot sour cream during roasting. Turn the venison, dust it with 2 tablespoons flour, and continue to roast the meat, basting until it is brown and the larding is crisped. Allow 20 minutes per pound for medium rare.

Transfer the venison to a serving platter, pour over it 1/2 cup hot melted butter, and keep meat hot. Strain pan juices, correct seasoning, and stir in enough hot sour cream to make 1 1/2 cups sauce. Pour over the meat 1/2 cup of sauce and serve the remaining sauce separately.

Tea at Ebell

Morningstar, president, and her board, extend an invitation to all members and guests. Tea will be served at 3 p.m. Mrs. Russell M. Brougher is general chairman for the event.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

Jim Backus Seeking TV Talent Fight

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Jim Backus is looking for a fight.

He's using this column to issue the challenge.

"I would like to go on CBS (channel 2) opposite NBC's (channel 4) 'Tonight' show," said Backus.

I know we could beat it."

Jim is the TV star who had his own newspaperman series, "The Jim Backus Show," who starred as Judge Bradley Stevens opposite Joan Davis in "I Married Joan," who is the voice of "Mr. Magoo" and who, in the last year, scooted from studio to studio to work in six motion pictures.

"I know we could beat it," repeated Backus, "because Hollywood is the talent center of the world.

"I don't mean our show would concentrate on celebrities. We'd mix up the celebrities with some of the brilliant people here, some of the real conversationalists.

"There would be a good opportunity for the viewers to really discover some unheralded talent."

BACKUS WOULD BE pleased if those who share his feelings would write to Hubbell Robinson, CBS vice president in charge of programming, at 435 Madison Ave., New York City, N. Y.

In the meantime, despite his fondness for Hollywood, Backus is going to New York.

"I like New York in the summertime," he said. "Most of the people are gone."

There are several other reasons why he's trekking to the peopleless pomposity.

The first reason is money which he will receive in some abundance for hosting a summer replacement show, "Talent Scouts."

The show, starting 10 p.m. Tuesday on channel 2, will occupy "The Garry Moore Show" timeslot until that program returns in the fall.

Another reason is that it will offer him a change of pace from being "good old reliable loud mouthed baboon."

Not that he's knocking the fame his loud mouth has brought to him. He enjoys being a celebrity.

"ANYBODY who doesn't is crazy," Backus said.

Backus Seeks Talent Fight, Hosts New Show Tuesday

"I like being stopped on the sidewalk and having someone ask me for my autograph."

"I enjoy it when I get into an airplane and the captain comes back to shake hands with me."

"And there's nothing wrong, when you walk into a restaurant, with them taking you to the best table."

But funny man Backus would like to be serious for a change.

He did have one serious opportunity and the result was what he considered his favorite role.

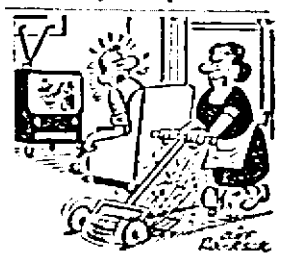

He played the meek father of Jimmy Dean in the movie "Rebel Without A Cause."

"When they cast a big guy (which Backus is) as a meek guy, it's doubly imaginative, it's three times as powerful," he said.

Backus' portrayal was imaginative, was powerful and won him critical and popular acclaim.

BUT IT DID NOT bring him any further offers for serious roles.

He later was offered the Broadway role currently played by Rudy Valle in

"OK-OK-QUIT HINTING!
I'LL MOW THE LAWN!"

"How to Succeed in Business without Really Trying."

"I turned it down," said Backus. "No challenge. It was just another bombastic, loud-mouth part and I'm sick of them."

He was lured into playing a loud-mouth for the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pilot TV film of "Father of the Bride."

"It was so bad," said Backus, "that when the lion came on, he yawned."

The series subsequently was made with Leon Ames in the father role. It aired on CBS this past season and has not been renewed.

"If I'm going to get cast in a serious role, it looks like I'm going to have to write the part myself," he said.

He already is a published author. He and his wife, Henry, have written two books, "Rocks on the Roof" and the recently released "What Are You Doing After the Orgy?"

Neither of the books, however, contains any indication as how Backus would succeed as a serious author. Both the books are funny.

AND JIM does not intend to be "unfunny" as host of the "Talent Scouts" television program.

A little less loud mouthed, perhaps, but funny.

The fact that the new show will give him many opportunities to ad lib was an inducement in his taking the job.

For Backus, the ad-lib is to the funnyman like the hair-trigger is to the gunfighter. Jim's not much for hair-triggers, but he likes to ad lib.

He hopes he'll get a chance someday to hair-trigger his ad-libs at "Tonight."

Turning Off TV Alternative for Spanking

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A research firm recently took a poll of 1,400 parents and found that almost 40 per cent punish their children under 13 by forbidding them to watch television.

This fairly new weapon in a parent's armory now is second only to the old-fashioned spanking. Apparently it has been found more effective than scoldings, banishment to rooms or withholding allowances.

As a matter of fact, television has grown rapidly into a tool of many uses quite apart from its value as an entertainment or time-killing medium for adults.

THE SET itself may be used to cover a worn spot in the carpet or conceal a crack in the wall, to hold flower arrangements or family photographs.

Programs can be used effectively to slip gracefully out of awkward situations: "I'd love to come, Lorna, to see the movies of your trip through Yellowstone, but the Mets are playing the Pirates and you know Charlie and his baseball..."

It provides entertainment for the children on rainy days" permits the adults to have some uninterrupted conversation while the kids are quiet and happy in another room, and—perhaps most important—is more efficient than a sleeping pill if the viewer is in a comfortable prone position.

So television, in spite of all the attacks on it recently, isn't all bad. A lot of us who watch it consistently can also vouch that much of it is entertaining and sometimes even stimulating.

SOUPY SALES prepares to celebrate the Fourth of July on his Wednesday program at 5:30 p.m., channel 7.

ZSA ZSA GABOR clinches a spot for herself with one of her favorite comedians when "The World of Bob Hope" is repeated 9:30 p.m. Friday, channel 4.

Teenagers Make New Discovery - - Mae West

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — A butler served the carrot juice in tall, chilled glasses from a silver tray. They were spiked with a jigger of homogenized juices — cucumber, parsley, celery and water cress.

"Honey," Mae West said as we belted the stuff in her luxurious Santa Monica beach home, "this is what does it. If I'm going to look like I do today I wouldn't mind living to be 100."

She's well on the way, you know.

The record books say Mae made her show business debut in 1911. Her age remains a guessing game and you marvel at her appearance, considering how long she has been saying, "Come up and see me sometime."

"PEOPLE just don't eat right," she explains.

But the carrots are just part of her war against age.

"For breakfast," she said, "I have sliced apples and raisins or fruit with a syrup made twisting," she laughed, "ever since I learned to walk."

And if she can swing it, by golly, she just may live to be 100.

With the time and the money ("I don't depend on stocks, dearie, I have real estate"), Mae West's full-time career really is fighting old age — and Mae West impersonators.

What started Mae doing something about carrot juice was meeting a doctor in Scottsdale, Ariz.

"Honey," she tells you, "he went to Arizona to die when he was 40. Then he found this diet, featuring carrot juice. He's 96 now, but he looks 50."

SHE TALKS about doing a movie. "But the show must be built around me. I wouldn't play just a character."

About television she says, "I could be on all the time, but I don't need it."

of powdered almonds, milk and honey. At night all I have is a salad. During the day I just drink carrot juice. Honey, on this diet you don't have to EAT."

The carrot juice was getting to us so we decided to let her tell why she decided to make a record aimed at the teenage trade. She's back in the news, you know, singing "He's Bad But He's Good for Me," and making salty comments to an 18-year-old 141 warbling, "Am I Too Young to Fall in Love?"

Sexy, of course. Sex is her favorite subject, next to carrot juice. Not what she says about sex, but the way she says it.

Well, about the record, she announced "I'm through with muscle men. I've changed to teenagers." Her fan mail, she explained, cured the odd switch. "Ever since I appeared on that Oscar telecast with Rock Hudson — ever since my old movies started playing on television — I've been receiving fan letters from teenagers."

MAE WEST lives in the past — "I've never lost my public" — yet she's in tune with the present. "I've been

Feminine TV Audience Prefers Entertainment

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The recent decision of CBS to reorganize its daytime schedule by lengthening two of its soap operas and adding an afternoon version of a popular evening panel reveals pretty definitely what the feminine audience wants: entertainment.

When television was young, programmers enthusiastically loaded the daylight hours with "service" programs. They figured women would leap at the chance to pick up cooking hints, see the latest fashions, learn how to arrange flowers, set tables or remodel last year's suit into this year's muu-muu.

The ladies, it was soon obvious from the ratings, didn't want that at all. The most expensive lesson was learned by NBC with its "Home Show," which was set up in departments, like a women's magazine, and covered the whole field of woman's interest. The program was well done, won plenty of acclaim—and such small audiences it was finally cancelled.

"I STILL DON'T know why," said Arlene Francis, its star. "But I think that perhaps women just want to be entertained—not instructed—on television."

Miss Francis, a regular on Sunday night's "What's My Line?," will guest 8 p. m. Tuesday, channel 2, on "Password."

Although there are no women's service shows on network television today, there are perhaps 75 local shows with fairly impressive audiences on stations around the country.

"But a lot of the women who started off with cooking shows and fashion talks saw the hand writing, and quietly swung into interview programs," explained a time buyer for an advertising agency. "Nobody ever found a way to make a TV fashion show interesting, and the women in the audience never seemed to like getting recipes when they had to write them down—even when they also got a demonstration of how to cook it."

"I think that these shows failed because women want to have something they can refer back to for instruction," commented a network program head. "And, of course, that means magazines and newspapers."

ARLENE FRANCIS
Guests on "Password"

MOST POPULAR television attire from Aug. 8-18 is modeled by Jeanne Brett. The playsuit, official International Beauty Congress uniform, and the girls who fill them traditionally bring KTTV (channel 11) the highest television ratings for the August coverage period.

Pan and Fan Mail

Why is Ludden not returning to College Bowl next season and who is replacing him?
L.C. Stoppard, Long Beach

Allen Ludden is serving as host of "Password" and has several other TV irons in the fire. No host replacement has as yet been chosen for this popular program.

This channel 5 at 10:30 that stars Steve Allen is a great big flop, I think.

He is trying to be as big as Jack Paar.

Why don't Steve Allen be himself? He is a very funny man if he wants to.

I am a Jack Paar fan. No name, please.

Just because you're a Jack Paar fan is really no reason to be ashamed to sign your name.

I guess I'm just a jinx.

I go to the Dodgers' games about five times a year and everytime I'm there they lose.

I faithfully watch a TV program, "The New Breed,"

think it's just great, and it's cancelled.

What can I do about it?

R. Falken, Norwalk

OUR COVER

When Barbara Britton arrived in due course of diligent study at City College, Little Theater work intrigued her. It was in a campus play that a Paramount scout saw her and . . . presto! almost before anyone could say Barbara Brantingham (that was her maiden name) they were painting a star on her Hollywood dressing room door. Barbara has never forgotten her links with Long Beach—her parents still live here—although life has taken her to New York for work in television. Currently she is a glamorous saleslady for Revlon and has been widely seen on the Ed Sullivan Show. For more about the career of this beautiful star see Page 7.

REVIEW

A segment of Gen. George Custer's ill-fated cavalry rides again at Buena Park. Officially it's called Ghost Patrol, E Troop, 7th Cavalry, Inc., but there is nothing ghostly about the lively men who make up this unusual unit. How they came to form their patrol and how they aim at authentic reproduction of the frontier riders of the Indian wars is told in next Sunday's Southland.

ARCHITECT'S

Sketchbook

These architectural accessories are easily built, add charm to any house. Detailed plans tell how to do it.

By Bill Meyerriecks

ARE YOU looking for ways to spruce up a "plain Jane" house?

One of the quickest, and least expensive, is to fit out your Cinderella with a set of shutters and window boxes.

As every architect knows, these "accessories" are immensely helpful in brightening a dull exterior. In gay colors and gingerbread trim, they can make a nondescript house look like the original "Home Sweet Home." More subdued styles and tones will add a note of stately dignity to the most simple bungalow.

The prestige model in shutter design is the traditional louvered type, usually expensive to buy because of the intricate fitting of dozens of louver strips. The Sketchbook plan shows how you can avoid this painstaking work and make louvered shutters quickly and easily — thanks to a modern material. The product is a durable hardboard with a "louvered" face which comes in panels and can be cut just like plywood. You make a frame, insert the hardboard and presto, you're finished!

Along with the louvered shutter, the plan shows you easy ways to make three other types of shutters and a half-dozen different ways to tailor the basic window box to the needs of your house.

TO OBTAIN, specify Plan C-6 and send name and address and 50 cents to Building Editor, Independent Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

Lamp from a Victorian Parlor

SATIN glass, amberina, peachblow, Tiffany, Mary Gregory, Aurene, overlay and "cut velvet" are only a few of the familiar terms that recall the craze for ornamental glass during the late Victorian era. Garnering treasures in this beautiful ware is a diversion enjoyed by many collectors, who use it just as effectively in decoration today as their forebears did. Tastefully arranged throughout the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Safley of 825 Molino Ave. is a fine assortment of 19th century art glass. Displayed near a window, some of the pieces catch the sparkle of the sunlight, refracting the rays into scintillating colors; others brighten corners with vibrant hues and fancy shapes. Cut glass, cobalt blue, frosted amberina, "clam broth," "end-of-day," satin glass and other favorite types are found here.

A prized item is a red satin-glass lamp of rare design, dating from about 1850. The Safleys obtained the lamp about 10 years ago in Westfield, New York. They report that in the hundreds of antique shops they have visited in the United States during the past decade, they have never seen one exactly like it.

THE TERM "satin glass" usually means opaque white glass, flashed (coated) with a color, and then given a satiny finish with an acid bath. (Exceptions are certain patented satin-finish glasses, such as Peachblow and Burmese). It is not certain where satin glass originated, but it was made at many American glass-works in a variety of colors from the 1830s on. Although there is no mark on the Safley lamp, it is thought to be from a Pennsylvania factory.

This piece has a diamond-quilted pattern. It is 24 inches high, with the lower globe measuring 12 inches in diameter. The upper shade, 10 inches across and 8 inches high, lends grace and symmetry with its smaller, elliptical shape. It was originally made to burn kerosene, and the Safleys have never converted it to electricity. There is a wick and a clear glass chimney. When the lamp is lighted, and the Safleys often use it, it emits a cheerful, rosy glow reminiscent of Grandma's Victorian parlor.

Lamp of red satin glass in rare design is prized item in ornamental glass collection of Long Beach couple.

Why the magic wand singled out Long Beach's Barbara Britton as a

MOVIE CINDERELLA

By Charles W. Crutcher

BEFORE the magic wand singled her out and won for her a scholarship, put her in a parade, and made her a movie star, she was known as the little blue-eyed girl with the blonde curls who lived at 11th Street and Cherry Avenue, and walked nine blocks to Lincoln kindergarten.

"She liked to walk," says Mrs. Adna Brantingham, Barbara's mother. "She walked to Franklin and Poly; she caught the bus to City College because it was too far for her to walk."

Several factors helped and influenced Barbara Brantingham to gain an edge on fame as movie star Barbara Britton.

She had kind and understanding parents and although she is the only child, she was not spoiled. In 1939 she graduated with honors from Polytechnic High School; she was awarded a scholarship to Long Beach City College by Long Beach Lions Club.

SHE ENROLLED at City College in September 1938.

"Barbara was very cooperative and had a happy disposition," says her capable instructor, Harold F. Seal, her teacher in American Institutions. "She stressed English, public speaking and drama; but her goal was drama."

In 1941 she rode the Long Beach float, "Peace and Honor," in the Pasadena Tournament of Roses.

She was Paula in "The Torchbearer" at LBCC Little Theater. "But it was the role as Tina in 'The Old Maid' that won her recognition," says proficient Kathrayn Kennedy, who was Barbara's dramatic coach at City College. "Milton Lewis, a Paramount scout, was in the audience, and he liked her performance."

"Barbara was charming as a girl, and she is equally charming as a woman. She never forgets me; she came to see me the last time she was in Long Beach."

Paramount officials thought Barbara's last name, Brantingham, too long and lacked euphony.

Barbara suggested a change to Britton, her grandmother's maiden name. Paramount liked it and she became Barbara Britton to the movie world.

While being considered for the role of the Catholic nun opposite Ray Milland in "Til We Meet Again," Barbara registered at the University of Los Angeles; she wanted to finish where she left off at LBCC.

"But Frank Borzage, who was to direct her in this picture, objected," said Mrs. Brantingham. "You have the part," said Mr. Borzage."

BARBARA WENT to lunch and when she returned, a man was putting a star and her name on her dressing room.

Barbara showed gratitude. She made a large batch of gingerbread one day from an old recipe of her mother's. She made 96 boxes out of cardboard and wrote upon each box the appropriate words, "Bundles from Britton." It was during World War II.

She gave a box to guards on duty at the studio front gate; and gave a box to everyone she met on the way to her dressing room, saving a box for each member of her cast.

Barbara was shown making gingerbread when she appeared on a TV celebrity advertising program. "I had always told her," Mrs. Brantingham says, "after she dropped the contents of eggs into the gingerbread ingredients to scrape the shell with her finger, and sure enough, she remembered!"

HER FILMS INCLUDE "The Great John L." "Bandit Queen," "Cham-pagne for Caesar," "Wake Island," "Return of Monte Cristo," "Captain Kidd," "The Virginian" and "Secret of the Wastelands."

"When she started work in 'Wastelands' with Bill Boyd, Bill didn't like Barbara's riding breeches," says Mrs. Brantingham. "And when she was riding (she had not been on a horse before), the horse shied at something (Continued on Page 16)

In the days of steam pumps, this was topnotch firefighting equipment in Borough of Queens, New York. Long Beach firemen are restoring a like unit to its original glory.

Firemen first dismantled the antiquated apparatus, made repairs and then rebuilt it. Above, Pat Lyon, Herbert Bramley and Ray Potts re-install a refurbished accessory.

Hours of off-duty labor and gallons of polish and paint have gone into restoring the unit, all provided by firemen. Above, Ray Schwartz does stint with paint brush.

Granddaddy of the Firehouse

By Helen L. Gillum

OUT OF THE SMOKY limbo of a romantic era in firefighting is coming a smoke huffing, fire-flashing contraption that will serve as both the symbol of an early day in the Long Beach history and as a basis for a museum which firemen hope to develop. It's an Amoskeag steam pumper of the kind that used to thrill Grandpa in his boyhood days when it charged gaudily out of the firehouse in a bedlam of smoke, steam, bells, shouts and pounding of horses hoofs.

Unveiling of the ancient vehicle which Long Beach firemen are rebuilding and refurbishing is set for July 4 at the firemen's Fifth Annual Circus and Fireworks Show in Veterans Memorial Stadium.

For months the fire lads have been working toward the July 4 goal. They plan to have the old engine in working order to show modern kids something of the drama of a fire in the old days.

At first, it was hoped to drive the pumper into the stadium behind horses in original style. But now there is some doubt if horses suitably conditioned to the scary equipment can be found. A trailer ride may have to suffice for the doughty veteran.

BATTERED FROM countless rounds with fires of the past, the old timer has contrasted sharply in its humble status beside the shining, modern equipment at Central Station No. 1 in the new Public Safety Building. But the owners of the rig, members of Long Beach Firemen's Memorial Association, who work during their free hours on the outmoded apparatus, plan to restore it completely to its original red and nickel trimmed glory.

Herb Bramley, engineer at Fire Station No. 1, who might be called the instigator of the plot to purchase and restore the old machine, says that it is only one item of many that the association eventually plans to acquire in its hobby of establishing an authentic museum of old firefighting equipment and mementos.

"Men from the various stations work on a section of the machine at a time, bringing it back to exchange for another when completed," states Bramley.

THE COAL AND wood burning pumper dates back to at least 1850. It was obtained from 20th Century-Fox Studios, through the efforts of Paul McGinnis and Ted Bowers of Long Beach. Earlier attempts had been made by Fire Chiefs A. C. Du Ree and Frank Sandeman to get the original Amoskeag pumper used in Long Beach years ago. After tracing the old rig through several lumber camps and other areas, they finally located it in the "backwoods" of Northern California.

The deteriorated condition of the rig and the roughness of the terrain made a move to Long Beach out of the question. The engine from Hollywood became the logical choice. It is identical to that purchased soon after the Long Beach department was organized by then Fire Chief C. E. Shrewsbury. Up to that time, all equipment was hand drawn. But with the purchase of six sturdy fire horses, and the handsome Amoskeag, the fire department became horse drawn.

"IT IS INTERESTING to note," Bramley said "that in 1907, Long Beach had the distinction of operating the first automobile fire apparatus on the Pacific Coast. The department became completely motorized in 1914."

But for several years after the purchase of the steam pumper (as true old timers will recall), it was "Prince," "King," "Major," "Barney," "Tom," and "Jerry" that, with manes and tails flying, alternated in thundering down Long Beach's dusty streets with the pumper in tow, its smokestack belching smoke and fire to rival the flames the firemen sought to extinguish.

Former Chief Du Ree recalls unique traits of the old steam pumers, such as the all-important business of getting a fire started in the fire box, a procedure that would turn gray the curly hair of any up-to-the-minute fireman of today.

Hoodoo Ship

The Joyita's log unfolds like an eerie nightmare

By Wilmon Menard

I POSSIBLY no pleasure craft afloat that has had the eerie and tragic destiny of a 60 foot motor yacht built in 1931 at Wilmington Boat Works for Roland West, a Hollywood film director, which he christened for his wife Jewel: Joyita. West, at her gay launching, couldn't know that less than a quarter of a century later she'd be known as the "mystery ship of the Pacific," a hoodoo ship that in November 1959 was towed to the beach of Nasova, near Levuka, Fiji, her group of white planter-owners abandoning her to a graveyard on the tide-beaten South Seas strand.

The Joyita had proven herself many times to be a jinx ship, and there was nothing to do with such a cursed vessel but to leave her to the pounding surf, the blazing sun and tropical tempests, until at last she broke up and the South Pacific's backwash carried away the final remains of her bulk.

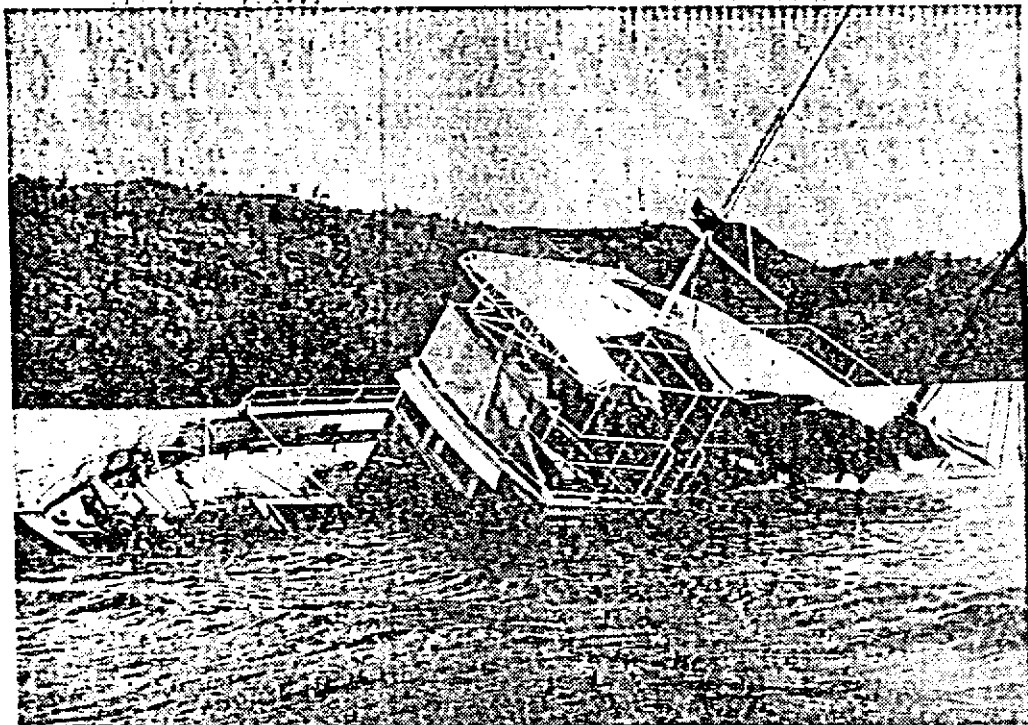

The log of the Joyita is indeed a strange one.

THE LATE Milton Bacon of Southern California bought the yacht in 1931 and sailed her until 1941, when the Navy requisitioned her for war-time patrol duty in Hawaiian waters. During one of her patrols she ran on a reef off Oahu, but was refloated and repaired. At the end of the war, the owners did not want her back, so the Navy put her up for sale as war surplus. She was finally bought in September of 1952 by Dr. Ellen Katherine Luomala, of Finnish extraction, an anthropologist, writer and lecturer at the University of Hawaii. Dr. Luomala turned the craft over for commercial fishing at Canton Island to a South Pacific skipper, a Britisher by the name of Capt. Thomas Henry Miller, 39, formerly a British commander in the Salvage Section of the Royal Navy, whom she had previously met and fallen in love with while on a field trip for the Bernice Bishop Museum of Honolulu in the Gilbert and Ellice Islands.

But the adventurous Capt. Miller, or Dusty as he was known throughout the South Pacific, was a mariner and not a fisherman, and the commercial fishing venture over the next few years proved a failure. From March to October of 1955, Dusty lived aboard the Joyita in Apia Harbor of Western Samoa, destitute and despondent. Then, miraculously, he was offered a charter for a trading voyage to the Tokelau Islands 270 miles to the north, by E. A. Coxon Trading Co. of Apia. Afraid that his luck would run out on this, too, Dusty signed on a crew, loaded passengers and cargo, and hurriedly sailed out of Apia, just after dawn on October 3, 1955.

THE 70-TON, twin screw motor-vessel never reached Fakaofo in the Tokelau. An intensive surface and air search was conducted, but the Joyita was not found until 37 days later, when Capt. Gerald Douglas of the trading vessel Tuvalu, on a voyage from Suva to the island of Funafuti in the Ellice Group, accidentally sighted her just after dawn on Nov. 10, drifting in a waterlogged condition 90 miles north of Udu Point of Fiji's Vanua Levu—strangely deserted and looted. This prompted the Fiji Times to comment: "The systematic stripping of the ship does not point very strongly to the work of islanders, but rather to a raid under expert instruction."

When the Joyita was towed to Suva, Fiji, and pumped out so that marine experts could inspect her, nothing could be found to warrant the mass abandonment of the vessel by passengers and crew. She had unusually heavy planks in her hull and all three holds were lined with five-inch slabs of cork. The chief surveyor of ships for the Government Marine Department of Wellington, New Zealand, V. G. Boivin, stated: "The Joyita would have continued to float in the condition in which she was found indefinitely." Capt. E. L. James, harbor master of Suva, declared: "The vessel could never have sunk unless she broke up. . . . I just can't understand why everyone would have abandoned her."

And Capt. Miller, a master mariner, with war-time experience in the salvaging of ships, knew her great buoyancy, so he never would have ordered the total abandonment of the Joyita during the calm voyage.

There are many wild theories as to the strange fate of those aboard the Joyita, but too few clues to form a definite solution.

A FORMER seaman who had sailed aboard the Joyita between Pago Pago and Apia, when Miller was hauling fish for Van Camp's tuna plant in American Samoa, reported: "On two occasions we were followed by a strange vessel without lights. Dusty switched off his lights, took the wheel and steered the Joyita into a rain-squall. The second time we were able to get into Apia Harbor before the mystery ship could overtake us. Dusty was very shaken up by this repeated trailing, but he never gave an explanation why he thought the craft was following us."

When the Joyita was repaired in Suva, a group of Vanua Levu planters tried to put her into trading service, but the jinx was still on her. In 1957, she grounded on the treacherous Horseshoe Reef and in 1959 she ran aground on a reef at Vatuvula, near Makogai in the Fijian Group. It was then that the owners decided to beach her at Nasova and let her rot.

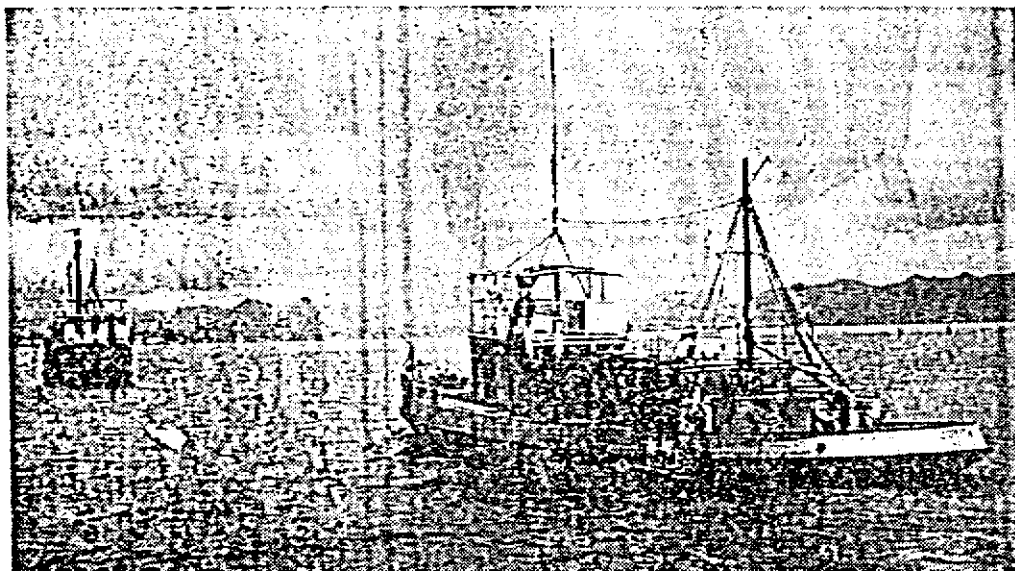

But in her strange pattern of destiny, the Joyita was rescued. In August 1961, Viscount

Maugham, in peerage nephew of writer Somerset Maugham, visited Fiji, saw the doomed vessel, researched on its strange log—and decided to write a book for an eventual movie. He bought the Joyita for a pittance, and made plans to send her to Japan for repairs, with the idea, possibly, of having her play her tragic real-life role in the film.

BUT NOW it seems that ownership of the jinxed vessel has brought bad luck to Viscount Maugham. An Italian film company of Rome, with three successful South Seas films to their credit, decided to produce a fourth, and have selected the Joyita mystery as their current project.

Honolulu investors have an equal share in the film, which will be released in America and Europe. The shooting script is completed, and an offer is expected to be extended to Ray Milland to play Capt. Miller. Cameras are scheduled to roll in late September, using Kailua-Kona Bay on Big Hawaii Island as Apia, Western Samoa, and the Samoan model village of Laie, on the windward side of Hawaii's Oahu Island, as authentic Samoan atmosphere. A vessel, identical to the Joyita, has already been located in Kewalo Basin, Honolulu. So it appears as if Viscount Maugham's plans for a film on the Joyita have been thwarted.

Along many island waterfronts of the South Pacific islands veteran skippers and traders will argue for many years the mystery of the Joyita. Perhaps the Italian-American film will offer a logical reason for the disappearance of the hoodoo-vessel's passengers and crew.

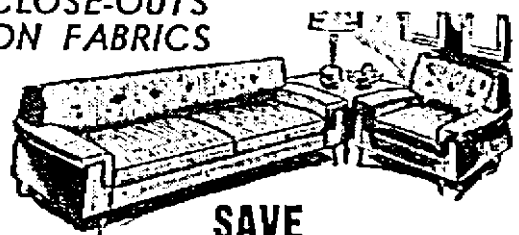

After preliminary repairs and being pumped out at Labasa, the Joyita was towed to Suva for an exhaustive examination by marine experts. The strange circumstances of her abandonment, however, were not learned.

Hot Seat on a Firecrackerbox

By Bob Ruskauft

"BOAT RACERS? We're crazy, man! Didn't you know?"

Then Leroy Penhall turned serious and added:

"I personally think everybody ought to be just a little bit crazy about doing something out of the routine. My choice just happens to be speedboat racing. It's the greatest thing I know to divert my mind completely away from business."

Penhall will certainly have his mind 100 per cent diverted for several bustling minutes July 4.

As new owner of the 1961 National High Point Champion boat, Hot Cinders, the Anaheim water speed bug will hold down the hottest seat in one of the hottest classes competing in the big, all-inboard motorboat race meet on Long Beach Marine Stadium.

THEY CALL Penhall's class Crackerboxes, which is meaningless. Firecrackerboxes would be better. They're explosive.

When 31-year-old Penhall gets his mind back to business it will be to a hard but lucrative one. He's a contractor for concrete sawing (they use diamond-tooth saws), much of it in highway construction work.

This enables Penhall to keep in relative comfort his speedboat-loving blonde wife, Bonnie, and three young Penhalls — Connie, 8, Jerry, 6, and Bruce, 5. It also helps him to campaign Hot Cinders in major race meets of the national championship circuit.

For, the lure which calls speedboat racers to the roughshod and at times dangerous wet-wash trail, definitely is not money.

Inboard motorboat racer Leroy Penhall explains boating "how's" to Barbara Fisle, queen of July 4 regatta here.

IT'S TRUE THAT West Long Beach Lions Club, sponsors of the big Wednesday regatta, have posted a fine array of awards for the 14-year-old classic.

Even so, if the biggest winner of the slam-bang meet takes home enough to cover half of his expenses, he'll be lucky.

If he isn't lucky and perhaps proves to be the biggest loser, he could well see a rig of glistening hardwood, gleaming dural and aluminum, which cost anywhere from $4 to $10 thousand (sometimes more), blasted into bits by some ultra-speed accident.

Some of that is expected, though. All the drivers appear to philosophize that "It won't happen to me." But it's the chance they take to get that high, high, HIGH 10 minutes or less of fierce competitive exultation from a two-seat race.

Worth it?

AFTER SEVEN YEARS (the first got the violent virus in 1955 and drove a boat called Slide Rule) Leroy Penhall says:

"Absolutely — even though you sometimes can't explain why."

"To continue top racing and to maintain top caliber equipment demands a lot. Plus money, there are the untold hours of planning and work just to get those couple of hot rides."

"But if the rides are good, even though you don't win, all of it somehow seems to come back. It's measured by a word called 'satisfaction'."

"If that's crazy, man, I like it."

Photos by the Author

Penhall's "Hot Cinders" (80 P) is a foremost threat in the colorful racing runabout division. The boat is shown here in foreground in hot competition in a past contest.

EXTRAS and comforts of a custom home were long in the minds of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Goldsmith as they envisioned some day building their own dwelling place. Then, about a year ago, they found a house at 11151 Donnis Rd., in the Rossmore area of Los Alamitos, that had such basic possibilities of becoming the home of their desire that they bought. Now it is tailored to their specification and is all that they once visualized.

Individual changes and/or additions the Goldsmiths have made in the home are relatively small; added together they combine to make the place extremely attractive and livable. The first noticeable change is on the exterior. The length of the house, situated on a corner lot, runs parallel to the street, with three bedrooms viewing the street. Originally, the porch extended part way, and one window was shuttered (on the outside). The porch has been extended the full length of the house, shutters frame each window (and are also used inside), and white iron grillwork forms attractive framework, pillar fashion, along the porch.

Tract houses may have the same basic floor plan, but they can be customized to the point of being unrecognizable from their counterparts if the owners have artistic skill and imagination. The view from the entry in the Goldsmith home is an example.

ALONG THE far wall of the living room, which is actually the rear wall of the open kitchen, a French mural forms an almost three dimensional background for a handsome marble shelf. The latter, a long, narrow rectangle, stands on carved wooden legs, made to resemble marble, the pattern of which is carried out on the lower half of the mural. Dramatic, at the far end of the marble shelf, stands a high, ornate silver candelabra.

Color accents in the mural are Wedgewood green. A tiny Wedgewood knickknack is placed next to a fine crystal piece to ornament the other end of the marble shelf.

Martini beige predominates the color scheme of the living room. The carpeting continues into the dining room and small family room facing the kitchen on the other side. The couch is curved, facing twin chairs upholstered in autumn tones. A subdued orange is the other color accent in the room, picked up in couch pillows from the pattern in the chairs.

Originally, the fireplace in the living room was red brick, which the Goldsmiths changed to white. They had the floor around the fireplace replaced with marble, added a brass fireplace set. The marble near the fireplace is again accented on the large, round, marble-topped coffee table in front of the couch.

THE FRENCH Provincial theme is carried through to the dining room. A Queen Ann mirror tops the buffet which has a silver tea service on the top counter.

What appears to be marble on the kitchen floor is really a hard finish vinyl. A large picture window above the sink views the swimming pool and patio area.

The family room is furnished with a white naugahyde couch, TV and occasional chair. Colors in the chair are accented with high-backed chairs that face the bar into the kitchen—beige, blue and brown.

The master bedroom is done in gold and white, with a gold quilted bedspread, white silk, gold-flecked paper in back of the bed, and white silk paper in the rest of the room. The room has an adjoining bath.

The three Goldsmith teenagers' rooms which line the front of the home are immaculate. A girl's room has a canopy bed using white silk taffeta edged with a Provincial print in blue.

BOYS' ROOMS are tailored in effect and rugs in each are hued to the tones of the rooms.

The lot lends itself well to pool and patio planning. The pool is customized, with rock used as a decorative note. Adjacent dressing rooms and bath are located in the garage structure.

A patio is covered with aluminum, curved artistically to add to the outside appearance. White wrought iron furniture carries out the motif of the front of the home.

Herbs for Flavor

Herb growing can be a most satisfying experience for the culinary minded gardener, for fresh herbs have so much more flavor than the dried products. Grow them in pots and plant boxes or in the ground outside the kitchen door. Tuck them into any sunny border and see how well they go with most ornaments.

Herb growing has become much easier in recent years, since members of the California Association of Nurserymen started stocking good selections of the most popular names on the spice shelf.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Narcotics Repeat Rate High

By Ben Zinser

Independent Press Telegram Medical Science Writer

MORE THAN 90 per cent of those persons hospitalized for narcotics addiction become readmitted, public health officials have found.

And more than 92 per cent of the readmissions occur within six months of discharge from the hospital, says Public Health Reports.

The study —of 1,912 patients discharged from the U. S. Public Health Service Hospital in Lexington, Ky.—
shows that age is the most significant factor in re-addiction rate for men. Readmission generally is lower after age 30.

The researchers' conclusion: Re-addiction rates will remain high until community aftercare facilities become available. Prolonging hospitalization beyond a month does not improve permanent recovery.

A SIMPLE squeeze test can help the doctor diagnose rupture of the tendon of Achilles—a condition that sometimes results when young and middle-aged white collar workers participate in sports.

The Achilles tendon is that which attaches to the heel, originating from the muscles in the calf.

When the ruptured tendon is suspected, the doctor has the patient lie prone on a table, feet extending over the end. Or the patient can kneel on a chair.

The doctor squeezes the muscles in the middle third of the calf—just below the widest girth.

Normal reaction: A movement of the sole of the foot.

Ruptured Achilles tendon: No flexion of the sole of the foot.

The report is in the Journal of Trauma.

A POWERFUL new drug called angiotensin II is the most effective agent now available for the treatment of shock—a state of collapse marked by a severe drop in blood pressure.

The evaluation is that of North-western University researchers.

Given intravenously to 21 patients, angiotensin II restored normal blood pressure to 15 of them. The other six were already near death.

Among the 15 helped were four persons whose outlook had been considered hopeless. They were suffering from advanced shock resulting from bacterial infections—either staph or strep.

LOSS OF consciousness sometimes occurs during migraine attacks in young girls, says a British researcher.

Dr. Edwin R. Bickerstaff says that such loss of consciousness is slow—never abrupt. The patient recovers consciousness with a throbbing ache in the back of the head.

Before headache—sometimes as much as 45 minutes before—there may be visual disturbances, dizziness, ringing in the ear, unsteadiness and abnormal sensations in the arms, legs and jaw.

These warning symptoms are usually more prolonged than those experienced in epilepsy, says Dr. Bickerstaff.
Also, the headache itself is usually more painful than that following an epileptic seizure.

Girls who suffer such impairment of consciousness are usually from families with a history of migraine.

Dr. Bickerstaff, who is affiliated with the Midland Centre for Neurosurgery in Southwick, England, gives his report in the journal Lancet.

La Reina Rule

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent Press-Telegram, 601 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy. For reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you explain EUBANK, EUBANKS and HUBANKS.—A. E., C. E., Mrs. H., Long Beach.

A. E., C. E., H.: EUBANK, EUBANKS and HUBANKS commemorate the famous English yew-trees. These beautiful evergreens were formerly prized as wood for making bows and arrows. The original form of these names was "Yew-bank" for "River-bank lined with yew-trees." George Eubank, an ancestor, lived in Lancashire, England, in 1575. The family coat-of-arms has three interlaced gold chevrons below three black balls on a gold band crossing the top of a black shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like genealogy of McCANTS and McCANCE.—M.B., Bellflower; Mrs. M., Long Beach.

M.B., Mrs. B.: McCANTS and McCANCE have both Scotch and Irish forefathers. The original Gaelic form of these names was MacCainish or MacCanish meaning "Descendants of the Only Choice," a curious old cognomen. Ancestors resided in the western Scotch coastal district of Morven, and in County Down, Ireland. The Scotch branch of this family were related to Clan MacInnes. Their coat-of-arms has three blue buckles on a diagonal silver stripe, placed below six blue stars on a horizontal silver stripe. These emblems are on a blue shield. American ancestors include William, David and George McCance of Adams County, Pennsylvania, land owners in 1771.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have data on SANTOS.—Mrs. L.S., Bellflower.

L.S.: SANTOS, Spanish in background, translates as "The Saints." This surname was initially used by a family who had a group of religious shrines on their property, which led to their estate being called the "Place of the Saints." The Santos coat-of-arms, granted in Spanish Andalusia, has three wavy blue stripes across the center of a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you history on HOGAN? —Mrs. H., V.H., Long Beach.

Mrs. H., V.H.: HOGAN is traced to an uncle of King Brian Boru, a famous Irish ruler who reigned from 1002 to 1014 A.D. The original clan name, O'Hogain, meant "Sons of the little, young man." This lineage were natives of Tipperary. Their coat-of-arms has three silver birds on a black chevron placed across the center of a silver shield.

and Barbara flew over the horse's head.
"Barbara thought Paramount was more concerned about the welfare of the breeches after the fall than they were about her."

She co-starred with Robert Stack in "Bwana Devil," the first full-length color 3D picture ever made.

BARBARA BRITTON is a cover girl, too. Her face has adorned 36 magazine covers, including "Woman's Home Companion," "Look" and "Ladies Home Journal."

She played Mrs. North and Dick Denning was her husband in the TV series, "Mr. and Mrs. North," sponsored by Revlon and televised from Hollywood. From this series she went to New York in 1957, advertised again for Revlon on "The $1,000 Dollar Question."

"She wanted to play on Broadway," Mrs. Brantingham recalls, "and it looked as though she would get this wish. She signed the contract for a play but the producer died in a Lake Erie air crash, ending plans for the play."

Barbara is married to Dr. E. J. Crukor, a psychiatrist, and they have two children, Theodore, 14, and Christopher Eugenia, 10, both of whom have been on television with their mother. They live in New York City. When they find time, they steal away to their 200-year-old farmhouse on 30 acres at Bethel, Conn., 65 miles from Manhattan, for relaxation.

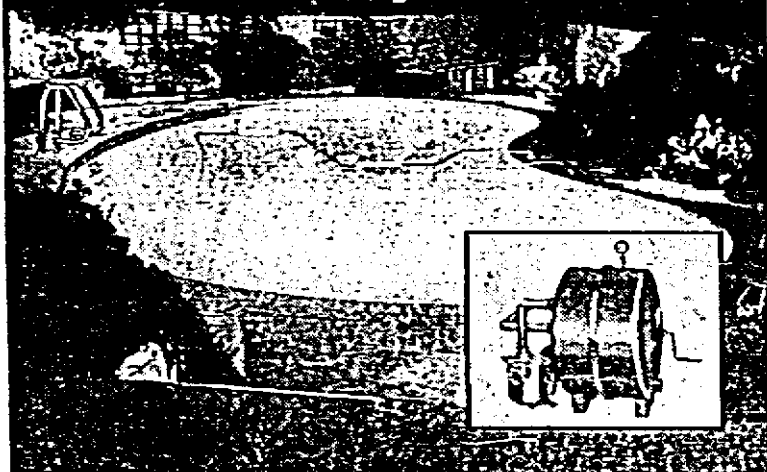

"IT IS A PARADISE for the kids," says Brantingham. "There's an 18-horse and two-carriage merry-go-round, run by a gasoline motor, and a record plays while it runs. There's lake for swimming, archery, and a bowling alley."

"Barbara likes to share pleasures at the farm," says Mrs. Brantingham. "One Sunday when she attended the little church in Bethel, which was celebrating its 100th anniversary, the bishop of her church in New York was there for the occasion. She invited everyone present for a covered dish dinner—and 170 persons showed up."

Barbara Britton has shared good fortune with her parents, who faithfully watch her in the starring role of a glamorous saleslady for Revlon on the Ed Sullivan Show at 8 p.m. (PDT) every other Sunday. In 1960 she gave her parents a new car; in 1961, a beautiful white home at 563 Winslow Ave.

Pears have the unique quality of blending well with many flavors, making them a reliable ally of the housewife in preparing meals for the family and of the hostess readying party refreshments. Cinnamon Pear Salad, pictured here, has all the delectable ingredients that make for compliments.

Salad With Pear-sonality

A GOOD SALAD is like a good joke... light, refreshing, with just a bit of bite to it.

Such a creation is Cinnamon Pear Salad. Lettuce, cottage cheese, cinnamon candies with chopped nut meats for crunchiness, combine

By Mildred K. Flanary

Independent Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

into a salad worth serving often.

All you do is take a can of pears and share their refreshing enchantment. Mint them, serve them as a meat accompaniment or combine them with your favorite dairy foods. The salads (desserts, too) you create will give any meal a "pear-sonality" that always produces compliments, as well as requests for second helpings.

Fast, too, but don't take our word—take a can of pears and see.

Recipe of the Week

COCONUT Date Cookies wins $5 for Mrs. Gene F. Perle, 4616 E. 4th St., Long Beach 14, in this week's prize recipe contest. The recipe:

Crust ingredients:

- 2 cups flour (sifted)
- $\frac{1}{2}$  cup brown sugar (packed)
- $\frac{1}{2}$  cup butter (shortening or margarine)
- 2 tsp. cinnamon

Sift flour and cinnamon, add brown sugar and butter and mix altogether. Pat on cookie pan and spread evenly over the bottom and make an edge on sides of pan. Bake at 350 for 15 mins. or until crust is very light brown (half done).

Topping ingredients:

- 2 cups brown sugar (packed)
- 4 eggs
- 1 tsp. baking powder

- 3 tsp. vanilla
- 1 8-oz. pkg. moist sweet shredded coconut
- 1 cup chopped walnuts
- 1 pkg. seeded dates (cut in small pieces).

Mix ingredients all together. Pour on top of crust to cover it and reach sides of crust. Bake at 350 for 20 minutes until it springs back when touched. Cut cookie sheet into squares when cool.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address, to: Recipe Contest Editor, Independent Press-Telegram, Southland Magazine, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12.

Cinnamon Pear Salad

- 2 cans (1 lb. each) Bartlett Pear halves
- $\frac{1}{2}$  cup cinnamon candies
- Salad greens
- 1 pound cottage cheese
- $\frac{1}{2}$  cup coarsely chopped nuts

Drain pear halves, reserving syrup. Heat syrup and candies. Pour over pear halves and let marinate 12 hours, refrigerated. Arrange crisp salad greens on plate. GRADE CARD

Summer Discipline

By Harry Karns

Education Research Association

DURING THE school year, discipline is a chore parents share with teachers; with school out for the summer, and the children home most of the time, it becomes a full time job for mother.

It is a job that goes easier when mother has a set of rules. Children not only need rules, but want them.

Mrs. Mario L. Faegre, in a bulletin of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, declares:

"Children need to have some rules to guide them. Not dozens, which restrict their activities in all directions, but a few clear ones, such as the times when they are expected to show up at home, the boundaries within which they should play, the home duties that are theirs. It is more comfortable to know what one can and can't do than to be uncertain."

Here are other items of advice the experts generally agree on.

1. Make sure the child understands why he is being punished. Explain carefully the moral and practical factors involved.

2. Be fair. Is the infraction really a "federal case," or is it so small that it deserves nothing more than a warning? Are you punishing the right child? It's not always the one who comes crying who has been hurt; indeed, it's often just the other way around. In any event, hold the trial before imposing sentence.

3. Ask yourself: "Am I punishing the child to improve his behavior—or to satisfy my own anger?" The purpose of punishment and discipline is to prevent the child from repeating his mistake, not merely to hurt or make him feel bad. Harsh punishment creates a spirit of rebellion and is of questionable value as a preventive.

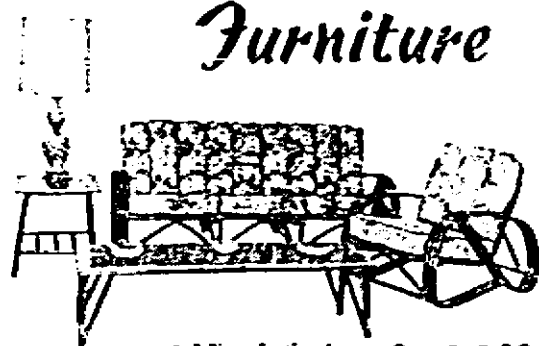

4. Don't drag out your punishment. Impose it and forget the incident. To express anger and disapproval over a long period of time is tantamount to double jeopardy. The child begins to feel that you dislike him. Make it clear that it is the action, not the child, of which you disapprove. Punish, and then forget.

5. Normally, prefer the withholding of privileges to physical punishment. To withhold a privilege is to say, in effect: "All right, you haven't performed as you should, so you don't get the things that go with good conduct. Get back on the track, and those privileges will be yours again." This usually shows the child that he can't knock society's laws over like ten-pins and still enjoy the rights to which he is accustomed. Physical punishment, however painful, does not teach that lesson.

(If you wish assistance in helping your child to do good work in school, mail questions and requests to Harry Karns, Room 403, Independent, Press-Telegram, Sixth and Pine, Long Beach 12. Letters cannot be answered individually, but some will be answered in this "Grade Card" column.)

A NEW ACHIEVEMENT IN SANITARY PROTECTION!

Confidets
the only sanitary napkin
with true anatomical shape
and accident-proof inner shield...for the greatest comfort and protection
you've ever known!

5 reasons why new Confidets make other leading sanitary napkins out-of-date, ill-fitting and inadequate...

1. Only true anatomical shape. Confidets® are the only sanitary napkin fully tapered and shaped to fit body contours. Wide in front for more protection—narrow in back for greater comfort—don't bunch or bulge. Confidets can be worn with any standard belt . . . fasten easily, fit securely.

2. Only one with proportioned depth for more protection. No other napkin has extra thickness in middle where greatest absorbency is needed. Protects like a super pad with less bulkiness than a junior size.

3. Only accident-proof inner shield that's full size and securely held in position. Moisture simply cannot penetrate this feather-light shield, so under part of this new napkin stays dry, soft.

4. Only multi-layer filler with this unique arrangement. It holds 8 times its weight in moisture as proved by laboratory tests. The pure, fine quality materials absorb at maximum speed. You're blissfully secure with Confidets!

5. Exclusive ultra soft-strength cover. Only Confidets has a cover so comfortably soft against the skin yet has so much flexible strength in use. Try Confidets—developed and patented by Scott Paper Company. ☐☐

Q. Please describe the animal called the Yale, which is used in heraldry. L. A.

A. The Yale (also called Eale) was a mythical animal, black in color. It is said to have been as big as a horse and to have had the tail of an elephant, the jaws of a bear, and outlandishly long horns which could be moved about "as the needs of battle dictate." Pliny is reported to have been the first to describe the Yale, in his "Natural History," but no one is quite sure what beast he had in mind.

Q. Do flies carry disease germs inside their bodies? R. N.

A. Bacteria capable of transmitting disease are carried in the gastro-intestinal tract of flies as well as on their legs and bodies. These bacteria may be deposited wherever the flies alight.

The Man Who Went Berserk

By Vera Williams
Independent Press-Telegram Book Editor

STRANGE THINGS happen in a Southern town. Suddenly, Tucker Caliban, a Negro, faithful descendant of faithful servitors, seemingly goes berserk. He burns his house, ruins the land on which he has worked so hard, shoots his livestock. Then Tucker, his wife, and child leave the town for an unknown destination. And as if by accord, all the other Negroes leave too.

William Melvin Kelley, a young Negro, has thus written an imaginative first novel in "A DIFFERENT DRUMMER" (Doubleday, $3.95). It is a haunting and well-told story.

James Baldwin is also a Negro writer, and "ANOTHER COUNTRY" (Dial, $5.95) is no first novel. Baldwin has long since won his spurs as not merely one of the best American Negro writers, but as one of the very best American writers.

"Another Country" is set in a quite different scene than Kelley's novel — Greenwich Village and Harlem. It tells of a year in the lives of a broke and hungry Negro jazz musician; his 21-year-old sister; of the crisis in the lives of a suddenly famous white writer and his wife; of an actor son of a wealthy white Southern family, and a self-styled "white trash" girl who has fled the South and her husband. It is one of Baldwin's best.

LEONARD SPIGELGASS

If you'd like to know how to tour Europe for $500 a day, read Leonard Spigelgass' new book "THE SCUTTLE UNDER THE BONNET" (Doubleday, $3.95). The first step, the author says, is to buy a completely outrageous foreign car; the rest will follow inevitably.

CRISES, PERILS — and what the President proposes to do about them — are succinctly presented in "TO TURN THE TIDE," a selection of President John F.

Kennedy's speeches and writing from his nomination through the end of his first legislative year (Harper & Brothers, $3.95).

Edited by John W. Gardner, president of the Carnegie Foundation, it has a foreword by Carl Sandburg and an introduction by the President.

In his editor's note, Mr. Gardner writes: "This is not a history of the first legislative year. Nor is it a comprehensive collection of the President's official communications during that year. It is a selection of the most important things the President had to say about the issues we face as a nation. In 1961 the gravest of these issues were international, and the selection of materials for inclusion in the book reflects the reality."

"President Kennedy has an extraordinary capacity to express himself in speech and writing. Rarely has an American President stated the nation's problems with such clarity, or voiced its aspirations so movingly. The reader of these pages runs no danger of getting entangled in thickets of bureaucratic prose. He will find here a lucid, instructive and eloquent introduction to the problems facing a great nation in a troubled century."

DO MODERN Americans feel guilty when they have fun?

Walter Kerr, drama critic of the New York Herald Tribune, thinks so and states his case with discernment, epigrams and humor in "THE DECLINE OF PLEASURE" (Simon and Schuster, $5).

He traces the phenomenon, if that is what it is, back to a 19th Century economic philosopher, Jeremy Bentham, who asserted that the real worth of anything was determined by its utility.

The 20th Century aftermath, as interpreted by Kerr, is that we drive ourselves into "recreation" because it has useful therapeutic values. Youth, he believes, permits boredom to supplant enjoyment.

THE WAR around which Mihail Sadoveanu's "TALES OF WAR" (Twayne, $2.95) revolve was the equivalent of our "Days of '76," and indeed they are Rumania's "Days of '77," for that little

Specs Before Your Eyes

By Ward G. De Witt

IN THIS modern day and age, people accept and wear glasses and seldom question how we happen to have this visual help. How long have we had the benefit of spectacles? How did glasses happen? How long did it take? Glass was exported by the Phoenicians 300 to 400 years B. C. The earliest known lenses are now in the museum of the White Fathers of the Desert near ancient Carthage. It is believed that lenses to aid vision and held on the face by some sort of frame were not made until the 13th Century. China and Europe are given credit for inventing spectacles. An English monk, Roger Bacon, in 1285, imparted the knowledge to Heinrich Goethals. He passed it on to Al-

lesandro Della Spina, a Dominican friar in Italy, who in turn gave it to Salvino d'Armata to whom the invention of spectacles is attributed. D'Armata kept the secret and sold spectacles at a good profit until his death in 1317. The epitaph on his tomb reads, "Here lies Salvino d'Armata degli Armati of Florence, the inventor of spectacles. May God forgive his sins."

MARIE ANTOINETTE had her lorgnette inserted into a fan. Disraeli dangled his monocle from a cord. Madame Pompadour had a gold and red jealousy lorgnette which had a prism for peeping at people behind her and du Barry was never without hers.

About this time, gypsies, not to be outdone, sold colored lenses for spectacles and finally, spectacles themselves. Their claims were most "scientific." Glasses could give power and wealth; gazing at the sun through green glasses would straighten rheumatic backs; red glasses would help or remove corns for housewives. Jealous maidens and inconstant lovers would become reconciled while gazing at the moon through amber tints. The latter two must be together, of course!

And so it went until Ben Franklin considered his time too valuable to have two pairs of glasses when one would do. He cut his reading glasses in two and likewise, his distance glasses, and combined them into one pair. These were the first bifocals. Since then, we have had glasses for every need. We have been burdened or helped by bi, tri, and quadrifocals ever since.

Battered by time and use, this veteran of firefighting is pictured before the restoration job got under way.

Granddaddy of the Firehouse

"First," says Du Ree, "excelsior was laid about 3 or 4 inches deep on the grates, then fine kindling crisscrossed over the excelsior. Immediately after the engine cleared the station in answer to an alarm, a lighter cable was pulled or a match applied to the fire material. Then coal was added, and we were in business."

"After the fire was doused and the steamer returned to the station," Du Ree continued, "the remaining fire and ashes were dumped from the grates to the ground. Steam was used to blow out the fire box, and then new fire material was laid."

In checking over their "old-new" pumper, Bramley and the other firemen were amazed to find that the machine was almost 80 per cent brass.

"This presents a challenge in replacing broken and missing parts," says Bramley. "We want to keep the old vehicle as authentic as possible. Perhaps I'd better emphasize here that the steam pumper is not city-owned, but strictly the property and hobby project of the Long Beach Firemen's Memorial Association."

Bramley credits "Old 124," a 6-cylinder Ahrens-Fox fire engine of 1926, used for many years by the Long Beach department, for being the germ idea of the firemen's dream to establish a permanent museum. Such a rig was considered among the finest of equipment in its time, and this one served long and faithfully, proving its mettle in several disasters. One test in particular occurred during the 1933 earthquake, when Station No. 1 collapsed completely into a pile of rubble. Old 124, however, simply bulldozed its way through the fallen bricks and debris to answer resultant alarms.

ANOTHER occasion was at a vicious two-day pier fire in December 1945. Although possessing only 110 horse power, Old 124 met this challenge serenely by pumping nearly 2 million gallons of water on the flames over a 30-hour period.

In 1952, after 26 years of dependable service, the faithful old rig was retired by the city, but many of the firemen were reluctant to let it go. The association bought it, and spent many off-duty hours repairing and polishing the vehicle. It thus became the inspiration and nucleus of the proposed museum, and now stands in regal splendor in the main fire hall, to be joined in the near future by the refurbished Amoskeag.

"We have been promised space in the firehouse for permanent, dust-free display cases," says Bramley. "If anyone owns or knows of firefighting equipment from bygone days, we would appreciate making the relics a part of our museum. Interesting as such items are now, they will be even more valuable to future generations in presenting an authentic history of firefighting."

De-scented skunks make good pets, but skunks in the wild state should be given the wide berth they merit.

By Eleanor Avery Price

DURING your summer excursions, numerous wild animals may visit your camp site. Some of them will, if you are patient and persistent, become quite friendly and you will have nothing to fear if you adopt a "hands-off" policy, remembering that most can, if provoked, inflict serious bites. These part-time pets should be just fun to watch and feed.

Pick a sheltered spot the inquisitive animals seem to enjoy—usually under a tree or against a log—and put out food you feel will appeal. Find an observation post and sit quietly. Probably your visitors, with no other coaxing, will soon be eating the food. Every day, then, move a little closer.

A squirrel can actually make a nuisance of itself once it associates you and your camp site with food. It will chew through a purse to get a stick of gum, riddle your clothes for the same purpose. It can easily make lace-work out of plastic containers holding food and even nibble destructively at wooden containers. Some squirrels will get right on the camp table and make meal-getting difficult. They particularly fancy peanuts.

SKUNKS and civet cats should not be teased. In fact, if they get into your food, you would benefit to wait until they leave before you put edibles under lock and key. A civet cat in particular seems to enjoy an open camp fire and will play in nearby trees where the firelight dances among the leaves. (Civets are good climbers.) Both the civet and the skunk make excellent pets when de-scented, but this must be done when they are babies. Wild civets have been known to take candy and eggs from human hands, but they can quickly upend themselves to stand on their forefeet and let their defense artillery go into action. If by chance you, or perhaps your dog, get involved with animals with scent glands, use a cup of ammonia to a bucket of water for a wash. Or use tomato juice.

A deer may seem friendly and is easily drawn to your camp site with offerings of bread, potato peelings, fruit and vegetables. Feed him at some distance from your own table, or you may have him as a dinner guest. A fawn is perfectly harmless, but a growing or adult deer lashes out with its front hooves when angered or nervous.

There are, of course, some animals you should not coax near your camp, among them foxes, coyotes, wildcats, and

DELAPLANE

"Best Paris shop for best on perfumes, please?"

ALL FRENCH shops are very competitive on perfumes and the prices are much the same. However, there are a few shopping devices.

First, ask for a discount—on any gifts you buy in France, not just perfume. All the tourist shops seem to be set up to give you about 20 per cent off.

Sometimes they urge it on you as a final sales effort. If they don't, ask for it.

I notice at nearby Deauville, the French sea resort, signs in the window say "20 per cent discount for American travelers' checks."

When there was a black market on money in France, this discounting meant something. Dollars were hard and valuable.

At present I can't see why they should discount for any kind of money. The franc is stable—you can't get more francs for travel checks.

This seems to me a sort of sales gimmick.

If Deauville can discount 20 per cent for travel checks, they've got a markup going. Paris should be able to discount for checks, francs, dollars or what have you.

"... If a group of us go through France, Germany and Switzerland by small bus, do we tip the guide? And how much?"

You can tip a dollar each. It's customary. If you have a guide and driver, still keep it at a dollar and let them split.

All guides make commissions on what you buy—from 10 per cent on watches in Switzerland to 25 per cent or better on Spanish rags.

They also get commissions on night clubs and restaurants.

Generally, you'll find prices are marked up to take care of the guide in Italy, Spain, Mexico, Hong Kong.

No markup in Britain, Scandinavia, Germany and Switzerland. Some in France. Since guides do well, the tip can be a gesture.

"... friends recommended Nice for a week of sun and swimming. Do you agree?"

THE RIVIERA is very elegant, but you might consider the Normandy coast where I am now—Villerville-sur-Mer. Villerville is a small, stage set town of narrow streets and a pleasant beach not far from Deauville.

The hotel Chez Mahu is set around a Norman courtyard under apple trees. It's restaurant is one starred by Michelin—one of two on this coast. And the price is good—$10 a day with excellent meals.

I don't go all out on recommendations, usually. But on this one, I do.

"Can we send gifts under $10 from Mexico without declaring them on the $100 duty exemption when we return to the States?"

You can send under $10 gifts from anywhere in the world and it does not come off the $100 worth of things you can bring back without paying duty.

I've had very bad luck sending things in from Mexico though. Wrong things arriving. Sometimes not coming through at all. And a strange lot of red tape getting a customs broker who costs more than you paid for the articles.

Anything I buy in Mexico, I bring home myself.

"Please recommend a not too expensive hotel in London."

The Washington on Curzon Street. About $8 a day.

Garden Magic: Mulch and Water

Nasturtiums lend bright color to the garden scene. The gardener who mulches adequately and waters wisely during warm summer days is one whose flowers will prosper.

By Joe Littlefield

WARM weather is at hand and will continue through September, and, to the gardener, this means watering becomes the most important garden job. When, how often, and how deep to water, depends upon soil texture, types of plants in the garden, weather conditions in certain areas, and whether the garden has been adequately mulched. Morning watering is preferable; late afternoon or evening watering may encourage fungus diseases.

Frequency of watering depends upon the type of soil. Adobe-clay soils are tightly packed, need much longer time and more water to penetrate to a given depth than a coarse, porous sandy soil.

DEPTH OF watering depends upon kinds of plants. Shallow-rooted plants may not need more than an 8- to 10-inch watering, whereas larger shrubs should be soaked to two feet or more deep, trees about four feet.

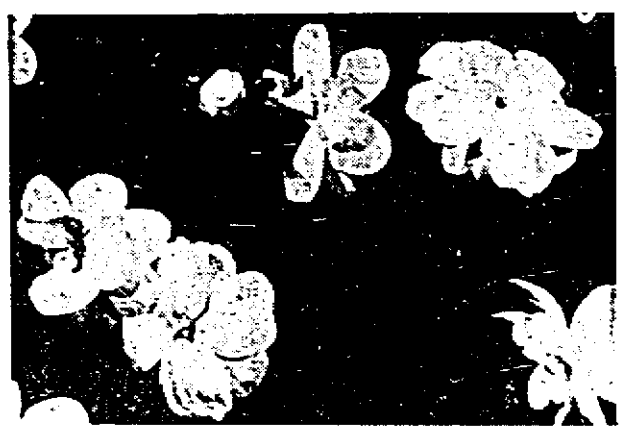

The gardener who mulches shrubs, lawns, ground covers, trees, saves money in watering costs.

Dichondra lawns planted now, whether seeds or from flats, treated with one of the fine mulches and kept moist will grow rapidly. Periodic light applications of liquid or granular fertilizer encourages new lawns to grow together.

Cutworms attack well-established dichondra lawns, as do other smaller chewing worms, too.

LAWN MOTH WORMS prefer a young grass lawn that isn't more than a year and a half old. There are two ways to combat damaging worms.

If a lawn needs feeding, use a fertilizer with insecticide added. If an infested lawn doesn't need feeding, spray with an insecticide your nurseryman or garden dealer recommends. Repeat as recommended for continuing control.

Abundant yellow blossoms of Primrose jasmine are semi-double and blooming period is January-May.

By Murtha Hurley

ONE of the most versatile plants for Southland gardens is Primrose jasmine, Jasminum mesnyi primulinum. One of the hardest of jasmines, it will endure heat and any amount of cold.

Growing some 15 feet high, with a spread of almost five feet, when planted in groups, it will produce a tall dense hedge that can serve as a flowering screen to hide undesirable spots. The plant can also be trained to climb over a wall, a trellis or an arbor. When lower branches are cut off it will form a graceful, umbrella-like small tree. It also makes a fine cover for a sunny bank.

The small leaves are a rich, bright green, the flowers bright buttercup yellow. When in bloom, the pendulous branches are studded from tip to base with non-fragrant cheery yellow blossoms that look like semi-double violas.

PRIMROSE jasmine is a fast grower, develops well in most any soil, can be set out at any time from a container. The plant likes full sun and when established thrives with a minimum of water.

Dorothy Digs

Now that your garden has survived the labor of heavy springtime blooming, it needs a little relaxation and refreshment. You can give it renewed strength and vigor for the long, hot season ahead by the way in which you nourish the soil. Your second application of commercial fertilizer is not enough. The soil needs trace minerals. Use a good material that provides the many minerals that are either lacking or unavailable to your plants because of the soil's alkalinity.

Iron alone will "green up" the garden. A foliage spraying with water and epsom salts (1½ ounces to a gallon of water) will help a lot. But these are temporary measures.

GARDEN TIPS for the week . . . Remove dying blooms from roses before they form seed pods. Remember that picking the blooms encourages continued bloom. For a more attractive shaped plant, cut just above an outside bud if the plant has an upright growth pattern.

Resist the temptation to remove foliage from spring-blooming bulbs until it has definitely died back.

Deciduous shade trees grown in containers may be planted anytime. Your C. A. N. nurseryman can advise you which variety will serve your needs best. Use a manure mulch on hibiscus and water the plants frequently. They love the rich soil and moisture which is native to them in the tropics. Amateur seedmen can try growing perennials such as columbine and delphinium from seed sown this month or next. The plants will bloom next year.

IF YOU would introduce your children to the wonders of plant life, get them started with the simplest of all lessons—growing radishes. They not only witness the miracle of germination and growth, but they actually taste their success.

Help them level a bed and sow two or three rows of seed. Then if they seem eager for more, start them on other vegetables and on an easily grown annual such as zinnia or calendula. Chances are you'll get as big a kick out of it all as they do.

If you're troubled by bud drop on tuberous begonias, chances are you could be over watering them or underwatering them—take your pick. Every other day should be often enough to water potted begonias except in the hottest summer weather.

Our Brand, Suh

Cartoon by Bob April

CAN YOU judge a restaurant by its printed menu? Certainly. And that's why people who pick up a menu at the Apple Valley Steak House, 733 E. Broadway, know at once that they're in a first-class establishment.

The Apple Valley's menu is quite large, measuring 21 3/4 by 14 1/2 inches when open. Printed on heavy gleaming cardboard in brown and green ink, it carries out the restaurant's western motif with illustrations of brands from such famed ranches as the Seven D, Rocking R, Walking Y and, of course, the Apple Valley (in San Bernardino County). On the menu's rear cover is a handsome photograph of Long Beach and a detailed biography of the city, telling its growth from 1852 on.

No one can scan the inside sections of the AV's menu without feeling their taste buds kick up a fuss. First are listed such fish courses as fresh frog legs, filet of sole, gulf shrimps, swordfish steak, scallops, fried oysters, lobster thermidor and crab Newburg. Next are listed roast prime ribs of beef au jus, tenderloin tips, saute; calf's liver and bacon, minute steak, calves sweetbreads, pan-fried chicken and boned squab.

UNDER THE heading of "Charcoal Broiler" (bossed by Master Chef Stan T'Anson) are listed such items as luscious New York cut steaks, filet mignons, loin pork chops, lamb chops and splendid eastern choice top sirloins. Priced from $1.95 to $4.95, the entrees include soup du jour, marvelous tossed green salad, potato, breads and beverage.

Owned since 1952 by amiable sports booster Oscar Contratto, the Apple Valley Steak House has a superb staff of professional waiters and waitresses. It is open every day, serving fine luncheons as well as dinners. Sunday dinners are served from 4 p.m. on.

all new...all Birds Eye ...and all ready

vegetables with the extra-special touch. Delicious. And altogether new. Vegetables with the extra-special touch prepared for you by Birds Eye. Your favorite Birds Eye vegetables combined with excitement. Garnished with imagination. Some with exciting sauces. All sparkling with seasonings and savory herbs. Vegetable tastes that are new, novel and very, very good. So good, in fact, they deserve a place on party menus. So convenient, you needn't wait for special occasions. Because all the special touches are in the new Birds Eye packages. Variety? Enough to keep your menus vegetable-happy every day!

A delicious example: Mixed Vegetables with Onion Sauce. A medley of Birds Eye's garden-fresh vegetables and a sauce peppy with onion, nutmeg, parsley. Smooth as the pure cream and butter that go into it. To make the sauce, add the generous packet (it's right in the package) to the water in which you simmer the vegetable. Stir and serve with pride. Other new delights, the two at right, and ■ Corn and Peas with Tomatoes ■ Fordhook Limas and Cheese Sauce ■ Green Peas with Sautéed Mushrooms ■ Green Peas with Cream Sauce.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Luther Skaggs is President of the Congressional Medal of Honor Society. An apprentice lineman for the Rural Electrification Administration in Henderson, Ky., before World War II, he won the Medal in July 1944, while leading a Marine assault against the Japanese on Guam. His citation reads in part: "Pfc. Skaggs was critically wounded when a Japanese grenade lodged in his foxhole and exploded, shattering the lower part of one leg . . . he applied an improvised tourniquet and, while propped up in his foxhole, gallantly returned the enemy fire with his rifle and grenades for a period of eight hours, later crawling unassisted to the rear to continue the fight until the Japanese had been annihilated . . ." Today, Skaggs, minus his left leg, lives in Washington, D.C., with his wife Rose, serves the CMH Society without pay and works as a budget analyst with the Defense Supply Agency.

COURAGE

by LUTHER SKAGGS

President, Congressional Medal of Honor Society

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO this month, Abraham Lincoln signed into law a bill creating the Congressional Medal of Honor, the nation's highest award for valor. Today there are 293 living Americans, 46 of whom served in World War I, who hold this treasured decoration. More than half of the 644 Medal of Honor winners of World War II and the Korean conflict received their awards posthumously. They came from all walks of life: bus drivers, businessmen, actors, auto racers. They had one thing in common: they loved our country. On the following page are the stories of 10 Medal of Honor winners chosen at random from those living today.

Most of those who survived have returned to civilian life; some have chosen to remain with the armed forces. All of them are a part of America. The purpose of the Congressional Medal of Honor Society is not to set these men apart from their fellow-countrymen. Rather, it is to protect, uphold and preserve the dignity of the Medal and its individual holders.

Courage is not restricted to those who have been honored for deeds performed on the field of battle. In all of America's wars, many men have fallen, unseen and unsung, with no one to witness their courage. So, too, there are countless unsung heroes in civilian life.

This Wednesday, July 4, the nation once again observes the anniversary of its independence. That freedom was won and held, not alone on the battlefield, but in the everyday lives of all our citizens. It is held today by the courage of individuals who speak out against injustice, who resist the freedom-destroyers of the extreme right and left. This is the private, quiet courage of the true American.

We who hold the Medal of Honor feel that we were called upon to do a job for our country which was our responsibility as American citizens.

This country owes us nothing other than the opportunity to serve again if necessary.

ROBERT EUGENE BUSH

A native of Tacoma, Wash., Bush joined the Navy as a Medical Corpsman in World War II. Today, he owns a lumber company and lives with his wife and four children in Elma, Wash.

CORPSMAN BUSH was administering blood plasma to a desperately wounded Marine on Okinawa when the Japanese launched a savage counter-attack. Holding the plasma bottle high in one hand, he drew a pistol with the other and fired it into the oncoming enemy ranks until his ammunition was exhausted. Then he seized a discarded carbine and resumed firing, killing six of the enemy, but suffering wounds himself, including the loss of an eye. The citation reads: "With the hostile force finally routed, he calmly disregarded his own critical condition to complete his mission, valiantly refusing medical treatment for himself until his patient had been evacuated. . . ."

ELI WHITELEY

Texas-born, Whitely interrupted college to enter the Army in World War II. He is now associate professor of soil management at Texas A&M., lives with wife and five children at College Station, Texas.

DESPITE SEVERE WOUNDS in his left arm and shoulder, young Lt. Whitely led his platoon in a vicious house-to-house fight through the streets of Nazi-held Sigolsheim, France. He cleared one enemy nest after another in spite of withering fire. Reaching a building held by fanatical Nazi troops, he blasted out a wall with bazooka fire, killed five of the defenders and forced the remaining 12 to surrender. "As he emerged to continue his fearless attack," the citation continues, "he was again hit and critically wounded. In agony, and with one eye pierced by shell fragments, he shouted for his men to follow him through the next house. He remained at the head of his platoon until forcibly evacuated."

WILLIAM R. LAWLEY, JR.

Lawley was proprietor of a gasoline station in his native Alabama when World War II brought him into the U.S. Army Air Corps as a B-17 bomber pilot. He remained in the service and today is an Air Force Colonel at Maxwell AFB, Ala., where he lives with his wife and three children.

LT. LAWLEY won his Medal of Honor in the blood and flame of a burning B-17 bomber high over Nazi-held Europe on a February day in 1944. His copilot was slumped dead beside him; eight crew members were wounded, two so badly they couldn't bail out. Lawley himself was seriously wounded and blood covered his instrument panel and windshield. Although he collapsed once from loss of blood and could fly with only one hand, he stayed at his post and brought his ship and crew safely home to a crash landing in England. "Through his heroism and exceptional flying skill," the citation reads, "Lt. Lawley rendered outstanding, distinguished and valorous service to our Nation."

ROBERT S. KENNEMORE

Born in Greenville, S.C., Kennemore was a Montgomery Ward messenger boy when he enlisted in the Marines in 1940. He fought on Guadalcanal and Tulagi in World War II and stayed in the Corps to fight again in Korea. Today, he is a production controller in an industrial plant in Oakland, Calif., where he lives with his wife Mary and their seven children.

STAFF SGT. KENNEMORE lost both his legs and won America's highest military award in a savage night action near Korea's Chosen Reservoir. "When an enemy grenade landed in the midst of a machine gun squad, he bravely placed his foot on the missile and, in the face of almost certain death, he personally absorbed the full force of the explosion to prevent injury to his fellow Marines." So reads his official citation.

LLOYD L. BURKE

Before World War II, Burke, a native of Tishnor, Ark., was a soda fountain clerk. Today, Maj. Burke lives in Springfield, Va., with his wife and three children and is on active duty with the Army General Staff at the Pentagon.

ON OCTOBER 28, 1951, the then Lt. Burke and a forward group of 35 American infantrymen were pinned down by a storm of fire from 300 enemy troops entrenched in three fortified bunkers near Chong Dong, Korea. Burke staged a one-man assault on the first two bunkers and wiped them out, then charged the third emplacement, catching several grenades in mid air and hurling them back at the enemy. His citation says: "Securing a light machine gun and three boxes of ammunition, Lt. Burke dashed through the impact area to an open knoll, set up his gun, and poured a crippling fire into the ranks of the enemy, killing approximately 75. Although wounded, he ordered more ammunition, reloaded and destroyed two mortar emplacements and a machine gun position with his accurate fire."

GINO J. MERLI

A native of Scranton, Pa., Merli was a student at the time he entered the Army in World War II. Today, with his wife and three children, he makes his home in Peckville, Pa., where he works for the Veterans Administration.

PRC-GINO J. MERLI won his Medal of Honor one violent night in Belgium in September 1944, when his machine gun outpost was overrun by a superior force of Germans. Twice he feigned death as the Germans stormed past. Twice he "returned to life" and sprayed the enemy with gunfire. At daybreak, the Germans surrendered. Merli was still at his gun. "On the battlefield," his citation reads, "lay 52 enemy dead, 19 directly in front of the gun. Private Merli's gallantry and courage, and the losses and confusion that he caused the enemy, contributed materially to our victory."

DONALD M. CALL

New York City born, Call was a successful Broadway actor before volunteering for the U.S. Army in World War I. Today, he is a prominent landscape architect (he designed portions of the famous Burning Tree Golf Course) in the Washington, D.C., area.

CORPORAL CALL won the Medal of Honor near Varennes, France, in 1918, for what his commanding officer, the then Colonel George S. Patton, termed one of the bravest acts he had ever seen. "Corporal Call," the citation reads "was in a tank with an officer when half the turret was knocked off by a direct artillery hit. Choked by gas from the high explosive shell, he left the tank and took cover in a shell hole 30 yards away. Seeing that the officer did not follow, and thinking that he might be alive, Corporal Call returned to the tank under intense machine gun and shell fire and carried the officer over a mile under machine gun and sniper fire to safety."

EDWARD V. RICKENBACKER

Born in Columbus, Ohio, Rickenbacker was a dare-devil auto racing driver before World War I. In 1914 he captured the world speed record of 134 mph. Today he is Chairman of the Board of Eastern Air Lines, lives in Manhattan with his wife and enjoys frequent visits from his two sons, their wives and five children.

CAPTAIN "EDDIE" RICKENBACKER was America's top fighter pilot ace in World War I. In a brief eight months of action he shot down 22 enemy planes and four balloons. Time after time he single-handedly fought large flights of enemy bombers and fighters. Captain Eddie soon became the prime target of German fighters, but despite their concerted efforts he emerged from all of his hair-raising encounters unscathed—though his little pursuit plane was frequently riddled with bullet holes. Referring only to one engagement, his Medal of Honor citation reads in part: "While on a voluntary patrol over the lines, Lt. Rickenbacker attacked seven enemy planes. Disregarding the odds against him he shot down one of the Fokkers out of control. He then attacked one of the (bombers) and sent it down also."

BENJAMIN KAUFMAN

Kaufman, born in Buffalo, N.Y., 1894, left the University of Syracuse to join the Army in World War I. After the war he became National Commander of the Jewish War Veterans. Today, he is retired and lives in Trenton, N.J.

FIRST-SGT. KAUFMAN was leading an infantry patrol in the Argonne Forest, France, in October 1918, when a burst of machine-gun fire shattered his right arm. Hurling grenades with his left hand and brandishing an empty pistol in his useless right hand, he made a one-man charge on the enemy machine-gun nest, capturing a prisoner and scattering the rest of the crew. He brought the machine gun, his prisoner and his empty pistol back to the American lines under intense enemy fire.

HERSHEL W. WILLIAMS

Williams, a native of West Virginia, worked as a bus driver before joining the Marine Corps. Today he lives with his wife and two children in Huntington, W. Va., where he is employed by the Veterans Administration.

IN THE DESPERATE FIGHTING for Iwo Jima, Corporal Williams volunteered to clear out a network of Japanese pillboxes that had momentarily stopped the Marines' advance. More and under terrific enemy fire for four hours, Williams wiped out one Japanese position after another with flame throwers and demolition charges. "On one occasion," his citation says, "he daringly mounted a pillbox to insert the nozzle of his flame thrower through the air vent, killing the occupants and silencing the gun; on another, he grimly charged enemy riflemen who attempted to stop him with bayonets and destroyed them in a burst of flame from his weapon."

FREEDOM

By CHARLES L. BACON

This Wednesday the United States will be 186 years old, an appropriate time for reflecting on the blessings of freedom. In this article, prepared especially for Parade, Charles L. Bacon, National Commander of The American Legion, presents new insights into our traditional liberties. Mr. Bacon is a veteran of World War II who left the Navy in 1946 with the rank of Lieutenant Commander. A lawyer by profession, he's been active in the Legion ever since and last September was elected Commander of the 2,700,000 member veteran's group.

IN MY HOME TOWN, Kansas City, Mo., there are 200,000 new Americans who earned their citizenship the hard way. Many were victims of Communist oppression. All of them came here in search of freedom. They have found freedom and opportunity, thanks largely to the efforts of a dedicated Kansas City woman, Mrs. Madalyn Brock, who heads our town's "Citizenship Naturalization Council." Since 1945, Mrs. Brock and her colleagues have worked unceasingly to help these new Americans find their place in our community. We are proud of their success and proud of our new citizens.

In return, these gallant people from other lands appreciate the freedom of America with a fervor that many of us would do well to emulate. These victims of tyranny give us a new perspective on the national liberties we too often take for granted.

Here, from the lips of seven new Americans, are seven lessons of freedom. Together, they tell a story of America that our founding fathers would have been proud to read.

The Freedom of Home

Mrs. Gabriella Polony Mountain, who fled her native Hungary to become a sculptress of national reputation in her new country:

Home, like everything else, does not attain full meaning until we have lost it. I have lost my home and my country, but I have found them again in America. I tell you from my heart that the freedom to choose one's home, to make it a haven for one's family and friends, and to defend it against all oppression, is one of America's greatest blessings.

Freedom From Injustice

Philip Quo, who escaped from Red China, graduated from Kansas University and is now a mechanical engineer:

In America, justice is the rule of law, not of men. Without such justice, there can be no true freedom or security. Having lived in a land where justice rested on the will of tyrants, my family and I cherish most of all the great American privilege of equal justice under the law.

Freedom of Worship

Mrs. Zofia Sokolowski, a Polish-born Registered Nurse:

The freedom to worship God in our own way is the dream of all of us who have come from countries where prayer is a sin against the State. This freedom, then, is to be cherished and reverently held close to our hearts as perhaps the greatest of all freedoms in America.

Freedom of Elections

Jack Mandelbaum, a successful businessman who came to America from Poland in 1950 as a penniless Displaced Person:

A free man's most prized possession is the ballot. To exercise his vote gives him the feeling of standing on the highest mountain, breathing the pure air of freedom. Freedom to vote is the hope of all enslaved peoples today. This I know.

Freedom of the Press

Bulgarian-born Dr. Christo A. Weltscheff, now a Kansas City physician:

Freedom of the press from government control and censorship guarantees all Americans the real liberty to think and to speak, to voice their opinions. This is a great freedom which is denied in my native Bulgaria. America must hold fast to it.

Freedom of Opportunity

John Vrendas, who left his native Greece after his parents were killed by Communist guerrillas and worked his way through grade school, high school and college in the United States:

Here in America, we can be whatever we choose to be, whatever we are capable of being. We are not bound, as in the old country, to follow in our fathers' footsteps. The freedom of opportunity which all of us enjoy here enables us to achieve our highest goals—if we have the determination, the will to work, and the readiness to sacrifice for our dreams.

Freedom to Disagree

Mr. M. Neuschaefer, now a lecturer at the University of Kansas City, was a prisoner of war during World War II. He emigrated to the United States from his native Germany after the war:

For all of us who have lived under a thought-controlling dictatorship, the right to disagree is precious. The freedom to uphold a minority opinion is the true essence of democracy. Freedom to disagree is the Promethean spark which keeps America's creed alive.

MY FAVORITE JOKES

by OSCAR CARTIER

EDITOR'S NOTE: Oscar Cartier is the only Argentine-born, big-time comic currently working in the U.S. Like many Latin Americans, Cartier got his start in show business as a dancer, appearing with the La Playa Dancers in Miami's Rumba Casino, New York's Versailles Club, and other such night spots. Because his English was better than that of other members in the group, Cartier was given the job of announcing the La Playa numbers and introducing the artists. Gradually he came to embellish these introductions with a gag or two until he discovered that comedians were better paid than dancers. He embarked on a study of comedy from Aristophanes until the present, re-writing jokes as he went along. Presently he developed a comedy act for himself and since 1950 has been playing top supper clubs. Here are some of Oscar's funniest gags, which he writes himself.

A young girl took her grandfather to a twist party, and while they were watching the dancers she said, "I'll bet you never saw dancing like that when you were young."

"Once," replied the grandfather, "and the place was railed."

I just heard that Elizabeth Taylor was offered $50,000 per week to stay in Europe. The offer was made by Hollywood wives.

Did you hear about the scientist who crossed a potato with a sponge? It tastes terrible but holds a lot of gravy!

A woman making her first jet airplane ride was frightened to death. She said to the pilot, "Suppose we crash?" The pilot assured her she had nothing to worry about. "We always keep a spare plane in the hangar," he explained, "exactly for such emergencies."

Did you know that Las Vegas is the town where they discovered instant poverty? ... They have a golf tournament there which is ridiculous—everyone is trying to get out of the hole! ... And in Vegas if you ask a kid how old he is, he says, "Eight, the hard way."

A fellow, happily married, brought his wife a new book called Better Homes and Gardens. Then she ran away with a guy who had a better home and garden.

A pessimistic fellow read his horoscope which said, "Make new friends and see what happens." He went out, made three new friends, and nothing happened. Now he complains he's stuck with three new friends.

In England when they answer the telephone, they don't say hello. They say, "Are you there?" It's better that way. If nobody's there, there's no use in carrying on the conversation.

Mama Cabor is writing a book entitled How To Raise Children for Fun and Profit.

With the uncertainty of nuclear war, some people still join the Book of the Month Club—only they do it a week at a time.

King Saud of Arabia has had 40 wives. To get a divorce all he has to do is to say three times, "I divorce thee," and the wife has had it. Here, if a man's wife's name is Mabel, and in his sleep he should call her Dorothy even once, you can bet he's had it, too.

Polygamy will never work here. Can you imagine six wives in a kitchenette?

A comedian went to a psychiatrist who said to him, "Lie down on the couch and tell me all you know." The comedian did. Now the psychiatrist is doing the comic's act in Chicago.

I've got a sure system to beat the races—pick a horse with a sensitive nose and a jockey with halitosis!

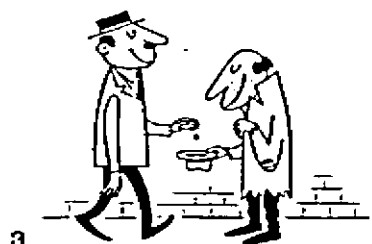

It's easy to figure out why women live longer than men. They don't have a wife to put up with.

ANECDOTE of the WEEK

The late Andrei Vishinsky, who was once Russia's Voice of Wrath, sometimes spoke with tongue in cheek. After a particularly bitter denunciation of the United States, he was challenged privately by an American acquaintance.

"The United States is very untrustworthy," the Soviet official replied solemnly. "I need only cite Korea as an example. The United States clearly indicated it had no interest in defending Korea. When the Communists attacked, however, you intervened with a powerful military defense. This proves you cannot be trusted." ■

STRAWBERRY
SHORTCAKE

by BETH MERRIMAN

Parade food editor

STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

- 2 cups biscuit mix
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1/4 cup shortening
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1/4 cup heavy cream (about)
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 quart strawberries, sliced and sweetened to taste

Combine biscuit mix and sugar. Cut in shortening with 2 knives or pastry blender. Combine egg and cream; stir in with fork. If dough is too dry add a little more cream or milk. Roll out 1/2-inch thick on lightly floured board. Cut into 6 rounds with 2 1/2-inch cutter. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Dot with butter. Bake at 450° 12 to 15 minutes or until golden brown. Split while hot; spread cut surfaces with additional butter or margarine. Put together with strawberries between and on top. Serve with plain or whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

When it comes to making shortcake we shy away from pastry, very sweet cake and other such novelties. For us, traditional shortcake means biscuits—big biscuits—so short and flaky they barely resist the fork. We bake them while dinner is in progress and serve them piping hot from the oven, with butter lavishly melting on the cut surfaces, awaiting the crowning touch of sweet red strawberries and a pour of heavy cream. You can enjoy this dessert the year 'round with berries, with sliced ripe peaches, or with canned or frozen fruits. It's an all-American delight whatever the season.

Beach Maneuvers— baby style

bringing up baby*

hints collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber, Mother of 5

Oh joyous outing!—a day on the beach with your toddler. Free-wheeling in the wonderful wide outdoors, sand surprises to discover, water to test with a tiny toe or two. But remember, the reflected rays from the sand add to the scorching power of the sun. So don't let your beachcomber run in the sun for more than 20 minutes or so without some kind of protective shirt or covering, even if he is tan. A bonnet or hat is advisable. And by the bye, a beach umbrella is a good investment.

Refreshment for the big outdoors. Beach business can make your toddler work up a big thirst. Wonderful quenchers for tykes and toddlers alike: Gerber Strained Fruit Juices. Delicately delicious, they're all rich in vitamin C. Seven sipping pleasures—Orange, Apple, Orange-Pineapple, Orange-Apple, Apple-Cherry, Pineapple-Grapefruit and the new Orange-Apricot.

HOME REFRESHER FOR TODDLERS

2 tbs. Gerber Strained Egg Yolks
1 can of Gerber Orange Juice

1 cup of cool milk                      2 tsp. sugar
Blend with a rotary beater.    Serve on the spot.

Note for water nymphs. It's wise to let your inquisitive toddler make his (or her) own advances in the water. (Under your eagle-eye, of course.) A little one who's sloshed in the water without warning, even from the security of your arms, may develop a fear that'll be hard to cure.

Quiet please! You won't want to let your gad-about get overtired on the beach. To get him to stay put for periods, devise simple 2-way games to play under your umbrella. Building castles in the sand is still as much fun as it ever was.

Fruit-ful ideas for sand-diggers or stay-at-homes. Most everyone likes more fruit in the summertime and toddlers are no exception. Gerber Junior Fruits are refreshing as can be with naturally good flavors that really titillate an appetite. Special processing preserves the utmost in nourishing food values. Why not try Gerber Fruits for luscious sundae toppings or toothsome sandwich spreads?

Important: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods—infant formulas, cereals, strained and junior foods—to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

Nancy Olson

THE

FOURTEEN YEARS AGO Paramount Pictures signed a young coed from the University of California to a long term contract. Her name was Nancy Olson. Daughter of a Milwaukee physician, she was 20 and well turned, a lovely, leggy, smiling girl with honey-colored hair, eyes of Scandinavian blue, and a wholesome, irrepressibly Midwestern outlook on life.

Nancy Olson was the original success kid. She started at the top. Unlike many young players she served no period of apprenticeship at the studio, no posing for cheesecake, no dating of executives or executives' sons, no playing of starlet bits.

Right off she was assigned starring roles. Largely because Paramount had signed her for little money—$250 a week—she could keep the production budgets down, and she was an intelligent, perceptive, well educated actress.

In one year Nancy was top-lined in four big movies, found herself playing opposite Bing Crosby in Mr. Music and Bill Holden in Sunset Boulevard. Then love impinged on her life. She met Alan Jay Lerner, 10 years her senior, twice-married, a writer under contract to Paramount. Six months later they were married.

artist who every 5 years or so has experienced a trying and expensive period known as "Change of Wife."

Says Nancy: "If I'm sitting in a room, and someone says to me, 'See that fellow over there. He's been married ten times. He looks awful. He dresses awful. He is awful. But he's also talented and has an I.Q. of 176,' I'm immediately attracted, despite his history, and that's the guy for me."

In 1950, Nancy Olson Lerner abandoned one of the most promising motion picture careers of all time and moved to Rockland County, N.Y., with her husband. There, on the western bluffs of the Hudson, Lerner bought from Burgess Meredith and Paukette Goddard the centuries-old farmhouse originally built for Revolutionary War General Mad Anthony Wayne. The Lerner's moved in, and there Nancy began to live the suburban, artistic life of the show-business New Yorker. She gave birth to a daughter, Liza, two years later produced another daughter, Jennifer. Zealously she looked after Lerner's daughter from a previous marriage on weekends, dedicated herself completely to her family.

Then one afternoon in 1957 Alan Lerner came home "and just like that, no warning or anything," he asked for a divorce.

couldn't believe it. She didn't even have an inkling of an idea that Alan was unhappy: She phoned her mother in Los Angeles and said, "Mother, I'm in serious trouble, but I'd like to be alone for 24 hours. Then, please come and see me." She cried her heart out for 24 hours, and then her mother arrived and found her in a state of semi-shock.

"But Nancy has guts and great strength of character, and she pulled herself together very quickly."

A divorce settlement was negotiated—reputedly $3,000,000, most of it in trust for the children—and the third Mrs. Alan Lerner decided to take a post-divorce trip to Europe with her girls.

"It did wonders for my morale," she recalls. "Especially Rome. The Italians make a pass at any American girl under the age of 85."

Back in America, Nancy got a call from Walt Disney asking if she'd like to resume her screen career. She accepted immediately and flew to Hollywood where she played the part of a maid in Pollyanna and Fred MacMurray's girlfriend in The Absent-Minded Professor.

At the moment she is working with MacMurray again in a sequel entitled Son of Flubber, a title for which the entire cast feels Walt Disney should be shot at sunrise.

At 34, Nancy Olson is more beautiful than ever. The baby fat on her face has disappeared, delineating her high cheek bones and making her more photogenic. Her figure, 5 feet 6, 117 pounds, is as trim as it was in her coed days. No longer the wide-eyed girl next door, she is a mature woman who has experienced the pleasure-pain of love. She is smiling, witty, sexy, knowledgeable, the possessor of a charming sense of humor.

Woman of the World

Seven years of marriage to Lerner have made her a worldly, sophisticated person, equally at home on the Broadway stage and the Disney backlot. She feels extremely fortunate that Hollywood is willing to give her a second chance, but she has no intention of giving up her 10-room apartment high over New York's Central Park which from time to time is transformed into an intriguing salon frequented by the nation's top artists, writers, educators, and Broadway producers.

"New York is closer to Washington," she explains, "and people back there are more alive, more attuned to world affairs than they are in Hollywood. I consider myself a New Yorker with Midwestern accents. I try to work in Hollywood during the summer, because I can bring the children out with me. I'm very happy these days, and I want to work as much as possible."

"As for marriage, I'm still a young woman and I hope very much to marry again. My children need a father. I need a husband."

As a wealthy, interesting, young divorcee, Nancy Olson has had many marital offers. "But I've been single for four years now," she says, "and I'm not rushing into it. What I need and want most right now is the excitement and the challenge of work. I also want to enjoy the serenity I feel."

As she spoke those words a small sonata of a smile played itself across her beautiful Swedish face, lineless and serene, but there was, I thought, a touch of sadness in her sky-blue eyes when I brought up the subject of marriage. And suddenly I recalled what a brilliant Frenchman, La Rochefoucauld, who minted countless maxims, had written about serenity:

"The serenity of the wise," he said, "is merely the art of imprisoning their agitation in the heart." ■

Nancy and husband Alan Jay Lerner leave for London trip in 1956. They were divorced in 1957.

Lerner (lyricist of My Fair Lady, Brigadoon, Gigi, Cameo) is a small (5 feet 6), diffident man, blind in his left eye—the result of a boxing accident in the Harvard gym—enormously talented and enormously rich. (My Fair Lady has grossed over $50,000,000.) His father, J. J. Lerner, a former dentist from Atlantic City who founded the successful Lerner dress chain, sent his sons to the best schools.

Alan attended the Columbia Grammar School in New York, Bedales School in England, Choate Prep with John F. Kennedy, who helped him edit the school yearbook, and Harvard, class of '40. He majored in French and Italian literature, wrote songs for the Hasty Pudding musicals, spent his summers studying music at the Juilliard School.

When Nancy Olson married Lerner in 1950, he was five years away from writing My Fair Lady. Nevertheless he was the same talker, ambitious, sensitive, complex, cerebral creature he is today—an

Says one friend: "This was the first tough knock Nancy ever got. Before that everything in her life had been silk smooth. She had won the Wisconsin State Oratorical Contest as a teenager. She'd been admitted to the University of Wisconsin players as a freshman. She'd been signed by Paramount when she transferred to the University of California at Los Angeles. She'd become a young movie star with fame and money. She'd met and married a rich, talented lyric-writer who provided her with all the creature comforts that money could buy. She had wonderful parents and a nice kid brother, and two sweet children of her own. And now came the first big knock—her husband wanted a divorce. And he wanted it quickly to marry another girl (Micheline Muselli Pozzo di Borgo, a blonde Corsican born beauty and practicing member of the French bar).

"To tell you that Nancy was shocked is to understate the situation. She was stunned, incredulous. She
